'SRO' Sign Out At Eastland

It is no secret that at least three Franklin County school districts are having misgivings about their original decision not to become a part of the East Franklin County Joint Vocational School District.

They are Hamilton Local, Mifflin and Plain.

OF THE THREE, Hamilton can be considered the most serious contender for a place in the joint venture offering advanced vocational training to juniors and seniors from the five districts currently participating (Madison, Whitehall, Reynoldsburg, Jefferson and Canal Winchester. It is a matter brought up at Hamilton's December board meeting and tabled for future discussion.

However, it is apparent that board interest alone is insufficient to guarantee the second guessing on the advisability of becoming a part of the joint district will be fruitful.

In the first place, although voter approval is not mandatory for board action on the issue, petitions by a majority of the number voting in the last election can serve as a veto. (Such a protest must be lodged within 60 days following advertising of the move which would be reflected by an increased tax rate.)

SECONDLY, a district cannot be accepted without the okay of the board of the joint district.

And although when the plans were initiated, all area school districts except Columbus and South-Western were urged to take part, today the picture has been changed.

Architectural plans have been approved and bonds sold to finance a facility designed to accommodate the students of five districts whose total student enrollment is counted at about 19,000.

It is estimated that as high as 30 percent of the eligible students from the junior and senior classes will seek vocational training.

THE THREE districts which are known to be reconsidering have a combined enrollment of about 7,000.

If they were to be accepted, it would mean the joint school would be expected to serve the needs of approximately 36 percent more students than envisioned when planned. (This figure holds true if the ratio of 11th and 12th-grade students to those at all levels is comparable in all districts involved.)

It is less than realistic to believe an educational plant can readily absorb such an enrollment jump and still offer the same program promised to voters last spring when they okayed the issue at the poll.

THESE FACTS do not close the doors indefinitely to the districts currently knocking or other area districts.

As Tom Quick, county superintendent of schools who has worked on the organization since its inception, pointed out, no one can be sure how many students from the five parent districts will seek admission when the classes first open in the fall of 1968.

It could well be that classroom area will be adequate for students from other districts.

ONE POSSIBLE solution offered is that such students be accepted temporarily on a tuition and first-come, first-served basis. After operating experience give administrators and board men the facts necessary to form a sound opinion, a decision can be made on the advisiblity of admitting other districts on an equal basis.

Quick also indicated that he would be reluctant to see any district push through participation in the Vocational District without "feeling out" the residents of the respective communities. He apparently believes to have board action vetoed by referendum could well leave a bad taste in everyone's mouth.

WHILE DISCOURAGING precipitate action on the matter, everyone concerned with the matter made it clear the need for vocational facilities for students of most districts is a future must.

The only reluctance against action at this point is based on lack of planning to take care of more students.

WESTERN ELECTRIC layout operator Margaret Harrison presents the 50 millionth wire spring relay produced at WE's Columbus works on E. Broad Street to K. J. Ferris, section chief.

Western Electric Facility Hits Production Milestone

Western Electric's sprawling Columbus Works on E. Broad Street reached a major production milestone last week with production of its 50 millionth wire spring relay.

Company officials said the 50 millionth relay rolled off the assembly line only three years after the Columbus plant had hit the 25 million mark.

Wire spring relays are an integral part of the dial telephone central offices and are used to automatically close circuits as a number is dialed.

The local plant produces approximately 25 per cent of all relays used nationwide by Bell System companies, including the Ohio Bell Telephone Co.

Western Electric manufactured its first wire spring relay in Columbus in 1958 at its Mound Street pilot plant and had produced 1 million relays within a year. The five million mark was reached in 1961.

Also in production at the East End plant is a miniature relay used in electronic switching systems. It is a smaller version of the big relay and does exactly the same job.

Haytcher Appoints Nine New Members

Whitehall Mayor Paul J. Haytcher this week announced nine appointments to new commissions created by the city charter, including the re-appointment of three members of the existing Planning and Zoning Commission.

Named to the new Planning Commission for four-year terms were:

Philip J. Neubecker, 397 Pineview-dr; Keith Edmunds, 4182 McAllister-av; Robert Garnon, 4250 Mayflower-bl, and Frank Byers, Jr., 645 Fairway-bl.

Neubecker, Edmunds and Garnon were all members of the old Planning and Zoning Commission which was wiped out when the new charter was approved in November.

Under terms of the charter, all members of the Commission would have had to have been appointed to the new Planning Commission, but Neubecker, Edmunds and Garnon resigned early in December to give Haytcher a free hand in picking new commission members.

"I decided to appoint all three of them," the mayor said, "because we needed their experience and good judgment on the new commission."

Appointed to the new Zoning and Building Appeals Commission were:

Charles Carroll, 345 Fairway-bl, for a one-year term.

Walter Richey, 4328 Etna-rd, for a two-year term.

Lendel Hodge, 801 Bernhard-rd, for a three-year term.

Douglas Wrightsell, 4214 Wright Park, for a four-year term.

Joseph Knapk, 936 Karl-st, for a five-year term.

Hodge and Wrightsell were both members of the Charter Commission and Haytcher said he appointed them because he felt they would have a better insight into what this entirely new body should concern itself with."

He said he appointed members of "both political parties" and concentrated in part on the Fairway Boulevard-Eastern section of the city on the Zoning and Building Appeals Commission because "that is where many of our pending zoning changes will take place."

Members were assigned to terms by "picking them out of a hat," Haytcher said.

Inspection Bureau Upgrades Whitehall

Whitehall commercial property owners can expect a reduction in fire insurance rates.

The Ohio Inspection Bureau which rates cities for firefighting efficiency, has placed Whitehall in Class 5. an improvement over its previous Class 6 rating.

In a letter to city officials, Harry L. Kreiger of the Bureau indicated the rating was made permanent when Whitehall followed through on plans it had submitted for upgrading its protection.

Mayor Paul Haytcher indicated he felt the new classification was "partially due to our new fire protection agreement with the City of Columbus."

Eagles Vs. Hawks In CCL Opener

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Advocates of high scoring run and shoot basketball had better stay away from Watterson High Friday night because they will probably be bored. But those who relish defense and patterned offense and a team that presses the whole game should circle their calendar.

For Watterson's defensive-minded Eagles open the Central Catholic League season against rival Hartley, defending CCL king (two years running, sharing the '65 prize with Watterson) at 8 p.m.

TO MAKE the stakes a little higher, as if you would have to in this CCL match, Watterson's two year Catholic total is 12-4 (three losses to Hartley) while the Hawks boast a 15-1 record (one loss to Watterson).

Dick Geyer, Hartley mentor, who has guided the Hawks to five straight following a pair of opening losses, doesn't look for a high-scoring game. "They play a tough defense," Dick said, "and hustle all over the floor."

Dick also feels that his group has proven itself defensively with the addition of a strictly all-court press which has caused confusion with the last five foes (the only ones pressed by the Hawks).

WATTERSON'S PAT Mannion also hopes to make it a defensive game with his miserly defensive troops holding opponents to a 38.2 point per game average for the eight games.

Mannion's Eagles, skipping along at 8-0, will have a pair of hands full with the Hartley brother act — Rodney and Denny Parker. The Parkers, led in the scoring column by 6-3 junior Rod who has a 15 point per game average, followed by Denny's 13 point firing, also pace the team in both rebounds and assists.

But Mannion warns against keying on them solely as Tom Brewer has perked up the Hawks on several occasions. "They have been getting help from this Brewer and that is bound to pick them up," Pat said.

GEYER HAS also picked out a pair of Eagles to watch closely. Said Dick: "We will have to stop Amicon (Rocky) and McGarity (Tom)."

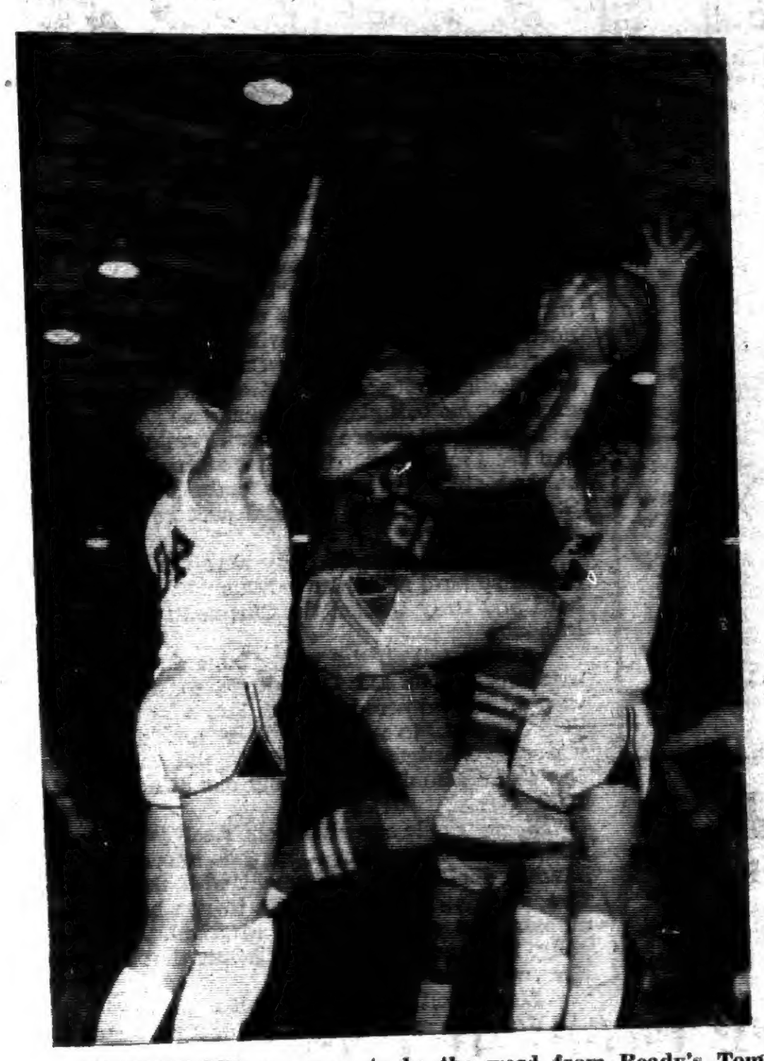
Both the spunky 5-8 Amicon and 6-3 rebounding ace McGarity are pacing the Eagle offensive unit with 17 and 8 points respectively.

In a pair of comparative scores: Brookhaven lost to Hartley 70-54 and to the Eagles 66-58 while the Hawks pinned Arlington 60-50 and Watterson dropped the Bears 43-35.

EASTMOOR'S RED Courtney will have a board battle on his hands Friday in City League action against Whetstone's tall Braves.

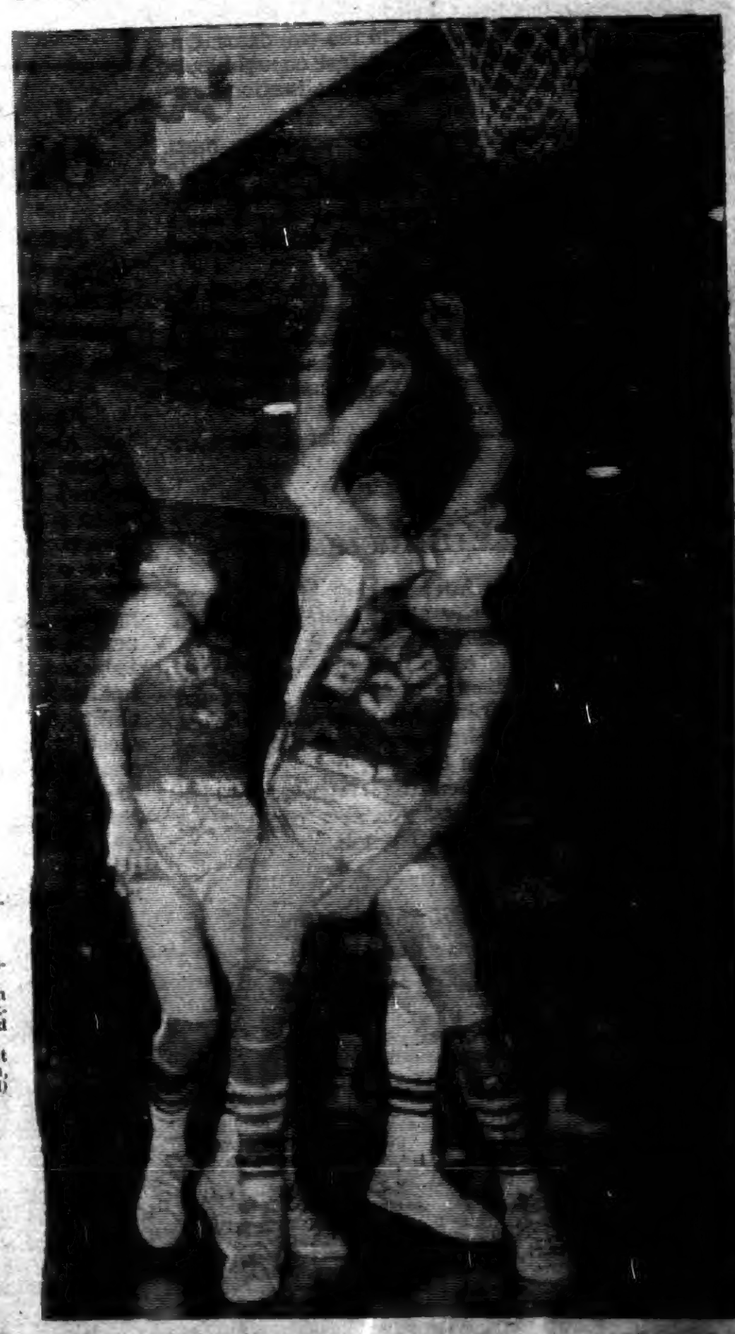
The Warriors, who picked up their first defeat last Friday night at Portsmouth, 63-61, will try to get back in the winning way by turning off three top scoring Braves, Bill Baker, Scott Kerns and Ned Kirby. "Those are the three that we will have to stop in close," mentioned Courtney.

Outside, the veteran Eastmoor mentor looks to offer some pressure and try to force Whetstone into some early mistakes. "The North pressure worked fairly well against them Thursday," Courtney added, "and we will have to keep them off the boards."



ONE OF the Warriors' chief assets thus far has been a torrid shooting hand that has connected for 49 percent from the floor. Eric Walz, a near 18 point per game man, is the team leader but Courtney figures that his group has been getting maximum mileage out of their own unselfishness. "So far we have had a real good team effort," Red said, "and we have managed to find the open man."

Lance Grear, Randy Yoakum and Jack Parry have been the most open for E-M as either one has been capable of being the team scoring leader.



CAGE NOTES: Other area games: St. Mary (4-3) at Academy (3-4), East (7-0) at East Liverpool, Franklin Heights (1-8) at Whitehall (5-4), Bexley (2-5) at Grandview (5-5) and Bexley (2-5) at Circleville.

Marion Franklin (3-4) travels to Walnut Ridge for a City battle Friday.

Jim Frazier's 32 point total in Northland's 76-66 win over Liberty Union headed the top point producers of the week. The Viking star is followed by West's Mike Dreeling, whose 29 points aided in the Cowboys' 83-75 win over Bishop Ready, Ready's John Bennett, who had 28 points against West, Worthington's John Savage, who netted 26 points in the Cards 76-61 win over Urbana, and Northland's Chris Wehe, who led the Vikings to a 64-52 win over St. Mary with a 26 point shooting night.

EXCUSE ME — seems to be the word from Ready's Tom Jackson to West center Mike Dreeling in the Knight-Cowboy championship clash last week in the Ready Holiday tournament. Number 40 for West is Harry O'Harra. The Cowboys won 83-75 to take home the crown.

NEED ANOTHER HAND — The story of West's 83-75 win over Ready in the Ready Holiday classic last weekend was the fact that the Cowboys had too many hands for Ready with partially hidden center Mike Dreeling having the hottest hand of them all with 29 points. (Staff photo by Mike Yates).

Comment And Criticism

An Open Invitation

Because of the use of color during the introduction of The Spectator Newspapers new tabloid format, the size of the papers has been limited to 32 pages.

This limitation has so severely limited news space that, in the interests of our readers, the use of color on a regular basis will be suspended. By dropping the regular color, press capacity can be increased to 40 and 48 pages.

The added pages will allow The Spectator to bring to its readers a greater percentage of local and community news. We appreciate the patience of our readers and advertisers during our growing pains.

The Spectator urges its readers and civic, garden and church club members to make generous use of the additional space. Send in your items. The space is now available.

Good News

The announcement that the state will share in the cost of building the controversial Alum and Mill Creek dams is welcome news to those who have fought for these two facilities for years.

If nothing else, it means the area has a solid bargaining point in attempting to get the money from Congress to build the two dams. Until now, the financing has had just enough doubt surrounding it to make the whole situation tenuous.

Franklin County's two Congressmen must now put the heat on the Corps of Engineers and Congress to begin work as soon as possible on the dams, which should go a long way toward solving the county's water and flood control problems.

But it would also be available for those interests who have pushed for construction of the dam for the past few years to remain interested enough to make sure the state sticks to its promises and the county's Congressional delegation keeps the pressure on.

The prize is too valuable to let up for even a moment.

Solid Enthusiasm

We noted with interest that Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner isn't shy about telling his opposition what he thinks it should do.

The Mayor told a radio interviewer this week that if the Republicans were really interested in the growth of Columbus, they would forget after finding mayorality candidates and endorse him as their candidate for 1967.

You might question the Mayor's right to advise his opponents, but you sure can't argue with his enthusiasm for his job.

Ohio's Tax Needs

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles written by Dr. George Thatcher, Miami University economist who authored the well-known Thatcher Report on Ohio's tax needs in 1962. It is reprinted from the WRFD Commentator.)

Another alternative would be a corporation net income tax. Almost 40 states use this. The yield would be $50 million for each one percent rate on corporate income as defined for taxation by federal law. One advantage: a state can obtain revenue from a corporation's earnings if that corporation is owned by non-residents. Moreover, a state corporation net income tax is one means of taxing retained corporate profits; thus it is a good companion measure to the personal net income tax. For large businesses, roughly half of the burden would be absorbed by reducing their federal tax payments. There is also some justification for a corporate income tax on the basis of ability to pay. Since the greater proportion of corporate stock is held by middle and upper income groups, the tax rests on those most able to pay. And to the degree that the tax is absorbed by charging higher prices, part of Ohio's taxes would be exported to citizens of other states who buy products made in Ohio. By the same token the states that now levy a corporate net income tax are shifting part of their tax burden to us.

There are many other alternative sources of additional revenue which could be enacted: corporation franchise tax, gross receipts tax on public utilities, severance tax on minerals, new taxes on insurance companies and so on.

The last legislature created an Ohio Tax Study Commission, composed of legislators and public members, which hired a competent research staff to study the entire tax system of Ohio. Having worked with the present staff all summer, I can vouch for the fact that the Commission will be supplied with the best information available on the problems of and remedies for Ohio's tax system.

In conclusion, I must repeat that the needs for adequate financing of health, education, and welfare in Ohio is evident. The state's taxable capacity would permit such financing without placing an undue tax strain on the citizenry. The question is not whether taxes should be raised. The question is which taxes should be increased or enacted.

Final Chapter

To The Editor:

I will have to acquiesce to the demand of "Irate Hilltopper" that I answer his recent letter in your newspaper. I do so, not because he deserves the dignity of an answer, but because every young boy that participates in amateur athletics deserves an answer.

Regarding the missing stand: Mchenney's answer suffices. Regarding player solicitation: These young boys are free to make their own choice. Regarding the team solicitation: The Cincinnati Jewish Community Center is also free to play any team they desire.

I must add that the "brotherhood of man" that I. H. so casually kicks around truly existed during out team's games with the C.J.C.C. this year. Boys of three faiths; Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish religions practiced brotherhood in excellent football play—and made we adults who watched proud we are American. It may be cornball but I must admit that that afternoon had to be the highlight of my entire football career even though I played only a trivial part in the day's activities.

The real heroes that day were the boys who played so hard and their parents who worked so hard and truly treated the Cincinnati entourage in honor.

I must tell all the young boys that we men who work with kid football do so with little thought to real personal gain. You might say we give ourselves to you boys. This "giving" exists with the Westgate Boy's Club, the Cincinnati Jewish Community Center and our own team of 1966.

Some people say giving one's self is the best gift of all. I do not know, but I do know I would have to qualify that statement with this situation; we give our perfect gift to you boys with all our own personal flaws attached. And, by golly, I am going to have to admit that I overflow with personal flaws.

Let me tell you about one of my flaws.

From the opening kick-off our undermanned 12-year-old team moved with startling momentum in almost perfect sequence plays called by the quarterback until a misplay happened instead of a touchdown. I sent one of the few plays of the afternoon in at that point—punt formation—but fake punt and end run.

What happened was this: As the teams lined up for the play several Columbus men on the sidelines screamed in "Fake Punt." The Cincy people, our people, and our team was flabbergasted. In fact, those men completely confused our team so badly that we were fortunate that we only sustained a major loss of ground, and did not have the ball get away from the kicker.

It was I who was responsible for those men striking at me through the boys on the field. I suppose those men were proud of themselves. But I wasn't of myself.

It made me wonder why those men would have to hurt boys to get back at an adult. Perhaps they thought they had a great sense of humor, but I think most people would only call that sense of humor a perverted one. It made me ashamed for it was the one glaring example of poor sportsmanship on an afternoon when good sportsmanship was the word of the day.

Everyone of us concerned with kid football can go on with plans for 1967. There is an excellent charce I will move, and may not be in the activity next year, but it certainly will not be because some crank might take a pot shot at me. Most likely a better man than I will take my place.

Oh, yes, amateur sports had a very good year in Columbus this year. A very good year. I mentioned in a previous letter that our little team enjoyed being mentioned along with the "Little Buckeyes," Watterson, and Arlington.

I must apologize for omitting the Westgate Hawks from the great teams of the area.

We must always keep our sense of humor, must not we? Everyone is bound to stumble at times. It took a 10-year-old boy to teach me a lesson that I should have known long ago.

barry goldwater ★ A Novel Mr. Johnson! ★

GOLDWATER

It is one of the great political ironies of our time that Lyndon Johnson reaches for new ideas in the Republican platform or the 1964 Republican Presidential campaign whenever he is in trouble.

Social Security is a great example. L.B.J. captured a lot of badly needed headlines and undoubtedly revived a lot of his slipping reputation by making some supposedly new proposals regarding Social Security.

New? Nonsense!

L.B.J. wants to make it possible for folks on Social Security to earn more money on their own without being penalized by a withdrawal of Social Security payments. Well, Barry Goldwater has been talking about the same thing for some time now, and right in black and white in the 1964 platform of the Republican Party — the platform on which I wholeheartedly and enthusiastically ran for President — there is this flat proposal:

"Revision of the Social Security laws to allow higher earnings, without loss of benefits, by our elderly people."

L.B.J.'s series of statements on Social Security — like so many of his actions, it was nicely timed to hit just before a congressional election —also suggested that Social Security benefits be increased.

New? Nonsense!

The 1964 Republican platform stated, with no ifs, ands or buts, that the party wants "improved benefits to our people" in a "strong, fiscally sound system of Social Security."

To appreciate the full irony of this situation you must remember that Republicans were running on that specific platform pledge even while L.B.J. was spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in TV advertising stating flatly that Republicans wanted to "tear up" the Social Security system.

In Lyndon-Come-Lately's Social Security proposals he also wants extension of Medicare coverage, his high-cost scheme that pays only hospital bills and which applies no sensible yardstick of need.

The 1964 Republican platform, on which I proudly ran, asks "full coverage of all medical and hospital costs for the needy elderly people, financed by general revenues through broader implementation of federal-state plans rather than the compulsory Democratic scheme covering only a small percentage of such costs for everyone regardless of need."

william s. white ★ Unfair References To President ★

WHITE

The great controversy over whether the once family-sponsored book on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy is or is not to be published is an empty one so far as its widely-heralded attacks upon President Johnson are concerned.

Among other things, it is precisely these "inaccurate and unfair" references to Mr. Johnson, as Mrs. John F. Kennedy herself honorably describes them, which she now seeks belatedly to have removed from the manuscript.

The simple fact, however, is that very existence of this controversy is giving them a world-wide circulation that could hardly have been made bigger by any number of formal publications. The difference is that passages are being leaked out selectively by various informants, always unidentified, in a process of cumulative innuendo without example in American politics.

Always the circumstances are the same. Some anonymous person "who has read the book" gives the press a tidbit. What emerges is a picture of President Johnson's conduct in the aftermath of the tragedy in Dallas so totally removed from truth as to shock some eyewitnesses who may be critical today of Mr. Johnson's conduct of public affairs but nevertheless cannot stand still for this kind of history.

It is leaked out that Mr. Johnson "insisted" after his swearing-in upon taking the Presidential and not the Vice-Presidential plane back to Washington and that this "shocked and infuriated" unnamed persons among the Kennedy entourage. The implication is of a man who has reached the Presidency through the death of another and is urgently demanding in his attitudes.

The fact is that Mr. Johnson knew that a terrible responsibility lay upon him to keep the continuity of the Presidency visibly going without halt in a shocked and desolated nation. It was because he was President that he had to take the Presidential plane.

Another leak puts it this way: "When flying back (from Dallas), the Kennedy people did not want to be associated with Johnson people in the plane. A high Kennedy aide went up to a reporter: 'Make sure you report that we rode in the back with our President and not with him'."

What in truth all these leaks unconsciously establish is the frightful and hopelss burden that was placed upon the new President. In all the early hours while he was frantically trying to keep the government going to avoid a sense of national rudderlessness, he was continuously and deeply concerned with the understandable grief of the Kennedy followers and made every effort to show them sympathy and understanding.

Those who happened to be close to him in those frightful hours know that this is the truth. This columnist, if a personal reference may be excused, knows this as an eye and ear witness.

There is, moreover the current testimony of Charles Roberts, Newsweek's White House correspondent and one of the two reporters present on the flight from Dallas to Washington. Roberts says that he saw no show of insensitivity by LBJ on the plane. "Indeed," Newsweek adds, "to Roberts and others the new President's behavior seemed a matter of restraint and solicitousness."

The truth is that Mr. Johnson, in a desperate attempt to avoid any hurt to the Kennedy people, as his first act as President resolved to keep on every Kennedy White House aide, not excluding some who had shown contemptuous hostility to him as Vice-President during a time in Washington when some of the extremists among the Kennedy cultists amused themselves by sticking pins into a figure labeled "Lyndon."

The truth, too, is that for three years President Johnson unceasingly sought to placate the more emotional among those Kennedy followers who against all reason have never been able to forgive him that he became President through a national tragedy. No President in this columnist's knowledge has ever tolerated so much so long from men whose animosity was both absolutely implacable and absolutely irrational.

The night after President Johnson returned here from Dallas he was still occupying a private house as President and was personally telephoning every member of the Kennedy Cabinet — every one of whom, also, he kept on.

In the middle of all this tears were in his eyes at every mention of the name John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

(Marquis Childs Is On Vacation)

On the last "hard news day" of the year I took time out to review my dedicated efforts to shed enlightenment and to advise our nation's leaders in 1966. Clip this and keep it as a handy guide to your file of my back columns.

In early January, you'll recall, you thrilled to my coverage of the resignation of the White House French chef, who was replaced by a man who knew how to make chili and flapjacks. February was highlighted by Rep. Craig Hosmer (R., Calif), who suggested that we scare the Viet Cong into submission by dropping bad luck symbols on them. I haven't heard from Rep. Hosmer since and I'm afraid he may have walked under a ladder or something.

On Feb. 24 I declared that there was no doubt that LBJ would run again in 1968. Hmmm, I wish I had Feb. 24 back. March was a fun month. One day I wrote that only a childlike mind would be interested in TV's "Batman." The next day FCC Commissioner E. William Henry made me look bad by wearing a "Batman" costume to a Georgetown party.

Everyone laughed back on Apr. 12 when I wrote that Sen. Everett Dirksen might make a record album of stirring songs and utterances. (The album was released in November and then they REALLY laughed).

July's startling revelation was that, due to a shortage of police cars, Washington's detectives have been issued free bus passes. In August I became alarmed about a huge, moon-sized asteroid which astronomers said is hurtling toward us at 345,000 miles per hour. (I guess it missed us; otherwise, we'd have heard something by now.)

The Forest Service chose October to reveal to this column that some of Lady Bird's nationwide plantings are poisonous. If she'd planted vegetables, instead of flowers, it would have been disastrous. In November I flew to Paris and the Democrats went all to pieces without me.

Absolutely nothing happened in December and my daily coverage of it was magnificent.

Medicare Programs Bring Dissolution Of 'Ohio 65'

Medicare and its side effects have brought about the dissolution of Ohio 65 Health Insurance Foundation, formed more than two years ago to provide health insurance benefits for Ohio's senior citizens.

Ben F. Hadley, president of the Association and executive vice-president of the Columbus Mutual Life Insurance Co., made the announcement following a general membership.

Ohio 65, formed by 54 insurance companies doing business in Ohio, had 14,000 certificate holders with claims of $1,264,000 incurred when it dissolved. Hadley said current certificate holders will receive refunds totaling $106,000.

"The addition of nursing home benefits to Medicare effective Jan. 1, along with the excellent supplemental private programs offered by the insurance industry, provides the security for which the Association was formed," Hadley said.

William P. Harper, association general manager, said spouses under 65 who elected to continue their coverage when the Association's group policy was terminated, will be permitted to participate until age 65 under an agreement with Nationwide Mutual Insurance Co., which administered the Ohio 65 program.

Certificates of appreciation were issued by the board of governors to Hadley and Don W. Montgomery, president of the Celina Mutual Insurance Co., who headed up the association in its first year.

Other officers are E. M. Erickson, Nationwide, vice-president; Knox Stewart, Grange Mutual Casualty Co., secretary; Emerson Reilly, Midland Mutual Life Insurance Co., treasurer and A. E. Hanna, Nationwide, executive secretary.

At Central Savings you get more time to save.

Besides our generous 4.5% interest rate on savings . . . we give you 15 days (instead of 10) to earn a full month's return on each deposit.

This means you get an extra "5" (days) to bank at Central Savings. And Sundays don't count.

We give the extra "5" because most folks get their pay checks twice each month. They pay current bills on the 1st . . . save systematically on the 15th.

So at Central you don't lose as much as a month's interest like you do at a commercial bank where the 10th of the month savings deadline falls between paydays.

This is one more example of the way Central Savings does more for people . . . more and more.

Trained Guide Dogs Serve Blind People

To a blind person, freedom may mean a downtown shopping spree or just a walk around the block, according to John Gray, executive director of Pilot Dogs, Inc.

With the help of a guide, a blind person can take a bus downtown and do his own shopping or take an afternoon stroll.

Before a dog is given to a blind master, it goes through an extensive four-month training course at Pilot Dogs, Inc.

Dogs begin training when they are about nine months old. Preliminary obedience training is done at the kennels. Here the dogs learn to follow commands, such as "forward," "turn left," and "stay." Five or six dogs out of 10 usually fail out here, Gray said.

If the dog does not fail at this stage, he advances to on-the-street training, where he learns how to lead his master across streets, into stores, up and down escalators, through revolving doors and around obstacles.

After the dog has mastered these techniques, the trainer blindfolds himself and has the dog lead him downtown. While downtown, the dog must lead the trainer through a routine day of shopping, dining and taking a bus home.

If the dog passes this test, he goes back to Pilot Dogs where he is given to a blind master.

For four weeks the dog and master live and work together at Pilot Dogs. The master learns to groom his dog, to housebreak it and to perfect the work on the obstacle course.

At first, short, simple walks are taken, always in the company of a professional trainer. The walks and obstacles become more difficult, with the student relying more and more on his dog, until finally they are sent, on their own through downtown department stores, the State House grounds and other buildings.

Pilot Dogs, Inc. is a non-profit organization supported entirely by public contributions. During 1966, it presented 65 guide dogs to blind people without charge.

Blind students are selected on the basis of their physical and mental ability to receive benefit from a guide dog, Gray said.

The school's Student Selection Committee selects the students from approximately 150 applicants per year.

Four weeks room and board, all equipment and round trip transportation are provided to the qualified applicant. It costs about $1,600 to train a dog and his master.

Walter Doran, director of training, said that four breeds of dogs are used: German Shepherd, Boxer, Doberman Pinscher and Labrador Retriever. The dogs must be between nine and 30 months old. They cannot be more than 24 inches tall at the shoulder and cannot weigh more than 60 pounds, he said.

Most of the dogs are obtained through donations. Selected pups are placed in foster homes until they are about a year old.

"Home-raised dogs make better guides than do kennel-raised dogs—because they are familiar with everyday living," Gray said.

Gray said they are looking for foster homes for a litter of puppies that is due at the end end of January.

Schoedinger Enters 112th Service Year

Schoedinger Funeral Service enters its 112th year of service to Columbus this week.

The first Schoedinger chapel was opened on S. High Street in early 1855 by Philip J. Schoedinger, a German cabinetmaker.

The company is still in the hands of the family with Robert S. Schoedinger as president and John F. Schoedinger as secretary-treasurer. New members of the firm, John A. and David S. Schoedinger, are the fifth generation of the family.

Schoedinger's Midtown Chapel at 229 E. State Street was the first funeral home built for that purpose in Ohio. It is managed by H. A. Peters.

Other chapels are at 3030 W. Broad-st, managed by Jack Imler; 1740 Zollinger-rd, managed by Joseph Norris and 2741 Cleveland-av, managed by Joseph Colburn.

Chapels in the northwest and southeast portions of the city are included in expansion plans.

Whitehall: Road To Unity

Reprinted From
Columbus Business Forum

Controversy can be put to good use, as witness what has happened to the Columbus suburb of Whitehall.

Over the years, hardly any city has had as many internal disagreements, and yet come out of them with a more unified civic spirit than before.

Whitehall got its real start during the difficult Depression years when low real estate taxes and easy building restrictions were attractive to persons who had to find inexpensive housing.

But today, a drive through Whitehall will show that most homes are well-built and well-maintained. Only a few of the Depression - built substandard homes are still in evidence.

Today, Whitehall has progressed to the point where most of its residents are fiercely proud of their community, and they have good reason to be. Not only has the school system grown to adequately accommodate the mushrooming population of children, but the city's municipal services have kept pace with the demands made by a population of nearly 27,000.

Fire and police departments operate under a mutual aid pact with their Columbus counterparts so that there is no danger of inadequate protection in these important areas.

A major capital improvement program in recent years has seen the sewer system modernized so that the problem of flooded basements that once was common in some parts of Whitehall has been solved. Streets are re-surfaced on a regular program and all but a few of the old unpaved streets have been modernized to handle the heavy traffic that flows through Whitehall every day.

Whitehall's real estate tax rate is $34.10 per thousand dollars' evaluation, with $26.10 going to the schools, and only 90 cents into the city's operating fund. This is surely one of the lowest figures in the area, and to see what has been accomplished on such a modest budget is startling.

Even at this low tax rate, the city's coffers have been swelled by the establishment of such commercial enterprises as the vast Town and Country Shopping Center complex, the Kroger Company and Ebco Manufacturing Company. A city income tax, levied on all persons who earn their living in Whitehall, whether they are residents or not, brings in about $600,000 each year. Sixty percent of the payroll of the Defense Construction Supply Center (Columbus General Depot) is subject to the Whitehall income tax.

Experiencing one of the most rapid growth rates in the state, Whitehall suddenly found itself confronted with many problems a few years ago. Developers produced new homes at a record rate, bringing hundreds of children into the Whitehall school district and putting a burden on all municipal services.

One area of homes that are less than might be desired was acquired through annexation. This neighborhood has presented problems in the form of pure building maintenance, poor housekeeping practices such as yards filled with junk automobiles and other household items, and a general attitude of unconcern for the neighborhood's appearance.

A special clean-up campaign recently has helped remedy this situation and a feeling of neighborhood pride is beginning to develop in this group of homes occupied, primarily by renters. Absentee owners have been a major factor in this area's problems, and even they are beginning to see the merit in maintaining their properties properly.

Whitehall—

construction of apartments for the past three years, Whitehall appears to have more than its share of this kind of housing. Apartment concentrations in the area were built to serve the large work forces required by the industrial firms on the city's east side. The freeze is an attempt to bring about a proper ratio between homeowners and tenants.

According to Mayor Paul Haytcher, some of Whitehall's problems stem from the fact that "it was a village one day, and the next day it was the size of a city." Population growth between 1950 and 1960 was spectacular, and in some respects, encouraged by persons with no realization of the eventual problems which would accrue from the lack of regulations.

Presently, Whitehall officials are hoping to find a way to qualify for a grant of federal funds to finance preparation of a long-range Master Plan for the city. A start in this direction was made a few years ago, but the proposed plan was never adopted.

One big assist to solving the city's problems will come from the adoption of a city charter, approved by the voters on Nov. 8. The form of government in Whitehall stays basically the same, but now the city will be subject to home rule, rather than to the pleasure of the legislature as uncharitered communities are.

One current bone of contention in Whitehall is the so-called "strip" along the part of E. Main Street that bisects the city. According to Hayteher, there is too great a concentration of drinking establishments within a limited area.

Yet from the standpoint of the state's liquor control laws, there could be still others opened without exceeding the number allowed by the city's population count. Many of these places require extra police attention, and frequently inject a note of unpleasantness that is a nuisance and an embarrassment to a city that has tried to eliminate its major problems and change its image.

In the five-mile square area that is Whitehall, there is very little open area left for further industrial development. More industry of the kinds already in Whitehall would be welcome, but finding locations would be nearly impossible. The opening of the Outer Belt eventually will help solve some of the traffic congestion now in existence during peak traffic hours, but in the meantime, the city's approach has been strict enforcement of existing traffic control laws.

Much has been done in recent years to provide recreational facilities for Whitehall's residents, both children and adults. The Orton L. Davis Memorial Park, located on the east side of Whitehall, north of Main Street and west of Country Club Road, has been improved each year. During 1966, some $100,000 was spent to upgrade facilities, including a new shelter house and restrooms, baseball diamonds and a football field for Little League competition.

Senior Citizens have a building of their own to use next door to the City Hall. A recreational hall in the basement of City Hall has a full schedule of activities for residents of other ages. After school, there are dozens of youngsters there playing pingpong, dancing to records and generally enjoying themselves in a supervised atmosphere.

A full-time recreation director plans activities and makes sure the city's facilities are used to the fullest extent. Annual budget for recreation amounts to about $1 per resident, not including money spent for capital improvements.

What lies ahead for Whitehall? According to Haytcher, the city's growth will be limited somewhat by the fact that it is already surrounded by Columbus, leaving only a relatively small amount of undeveloped land.

Big Brother Association To Celebrate Big Brother Week

The Big Brother Association of Columbus will join with the International Association of Big Brothers in America Jan. 8-15 in celebrating National Big Brother Week.

The local Big Brother Association was organized in 1933 to "give individual boys personal attention, guidance, friendship and aid so as to help in their development to the highest type of American citizenship."

During the past year, 443 Columbus area men have served as Big Brothers to 584 boys who have lost their fathers. Each year, 1,200 Associate Members are needed for additional support.

In addition to supplying Big Brothers to fatherless boys, the association operates a summer camp in Hocking County which was attended by 565 boys last summer.

Big Brothers are needed especially in the South, East, Southeast and Southwest sections of Columbus and Franklin County. Interested men can contact the Big Brother Association of Columbus, 2014 Tuller-st, Columbus 43201.

Cards Lose To Maple Hts.; DeSales Second At Dayton

Maple Heights, one of the state's finest wrestling schools, turned down Worthington 28-12 last Friday but only after the Cardinals had scored more points on them than their nine previous foes this season.

Maple Heights, which has won 70 straight dual meets in rolling to a 15-year record of 145-17, has had 24 individual state mat champions in the past and posed a few candidates this year in winning 11 of the 14 events over the Cards.

Worthington picked up wins in the 120 division with Gary Wagner winning by a decision, in the 165 class, with John Washburn pinning his foe in 2:12 and in the heavyweight with Greg Voutyras winning by a 10-4 score.

Worthington's 145 pound dandy, Stan Zeigler, didn't make the trip due to illness.

Card mat tutor Roger Campbell reported that he was pleased with his group's performance and that a few breaks either way would have been the difference.

DESALES FINISHED second in the Dayton tournament held at Stebbins High School by posting 67 points, 30 point shy of Beavercreek's 97 point total.

Scoring points for DeSales were: 113 — Tim Gallagher third; 112 — Terry Arnold fourth; 120 — Steve Arnold first; 127 — Bob Feeney, second; 133 — Pat Fickell, fourth; 138 — Jim Hassey, fifth; 145 —Rick Green, fifth; 154 — Rick Claprood, fifth; 165 — Ron Dardinger, third; and 165 —Jan Rozanski, third.

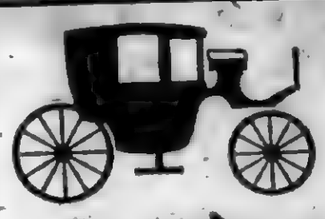
One of the greatest features of the Holiday Season is the words of greeting we receive from our far flung friends. Out of the far north came a pleasant letter from an old friend—Jim Thurston.

Jim was a long-time owner of my favorite Canadian Lodge, Kenogaming, outside of Timmons, Ontaria. Three years ago, he sold the fishing camp to the Lehners and moved farther north.

With the walleyes, pike and trout getting in line to take your bait at Kenogaming, I asked Jim flat-out why he would leave such a hunting and fishing paradise.

WHEN I opened his letter last week, I got the answer. According to the International Spin Fishing Association (the keeper of the official records) Jim has taken the biggest Lake Trout ever boated with four pound test line. It weighed an amazing 37 lbs.-12 ounces. He further states that during July and August, his guests landed about forty Lake Trout that ran 25 to 42 pounds.



His fishing camp sets on Tazin Lake, between Uranium City and the Saskatchewan-Alberta border and just about ten miles south of the Northwest Territory.

THE MOOSE and bear are thick around Saskamac Lodge but Jim writes that it is open only to residents of Saskatchewan. He thinks that it will open to non-residents soon or the critters will run off all the people. Should it be opened up, there will be some gigantic Boone and Crocket records broken by the moose taken out. That area seems to have all the ingredients necessary to make hatracks out of horns.

If my luck holds and I sell enough genseng, I'll attend the Outdoor Writers Association convention next June at Prince Albert Park then fly on up to Saskamac Lodge to try my hand at some of that monster fishing. Besides the Lake Trout, Jim has an unlimited supply of northern pike, walleyes and the exotic Arctic grayling.

THE ONLY thing to stand in my way will be the opening of the territory to outside hunters. Then I'll bide my time and get up there during the moose season. If you are jaded with success here in Ohio or disgusted with the lack of it, consider for a minute the Saskamac Lodge.

With careful nurturing of your genseng money and poker dividends, you could be headed there next season. The price is half what the more plush lodges ask and the plane fare is right.

LET'S KNIT

It is amazing the solutions that can be found in a pinch. Mrs. Gordon of Chicago, Ill., was recently on a trip. She had a knitted shell which was the only item suitable for wearing at an evening dinner. Unfortunately she had spilled something on it and found herself in a situation — dreaded by all of us women — of having nothing proper to wear. She washed the garment but was afraid the garment would not have time enough to dry to be worn for the occasion even though she got most of the moisture out by rolling it on a towel. But Mrs. Gordon did not "throw in the shell." Instead she threw the shell into a portable hairdryer she had brought along. She tossed it around every few minutes and in no time her garment was dry, soft, fluffy and new as ever.

Now why didn't I think of this! I do this to dry my stockings in a hurry. Husbands should appreciate this. Now you don't need to pack so many extra cloths to take along on your trip, gals — just insist on taking your hairdryer.

And So It Grows

You can water African violets either from the top or bottom of the container according to Extension floriculturists at Ohio State University. But if you water from the top use lukewarm water since cold water spots the leaves. Watering by setting the pot in a saucer of water is only satisfactory if you give them no more water than can be taken up immediately.

For best results, keep African violets at temperatures of 60-75 degrees and in an east or north window. If you can't keep yours in a window, you'll need some kind of artificial light. A two-tube fluorescent fixture a foot above the plants is enough for an area 2½x4 feet.

For a potting soil, use half soil and half organic matter. When first potting, mix a level teaspoon of 4-12-4 fertilizer or a similar analysis per two quarts of soil. After that, one-fourth teaspoon every month or two from March to October will be enough. Repot only when the plant stops growth. Otherwise repot full grown plants once a year.

To start African violets, put a leaf and its stem into sand up to the base of the leaf blade and small shoots develop. This usually takes 6-8 weeks. Or you can start new plants by putting a leaf stem in an inch of water in a glass in a north window. Pot as soon as roots are nearly a half inch long.

Here's a list of common problems with African violets, plus possible causes and controls:

- Flower buds form but the flowers drop off — Usually caused by gas leaking from stove or heater.
- Lower leaves wilt and plant eventually dies—May be caused by overwatering. When watering from the bottom, excess salts on the edge of the pot may cause the symptom. Plastic or glazed pots prevent this, or you can cover edges of pot with cellophane tape.
- White cottony masses on leaves and stems—indicate the mealy bug is present. No common spray is effective. Either wash plant with soft brush and soap suds or kill with alcohol applied with cotton swab.
- New leaves are small and curled or flowers, if present, are distorted — Indicates a tiny, almost miscroscopic mite. Use kelthane according to manufacturer's directions.

Also isolate the mite infested plants until all pests are killed. If the plants aren't worthy, destroy any infected ones.

- Failure to flower—May be caused by plants not getting enough light, too many leaves in the center of the plant (remove a few occasionally), overwatering, or temperature too high or low.

KEGLERS' KORNER

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Dave Sommerfeld of San Diego, Calif., is in a class by himself when it comes to bowling "firsts." A 161 average bowler, he recently rolled San Diego's first 300 game of the season. It occurred on the first night of league play and it came in the first game of the series, and was rolled on lane 1 at Aztec Bowl. The name of his league? The First National Bank.

AND ON top nationally with 1125 is the team of Barb Mercure (244), Petie Frazio (234), Nellie Glandon (222), Jerry Baker (226) and Ethel Wiese (199). This was at 3-C.

Add greats: Harry Gossner's 278 and 706, Ron Spohn's 727 (258-244-225), Ed Thomas' 700, Ron Smith's 718, Frank Boyd's 737 (267-266-203) and Dick Miner with 703. Note also Gene Hoffman's 277.

AND SO comes a new year —normally a time for resolutions and thinking back. I want to thank all the readers who have written such fine letters to this column. Yes — we've resolved to try to keep pleasing you — so keep on sending your news, views and questions.

Don't forget — January 20 is closing date for the WIBC Championship Tournament. Get your entry blank from your league secretary.

IN & AROUND TOWN

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

Theater Notes

By CLAUDIA ELKINS

Christmas Day marked the opening of Walt Disney's "Follow Me, Boys" starring Fred MacMurray and Vera Miles.

Children of all ages stood in line to see this story of love and certainly could not have been disappointed as reel after reel came over the screen.

The opening is quite easy to foretell why it is happening as Lem Siddons decides to give up traveling with a band to settle down in a small town.

Almost immediately Vera Miles is on the screen, through an incident with a baseball she is soon aware of a stranger in town.

Knowing nothing about Boy Scouts, but a lot about boys, Lem volunteers to be a scoutmaster as an opportunity to woo Vera Miles.

Both the Scouts and Miss Miles became Lem Siddon's life. After 30 years of giving and sharing love, Lem is made a Scoutmaster Emeritus with an honorary day in his name. His small town salutes him as face after face from some 30 years parade behind him singing "Follow Me, Boys."

Many scenes are funny although a few are unbelievable, most scenes will water the eyes as boy after boy becames a man through the understanding and love of their Scoutmaster.

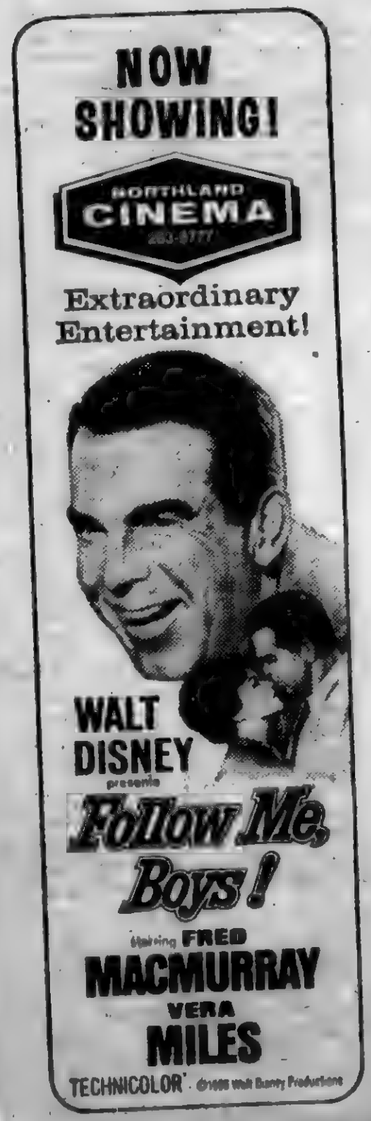
This movie is for every age, as only Walt Disney would have it. This movie is a heartwarming story with the problems of life being solved with the love of life.

Morse Road has a new addition, Loew's Morse Road Theater. This theater, a neat duplicate to the Loew's Arlington Theater, opened the doors on Christmas Day with the movie "After The Fox" with Peter Sellers as versatile as usual.

Aside from his artful concept as an Italian he has five other disguises. The sixth one is soap. Enough said.

These disguises are used to evade the police who are chasing "The Fox" for breaking out of jail.

Always alert and prepared Peter Sellers manages to capture the audience, although the story is weak with no real plot.



The plot is to bring stolen gold bars into Italy — Seller's job is to arrange this—clever he is as he becomes a movie director.

Through perceptive persuasion Sellers allows Victor Mature, an aging actor to play the main lead in his film.

Slapstick comes to mind in the chase scene involving cars, cars and more cars. Near the end the police are following police while the thief goes foggily on his way.

This is a Peter Sellers movie, without him this would be just a movie.

TIPS ON MAN-PAMPERING

There are more ways to do it than preparing special foods or even a good cup of coffee. It's done most successfully by becoming the woman whose attentions would flatter him if he could ever be flattered by any woman's attentions other than yours. You do it by playing Siren and you've no idea how much fun you could get out of it. The first step in to put yourself into the mood with a new glamorize haircut and hairstyle to match.

ADVENTURE AWAY FROM THE EVERYDAY

Recently I've been trying to decide where to go and what to do on a long weekend vacation. I want it to be a rest but I want to have fun too. I think one of my patrons has solved the problem for me. When she called in for her appointment she asked me to leave 2 hours free for her. It was all very mysterious! When she got here she asked me to change her hair color from warm brown to ash blonde and to completely restyle her hair. Then we plucked her eyebrows into a new shape. Just as she was about to leave she told me that she was going to check into a beautiful lively motel 15 miles away from home as a weekend guest. It wasn't one of those Faraway Places they sing about but everything considered she was certainly getting away from the everyday.

DOUX COMME UN BAISER WEICH WIE EIN KUSS SUAVE COMO UN BESO DOLCE COME UN BACIO SOFT AS A KISS

There are some 152 more languages to say it. As you will have guessed since this is coming from me I'm talking about your hair. How long since you have had a hair treatment? They are so inexpensive and take so little time it's hard to understand why more women don't think of this as a beauty must. If we are too busy to ask you about it the next time you come in be sure to mention it to us.

RUDY VALENTINO

Some of you will remember him and those of you who don't will be hearing about the Valentino hairstyle soon, as soon as the the new musical about him hits New York's Broadway.

AFTER YOU — Panther Steve Sidlo looks leary about what appears to be a courteous 'after you' offer from Grandview's Jim Burchfield. Number 22 for Pleasant View is Joel Hendricks. The Bobcats weren't as courteous during the evening as they handled P-V 80-60 in the Ready Christmas tourney.

Ending the old year right, Judy Dabe (a 155-averager) ripped a big 682 series (220-254-208) for William Miller Builders at Main Lanes. Breyfogle Builders came up with a gigantic 3181 in the Rainbow Classic. Add Bob Brown's 761 (277-246-238) for Bargainland at Amos, Barbara Hern with a 657 for Howard Cleaners at Gahanna, Gary Slyh and his 256-235-214 for a 705 for L and M Electric at Wink-O and Larry Reiser rolling a 278-697 for Jim Rea Electric at Rainbow. These add up to all around bowling all around town.

Juanita Ditrick's honor at Olentangy is well deserved for her work with bowling for retarded and crippled children.

Speaking of 300's. I have been told that a perfect game is one with no open frames and that a 300 game should really be called a perfect score. It's a bit technical, but I think there's a point there.

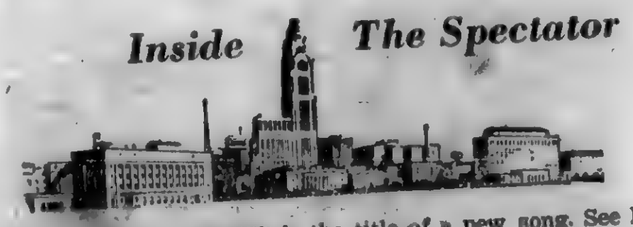
Four Bexley and Whitehall men are serving as directors of the Men's Special Gifts Solicitation Committee for the 1967 Heart Fund campaign. They are Phil M. Midlack, 292 S. Stanwood-rd; M. R. Hausman, 2739 Bryden-rd; Dr. Jack S. Silberstein, 137 S. Merkle-rd, and Charles S. Murray, 4435 Melroy-av. They are among 15 directors, each with a five-member team seeking special gifts for the fight against heart and blood vessel diseases.

Schools For Sale

The Whitehall Board of Education will attempt to unload the aging East Broad Street and East Main Street elementary schools at public auction on Feb. 4. Up for sale to the highest bidder are the 10-room school and 3.68 acres of land on E. Broad and the 20-room school and 7.07 acres of land on E. Main. Both plots are considered extremely valuable for commercial development. The board has reserved the right to refuse bids if it feels none are high enough. The new owners will take possession of the buildings in 18-24 months.



Campaign Booming

Cash and pledges totaling more than $150,000 have been received so far in Franklin Law School's "Campaign Toward Greatness" according to Dean John W. McCormac. McCormac predicted that the three-year goal of $300,000 may be reached within a year. The campaign began last November. He said the largest single gift, consisting of property worth approximately $80,000, came from an anonymous donor. Chairman of the campaign is C. Russell Thompson, a 1946 Franklin Law School graduate.

Dog Tag Deadline

The deadline for purchasing dog tags is Friday, Jan. 20, according to the Franklin County Humane Society. Applications may be made at the Humane Society's Animal Shelter, 2770 Groveport-pk, daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. or at the County Auditor's office Monday through Friday. Applications by mail will be honored if postmarked no later than midnight Jan. 20 and if a complete description of the dog (age, sex, breed, color, long or short hair) along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope and the proper fee is included. Dog tags cost $2 and kennel fees are $10.

O'SHAUGHNESSY GOES FOR AT-LARGE SEAT

Haytcher Will Seek Re-Election

By BOB TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

Whitehall Mayor Paul J. Haytcher will seek re-election and Democratic Councilman Gilbert H. O'Shaughnessy will give up a relatively safe Fourth Ward seat to run for councilman-at-large in the May 2 Democratic primary.

Although firm decisions have not as yet been made, reliable sources indicated that O'Shaughnessy will move into the at-large race so that Whitehall Democrats can field what they term a "well-balanced ticket."

At stake in November will be all four elected city offices. Of the four, three are currently held by Democrats and all three incumbents are expected to seek re-election. They are Haytcher, City Solicitor James Toomey and City Auditor Walter Helber.

Helber and Toomey were advised by County Prosecutor C. Howard Johnson this week that the new city charter abolished their terms, forcing them to run again.

In the council race, all three incumbent Democrats will seek re-election, with O'Shaughnessy attempting to move up to one of three at-large seats.

With the filing deadline just three weeks away, the Democratic ticket should shape up like this:

Haytcher, 645 Ross-rd, will seek re-election for mayor. Helber, 849 S. Yearling-rd, will try again for auditor while Toomey, 4309 Kumler-rd, will seek re-election as solicitor.

Most likely Democratic candidate for city treasurer to oppose incumbent Francis Shaeffer is Layton Feiber, 1056 Erickson-av, who unsuccessfully opposed Shaeffer in 1965.

In the council races, Marvin H. Levine, 439 Bernhard-rd, is seen as a sure shot to seek re-election as the only incumbent Democrat holding an at-large seat.

His running mates will be chosen from among a large group of potential candidates, although O'Shaughnessy, 746 S. Yearling-rd, should gain a primary victory without much difficulty.

At least five names are being discussed for the third at-large spot on the ticket and Haytcher has indicate he would favor an open primary, giving all five a chance to get exposure.

Most mentioned to date are:

• Lewis Bower, 215 Maplewood-rd, who was defeated in Ward One two years ago by incumbent Republican Lester Ballenger, who will seek the GOP mayoralty nomination this year.

• Robert Garnon, 4250 Mayflower-dr, who apparently is not yet firmly committed to running.

• Patrick Mann, owner and operator of a barber shop on Beechwood Road and a resident of 4165 Elbern-av.

• William C. Schoonover, 3744 Washburn-rd, another unsuccesful council candidate in 1965.

There is also talk that if Schoonover doesn't run, Whitehall Democratic leaders will attempt to interest his wife, Sue, in the primary in an effort to

Litton To Return To Whitehall Home

Whitehall's Marine Cpl. G. E. (Gil) Litton will return home this month after three years in the Marine Corps, including a year spent with the Fourth and Seventh Marines in Vietnam.

Litton will be discharged Jan. 30 from Quantico, Va., and will return to his wife, Sharon, and son, G.E., Jr., who live at 4070 E. Mound-st in Whitehall.

Litton enlisted in the Marines in January, 1963, and spent his first overseas tour with the Third Marines in Okinawa, Japan, the Philippines, Taiwan and Hong Kong.

On May 23, 1964, he began his second tour overseas, serving with Co. I, Third Battalion, Seventh Marines, at Chu Lai, Vietnam, and later with Co. G, Second Battalion, Fourth Marines, also in Vietnam.

He returned to the United States in May, 1965, seeing his son, then 11 months old, for the first time.

Fatherless Boys Looking For Big Brother Help

Somewhere in your neighborhood there's a boy who needs your help.

He can't tell you he needs that help because he doesn't know how.

HE DOESN'T look any different from any other boy and from all his outward manner, likes, hopes and dreams, he might resemble your son, brother or nephew.

But there's one big difference. This boy doesn't have a father.

He's missing out on quite a few of those important things on a boy's path to manhood—experiences which seem meaningful only when discovered and shared with adult male companionship.

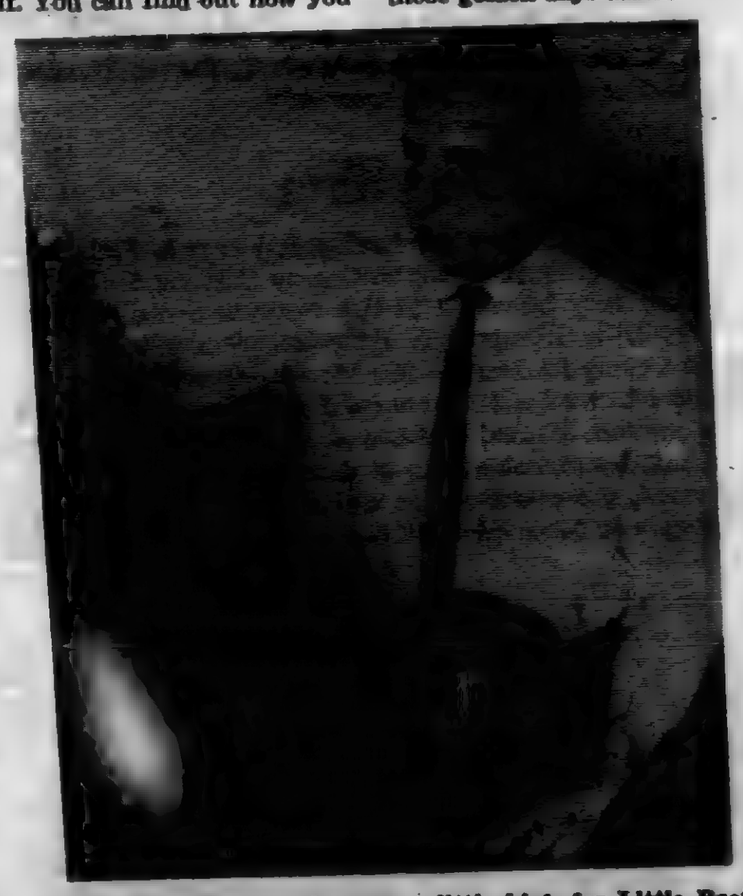
JAN. 8 through 15 is national Big Brother Week in this country and Canada.

The local Big Brother Association (second largest of 85 national agencies) provided that necessary companionship this past year for some 584 fatherless boys by means of 443 active members.

But each year the waiting list grows longer. Today there is an urgent need for men in the South, East, West, Southeast and Southwest section of our city and county.

AND THIS is where you come in.

Most probably you've heard about Big Brothers. You know it's a non-profit organization with a fine summer camp for boys (served 365 this past summer).



In fact, you probably know of a man who is already a Big Brother. If you do, he'll tell you your expense as a member is measured in time, not in dollars.

AND HE'LL tell you that you'll never make a better investment.

Don't put off the rewarding experience of giving of yourself. You can find out how you can become a Big Brother by contacting the local office at 2104 Tuller-st (294-4423).

For the young, each day brings a new discovery, another lesson in growing up.

DON'T LET some boy near you spend too many more of those golden days alone.

SOME OF THE branches are a little high for Little Brother Doug Goldfarb, 8, of 1044 Kellner-rd, but his Big Brother, Don Cobb, of 3952 Andrus, is right there to lend a helping hand. You can extend that warm Christmas spirit of giving all year long by becoming one of many needed Big Brothers this year. Find out how you can apply by contacting the local office (294-4423).

East-Eastmoor In City Feature

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

The City race picks up championship tempo in the next three weeks and from that step-up the win, place and show teams may be established. But as far as the Eastmoor Warriors are concerned, their title bound express is only on one track. The one that will take them into Tiger Country about 8 p.m. Friday for an important schoolboy clash with the unbeaten and formidable East Tigers.

Bob Hart's smooth operators, who have rolled up eight straight wins at the expense of four unbeaten teams, will try to stop the once-licked Warriors who thrive on the fast break and a tight man-to-man defense.

"I IMAGINE that they will try to out run us," Hart said, "because the fast break game has been theirs thus far."

Hart also figured that the two Warriors who must be stopped are Eric Walz, the slick Eastmoor shot, and Jack Parry, the strong Warrior rebounder at 6-3.

"THESE TWO appear to be their mainstays," Bob said, "and must be cut off."

Eastmoor's Bill Courtney looks for both East's size and press to give his group the most fits Friday.

SAID BILL: "They are real big and have a tremendous press. We have got to beat their press to beat them."

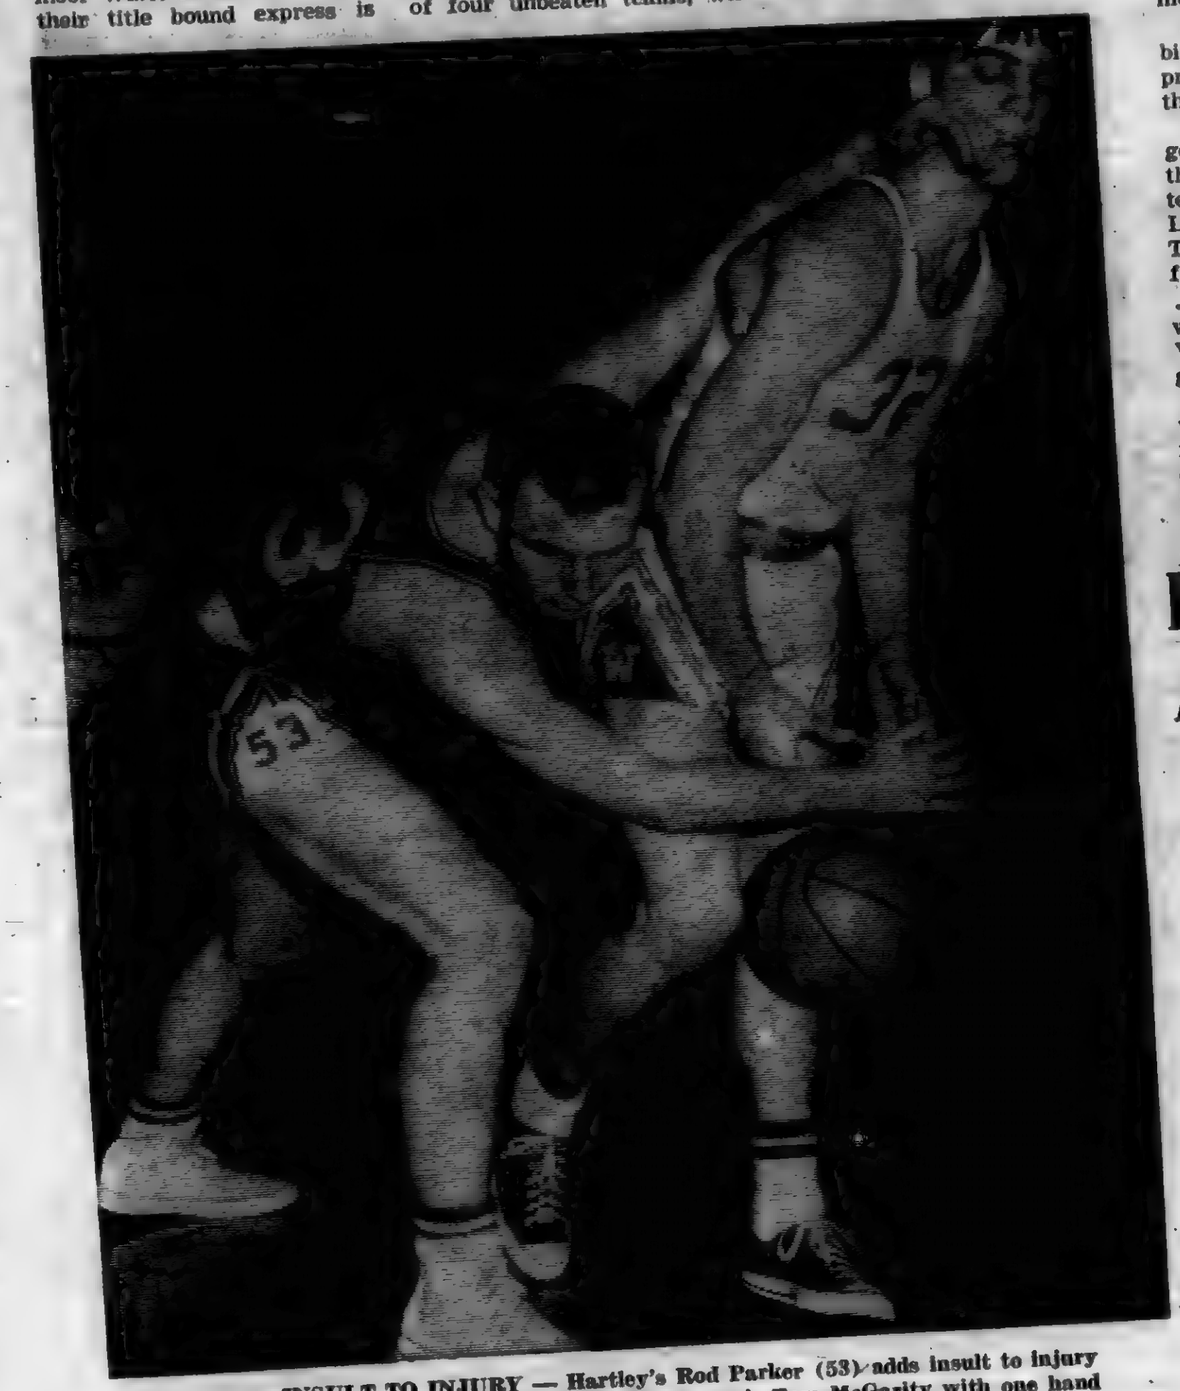
East's press has made some good opposition say "uncle" this year including northern teams Cuyahoga Falls, Canton Lincoln and East Liverpool. The Tigers scratched all three from the undefeated category.

..AS EAST Liverpool, East went without the services of Vance Carr, the Tigers 6-3 guard.

Hart was impressed with the relief play of Howard Harris, the bulky Bengal grid quarterback, who managed 13 points in his first start of the season.

"HE DID a real good job, hitting six for nine," Bob said.

Courtney hailed Lance Grear, who had a hot hand in Friday's league win over Whetstone, Jack Parry and Jerry Casson with praise for last weekend's play. Also not to be overlooked was Walz' 30 point effort against the Braves.



RED FEELS that Randy Yoakum will be in good company guarding the taller East crew as the 6-0 senior has had to give away inches to opponents every week.

ACADEMY COULD mess things up in the Franklin County League Friday with a win over Canal Winchester (8-2).

The Indians are led by a trio of sweet shooting veterans headed by the 17.4 average of Kim Black and the 15.2 firing of four year vet Vic Argobright.

Dick Whitmer is a close third with a 14.7 scoring log

INSULT TO INJURY — Hartley's Rod Parker (53) adds insult to injury Friday as he bats away the ball from Watterson's Tom McGarity with one hand while inadvertently cuffing the Eagle cager with the other. Hawks added further insult later by handing Watterson its first seasonal setback with 48-39 victory, an CCL opener for both quintets. (Staff photo by Tim O'Brien).

Hawk Swimmers Could Assume 'Spoiler' Role

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

If their opener last week was any indication, Hartley's Hawk swimmers could just turn out to be the COSL "spoiler" this season.

The Hawks, who managed but one victory in eight outings last year, pushed Bexley to the wire before dropping a 51-45 meet.

WITH SEVEN lettermen back to bolster their hopes the Hawk splashers might prove last week's narrow setback wasn't a fluke.

Heading the pack of vets is senior Mike Griener, a backstroke and individual medley specialist.

Other returnees include seniors Pat McKinley (freestyler) and Mark Haban (breaststroker) and juniors John Gordon (freestyle), Larry McFadden (butterfly), Steve Downs (f.s.) and diver Mike Lane.

OTHER TOP Hawk prospects include seniors Ken Mann (breaststroke) and Mike Young (f.s.), juniors Mike Whitlatch (backstroke) and Tom Weisenberger (breaststroke, diver) and soph freestyler Tom Mooney.

Best looking of the freshman swimmers are Chris Ey and Steve Hanf.

In relay events, the Hawks look strongest in the medley test where Griener, Haban, McFadden and McKinley team up.

THE QUARTET won that event in 2:02 flat in the opener loss to Bexley last week.

The Hawks evened their '67 record Saturday by downing Lancaster Public, 49-46, behind McKinley's double win in the 200 and 400-yd freestyle events.

Worthington, P-V, Westerville Invite Titles Top Mat Plums

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

With the holidays behind them, area grapplers dig into the second half of '66-'67 mat schedules this week with three big Invitationals highest on the local interest list.

All three are scheduled Saturday at Worthington, Pleasant View and Westerville.

CARDINAL mentor Roger Campbell has lined up some of the top wrestling squads in the state for Worthington's Invite.

Joining the host Cards will be Franklin Heights, Whitehall and Circleville of local notability and such statewide powers as Martins Ferry, Dayton Stebbins, Sandusky and Toledo DeVilbiss.

The ninth annual event (Worthington is defending champ) will get under way with prelims at noon, with finals scheduled to begin at 6 p.m.

ADMISSION will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students at each session.

Trophies will be presented to the winning team, team runner-up, each weight class winner and the Invitational's "most outstanding wrestler."

Medals will go to the second, third and fourth place individuals with ribbons awarded to fifth place finishers.

THE TOURNEY will feature one of the state's finest schoolboy grapplers in 165-lb. Steve Scipio from Martins Ferry.

Scipio was selected as the Invite's "most outstanding" grappler last year.

Coach Bob Mowery also has a fine field set up for his seventh annual Invitational at Pleasant View.

JOINING the Panthers will be Marion-Franklin, Bishop

Will Bexley, Grandview Join Mid-Eight Loop?

The Spectator learned this week that the Mid-Eight athletic league will shortly be back to full strength with the addition of two schools to replace departed members Gahanna-Lincoln and Westerville.

The Spectator's source described the admittance of Bexley and Grandview into the Mid-Eight League as "imminent."

Both schools are presently aligned with the four-school Buckeye Athletic Conference with Delaware and Urbana — all four comprising one-half of the old Central Buckeye League.

The Mid-Eight League contained Hilliard, Groveport, Grove City, Mifflin, Marysville, London, Gahanna-Lincoln and Westerville until late last month when the latter two schools left the circuit to inaugurate the Ohio Capital Conference with Whitehall, Reynoldsburg and Worthington (September 1968).

The Spectator source expected the Mid-Eight League to officially accept Bexley and Grandview at a meeting this week.

Gubernatorial Challenge

In his second Inaugural Address Monday morning, Gov. James A. Rhodes made a series of promises that, if kept, could finally move Ohio up from its embarrassingly low status in the fields of education and mental hygiene.

The governor promised that education would get considerably more money from the state in the next four years and also vowed to increase the salaries of mental hygiene employes and upgrade treatment facilities.

This is the first time in recent memory that the governor has recognized education and mental hygiene as problems unto themselves. His favorite ploy is the past has been his theory that more jobs will cure unemployment, and mental illness, and a ridiculous variety of social ills.

Rhodes' acceptance of these problems as individual entities is a step in the right direction.

But the governor now has to prove that he means what he says and that he and the Republican-dominated 107th General Assembly will provide the needed money.

Even floating another bond issue won't increase any salaries—and salaries are where the state is hurting the most, particularly in the mental hygiene field.

The Spectator calls on the governor to carry out his promises as quickly as possible.

Cruel Hoax

For the second time in two months, the 20th Army Corps at Fort Hayes has asked area news media to inform the public of proper notification procedures regarding Vietnam casualties.

The reason for the request is frightening. There has been an increase in the number of "hoax" telephone calls placed to the wives and parents of servicemen serving in Vietnam.

The Army reports these hoaxes are delivered by telephone, telegram or, in some cases, in person.

It is a sick mind that must stoop to falsely telling someone that a loved one in a war zone has been killed or injured.

The Army says it can't figure out why anyone would want to unduly alarm the families of Vietnam troops. There is no financial gain involved. It can only be the product of a sick, sadistic mind.

With so many Central Ohioans now serving in Southeast Asia. The Spectator feels this is a problem worth doing something about.

Anyone getting what he thinks may be a hoax call is urged to call the Military Personnel Division of the 20th Corps' Adjutant General section at 221-5861, extension 238 or 235, during the day, or the Ft. Hayes Staff Duty Officer at 221-5861, extension 417, during the evening and on weekends

Praise To Police

The Spectator Newspapers have been quick to criticize the Columbus Police Department in recent weeks for what we feel has been improper handling of several murder cases.

But today we feel compelled to praise Chief Robert Baus and his department for its work in attempting to solve the baffling triple murder on the Hilltop.

These newspapers certainly will not condemn young Harry Levine, Jr., until he has been tried.

But we feel that police acted judiciously and in the best interest of all concerned in filing murder charges against the son and grandson of the victims.

Columbus police have obviously met their responsibilties in this case and are to be commended for it.

'Ramblin' Rose'

When Congress resumes work, it may ask the Federal Communications Commission to tell TV stations and networks to knock off their show-biz vote projections on election night.

A growing number of Congressmen feel that these things unduly influence elections. The television industry's rejoinder is sort of wild. It says that if "trend announcements," etc., influence, say, the West Coast, where the polls are open long after the East's are closed, then the West Coast polls should close sooner.

The broadcasters seem to forget that the object of an election is to select government officials, not to provide TV with an exciting, neatly-packaged show. Voting times should be set to convenience the greatest number of citizens, not simply the television industry.

MICROSCOOPS: The Military Sea Transportation Service, a government agency, has sent out a direct-mail letter pleading for secretaries. The envelope was addressed to "Occupant," with Washington street addresses.

Five Congressmen got married during the 89th Congress. They were Reps. Stanley Greigg (D., Iowa), Jed Johnson (D., Okla.), J. William Stanton (R., Ohio) Edwin Reinecke (R. The mallet for writing the mawkish song of the year should be brought down on the head of Gladys Shelley, who turned out "Momma and Poppa Are Breaking Up." The publicity blurb about it says that kids "bring Miss Shelley's song into their home and play it for their mothers and fathers who might be planning to break up. It gives them every reason, while tugging at their heartstrings, why they should remain together in a home with love and affection."

SLIGHTEMS: Speaking of songs, a man came into the office yesterday and said he'd written one for the GOP. It was to the tune of "Rambling Rose" and it went like this: "Romney-Rhodes, Romney-Rhodes, how we nee-eed you, Heaven knows . . ."

I might have heard more, but after the first verse I punched him.

Still No Signs

To the Editor:

A few months ago, someone signing himself "Harriet East Side Motorist" complained about the absence of speed limit signs on the new East Freeway.

I agreed with "Motorist" then and I still do, but nothing has been done about it even though the freeway has been open to Hamilton Road for months.

There have been several serious accidents on the freeway and I am sure that too much speed must have been a cause of some of them. Doesn't it seem silly that such a simple thing as speed limit signs can't be placed on a superhighway.

I certainly hope somebody at City Hall can see to it that we get speed limit signs before someone is killed.

Get Rid Of Junkers

To the Editor:

Why, oh why, can't something be done to get rid of all the junk cars that seem to be appearing all over our city?

I have been told that Columbus has a junk car ordinance but apparently it is difficult to enforce, because junkers still line many side streets and especially alleys in our area.

It seems to me that a junk car is not only an eyesore but a health hazard. Rats could breed in the cars and it could be very dangerous for children to play near these junkers.

I certainly hope people who see these cars day after day will start reporting them to the police so that something can be done about them.

Cheers To Band

To the Editor:

I would like to add another voice to the many congratulations received by the Gahanna-Lincoln High School Band on its performance in the Orange Bowl Parade in Miami on New Year's weekend.

It must have been thrilling for the youngsters to take part in a nationally-famous festival like the Orange Bowl.

And it certainly brings tremendous credit to Gahanna. When a small suburban town can get such national recognition, it is an exciting thing for its residents.

Let us hope that Gahanna may always be represented by such talented and impressive youngsters.

robert burdock ★ Trial Balloon Drifting ★

"Chet Arthur President of the United States? Good God!"

Such was the reaction of a friend of Vice-President Chester Arthur when he learned that President James A. Garfield had been shot.

It was somewhat akin to the reaction in the Capital City to a recent headline which proclaimed "Rhodes To Seek National Spot."

The story really wasn't an announcement that Governor James A. Rhodes would seek the GOP nomination for president or vice-president. It was more of a trial balloon which no one took seriously enough to shoot down. Rhodes neither confirmed nor denied the report, thus allowing the balloon to drift.

But it had to have a purpose other than something to print on a dull day.

It's doubtful if Rhodes, even in gastric dreams induced by over ingestion of cheese, potato chips and tomato juice, conceives himself as presidential timber. Even the flush of his recent re-election victory must have paled by now with sober analysis.

Armed only with $2 million in campaign funds, plus the often misguided but enthusiastic endorsement of almost every major newspaper in the state, and a strong national Republican wind at his back, incumbent Governor Rhodes contrived to beat an unknown Lucas County state senator by 50,000 less votes than when he won his first term.

More likely, Rhodes is jockeying for a rail position from which to exercise his thrust as a king-maker at the forthcoming Republican national convention.

Rhodes showed himself to be pretty much of a bush leaguer at national politics during the last GOP convention, and he certainly didn't win any new friends at that level.

Armed with the big Ohio delegation's votes in his pocket, Rhodes was in a formidable position prior to the last GOP convention. But he blew it by releasing the Ohio delegation even before he reached the convention and the Ohio votes went to Goldwater.

Cynically convinced that Goldwater would carry Ohio and the nation on the strength of a "white backlash vote" which never materialized, Rhodes freed his delegation prematurely in spite of promises to Ray Bliss and Pennsylvania Governor E. William Scranton.

This was the same Rhodes who at the National Governors Conference in Cleveland just that summer was a leader in the Stop Goldwater movement.

When campaign time rolled around, Rhodes sniffed a shifting wind and backed away from Goldwater who lost Ohio by more than a million votes.

Reviewing Rhodes' part in "The Making of the President 1964," Pulitzer Prize Author William H. White refers to the Ohio governor as "a courthouse politician whose promises and commitments are now held at general discount among high level Republican politicians."

Jim Rhodes a kingmaker? Possibly.

Jim Rhodes President of the United States? Good God!

william s. white ★ Vice-Presidential Candidate ★

WHITE

If the gathering contest for the Republican Presidential nomination of next year finds a notably crowded field, precisely the opposite may be said of the Vice-Presidential designation. For this there is one open candidate and one alone—and an amazing frank one, at that—in Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York.

It is an unwritten rule in politics that no man "runs" for the Vice-Presidency. Aspirants are supposed only to stand around looking wistful, hoping for favor from whomever may head the ticket, but never, never to say anything, not even in confidence in a sealed room at midnight.

This rule Javits has broken, with gusts of candor blowing like a high wind through dusty political folklore. Whatever else may be said, he has done a rare service to candor with this simple sentence: "I think I am entitled to national consideration."

Elementary fairness compels the reply: Entitled to consideration, so he is. This is not simply to say, of course, that he ought to be nominated, for that is solely the business of the 1968 Republican National Convention. But it is to say that he has clearly earned eligibility.

For Javits is both a significant politician in party terms and an undeniably useful Senator, though neither of these things could once have been said. There was a time, in his newness to the Senate, when he was so doctrinaire as to be ineffectual in a forum where no man succeeds simply by being so uniquely and eternally right about everything as to isolate himself from that process of rational compromise which lies at the heart of all important legislation.

But the old days and the old attitudes are long gone under the erosion of reality. The Javits of today is an effective legislator and an exponent of that toleration of other views which is the last indispensable to free government.

And he is more. Steadfastly and under extraordinary heavy pressures, considering that New York is the center of the new isolationism-pacifism, he has spoken for a responsible foreign policy as well. No other Republican liberal has so consistently, so stoutly and so usefully supported the hard, unavoidable national obligation to stand firm against Communist aggression in Vietnam. Javits could have finessed this issue, as other Senators with strong peacenik constituencies have done.

In his maneuvering toward the 1968 convention he stands on firm ground in the party sense, since the great bulk of national Republican leaders speak, as he does, for continued resistance to Communist military expansionism in the Southeast Asia. Nor is he tying himself to any single Republican Presidential possibility, nor yet to any single idealogical segment of the party. Should Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, for example, somehow obtain the Presidential nomination, Javits of course would be automatically out of it for Vice-President. The G.O.P. would hardly consider nominating two men from the same state. But should the top designation go elsewhere, as is far more likely, the credentials of Javits would be substantial, either with Gov. George Romney of Michigan at the head of the ticket or with former Vice-President Richard Nixon in the top spot.

Until the time of Dwight Eisenhower as President nobody paid any mind to the Vice-Presidency. Mr. Eisenhower's two serious illnesses changed all that and the Vice-Presidency then became, and continued under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, an office of meaning and vitality in its own right. Never again will informed men refer slightingly of that post And this reality Javits is not only accepting but acting upon right out loud and right out in public.

barry goldwater ★ Barry's Private War ★

GOLDWATER

HONOLULU—At this Pacific edge of our republic I am beginning a brief, personal and private tour of East and Southeast Asia.

But first I'd like to get a few facts on the record. I am not taking this trip in the spirit of those instant insiders who seem to feel that a racetrack tour necessarily makes your opinions better than anybody else's. This is particularly true with regard to Vietnam.

The war there is unquestionably the most broadly covered hostility in history. Just setting foot on the scene does not assure any "inside" knowledge. It does assure a chance to observe at first-hand some of the most valorous and professional soldiers we ever have fielded—but their professionalism and valor are scarcely secrets that have to be seen to be believed.

Secondly, I want to keep this trip away from the official whirl that seems to sweep up so many visitors in this area. Thirdly, and most importantly, I want to review some points of the war in Vietnam so that there can be no mistake about them — at the outset or the conclusion of this trip.

In one respect it is true that I have steadily supported the administration in its decision to step-up the war effort. It is even true that the administration is following some of the points laid down in my 1964 campaign.

It is not true, however, that this support is without reservation or serious question. These reservations and questions have to do with the basic principles involved and not with any of the specific details of combat or tactics upon which I might want to comment as a direct result of my present trip.

For instance, I do not feel that the administration has made clear what our ultimate goal is in Vietnam. The President has spoken of assuring that the people of South Vietnam "make their own way" without outside interference. But he also has spoken of a postwar government that would represent "all elements" of Vietnamese politics.

Does this mean a deliberate policy of encouraging a coalition with the Communist elements? If so, it simply means that we would be willing to permit the eventual political subversion of South Vietnam—with its ultimate purpose of turning over to communism one of the world's richest grain-producing areas.

Beyond that there are deeply disturbing questions that any thoughtful observer must ask about the place of this war in the over-all picture of world conflict. If it is considered in a vacuum, as a problem that can be solved without any reference to the total problem, it is like trying to cure malaria by swatting mosquitos and not spraying the swamp.

Such questions cannot be answered by a quick trip to any part of the world. They can only be answered in Washington.

Is Frank Fetch City Resident?

Neither Frank Fetch, recently announced candidate for City Council, nor the Franklin County Board of Elections seem too positive where his residence is.

Fetch, who needs to establish Columbus residence for his political candidacy, is currently engaged in restoration of a single family dwelling he owns at 763 Mohawk.

HE STATED MONDAY he plans to move in his family (his wife and his father-in-law) as soon as practical, and that in the meantime he occasionally spends a night in the Mohawk abode rather than in his Gahanna residence where he has lived for a number of years.

His opinion that it is a matter of little import, at this point, whether or not he legally lives in Columbus if a true residence is established 40 days before the primaries is questioned by a spokesman of the Board of Elections.

CONCEDING that 40 days prior residence is all that is required to vote, the election board worker indicated getting one's name on the ballot is not so simple. He believes the City Charter demands residence requirement be met not only by filing deadline (90 days prior to election) but when the required petitions are circulated.

He emphasized that this is an unofficial view, and that it might take an opinion from the county prosecutor definitely to decide the matter.

He also stated that since Fetch registered from the Mohawk address in December, the Board of Elections has no reason to question his residence unless a formal complaint is lodged against it.

FETCH, 67, who resigned his post with urban renewal last week to clear the way for his political campaign said he has no way of evaluating his chances for successful campaign.

He does believe, however, that his familiarity with city government qualifies him for the council post.

He pointed out that his city employment (the first phase was from 1940 through 1945 and the second hitch from 1960 to date) has involved service in Parks and Forestry, the Service Department, the old Division of Accident Prevention and Investigation which now functions as Industrial Relations and Urban Renewal.

A REGISTERED Republican, he claims to have been ousted by both political parties at one time or another.

It was during a period of semi-retirement between 1957-60 that Fetch developed an interest in restoration of the area known as German Village and helped form the German Village Society of which he has perennially served as president.

Haytcher—

get the feminine slant on the ticket.

The ward races presently shape up as "no contest" in the primary.

Don Patrick, 529 Maplewood, a 44-year-old designer for North American Aviation, is considered a "good bet" to run in Ward One. He served on the Charter Commission.

Philip J. Neubecker, 397 Pineview-dr, defeated two years ago, is expected to run in Ward Two, probably against incumbent Roger Stahley.

C. E. (Bill) Leeson, Jr., incumbent in Ward Three, will definitely seek re-election.

A "new face," Lendel Hodge, 34, program administrator for NAA and a resident of 801 Bernhard-rd, will probably step into the Ward Four gap created by O'Shaughnessy's decision to move up into the at-large race.

Haytcher, considered Whitehall's first "professional" mayor, is expected to be tough to unseat in November.

In addition to Ballenger, some Republicans have talked about bringing former Mayor William Holzhause back into the running to oppose Haytcher, but Holzhause has as yet not indicated any desire to get back into politics.

Rams Pace Area Matmen

Whitehall and East gained the spotlight on area mats last week — the Rams nabbing a lopsided dual win and adding the Walnut Ridge invitational title for good measure, the Tigers looking more like a defending District champion with a dual victory over Central.

Dale Faust's Whitehall crew piled up 101 points, easily outdistancing runnerup and host Walnut Ridge (75) to cop the Scotties' eight-team invite for the second straight year.

OTHER FINISHERS were Eastmoor (65), East (57), West (46), South (22), Lancaster (21) and Wilmington (14).

THE WIN was costly for the Rams, however, as 145-lb. regular Randy Nichols suffered a broken hand at the tourney and will be out of action indefinitely.

On the dual front, the Rams won every event but one, clobbering outmanned Grandview, 40-3.

Reese Lattimer, Bexley's 120-pounder, stayed unbeaten (4-0) and Bob Frampton got a pin-win but the Lions still dropped their fourth straight, 23-19, to Watkins Memorial.

BOB SNYDER, Gary Gliltz and Rick Grove got other Bexley wins — all via decisions.

Ralph Cox, Dan Young and Bob Truss all got pins as East snapped a three-meet loss streak by walloping Central, 35-8.

The Tigers made sure victory was assured by piling up a comfortable 27-0 lead.

HARTLEY'S 30 points were good enough for fifth place in Groveport's eight-team invite, won by the hosts who collected 80 points.

Ferchir Jet Trainer; Admission Price Same

The Columbus Jets announced last week that John M. Ferchir has replaced Tony Bartirome as team trainer for 1967.

The Jets also announced that ticket prices for the upcoming year will remain the same ($2, $1.75 and $1.50) with the exception of children (12 and under) general admission ducets which will be increased to 75 cents.

City Teams Hold Three Spots In WIBC Ratings

Planned Parenthood Group To Launch '67 Fund Drive

The Planned Parenthood Association of Columbus will begin its drive to raise $72,000 for 1967 on Jan. 16, it has been announced by Mrs. Robert Lazarus, chairman of the campaign.

The goal is 15 percent higher than in 1966 and, if reached will provide slightly less than half of the $185,000 needed to operate the association for the year. The remainder comes from research funds and patients fees.

Mrs. Lazarus said that in 1966, some 5,500 women from low-income families were served by the association.

"But," she said, "we reached only one-tenth of the 50,000 low-income women of childbearing age in the community."

"These are women who deserve and desire the freedom of choice we offer them," Mrs. Lazarus said. "In 1967, we must accelerate our progress and we need the community's financial support."

Planned Parenthood operates its central clinic downtown, four branch clinics and 10 supply stations in disadvantaged neighborhoods. Patients pay for services on a "sliding scale" but free service is afforded to more than half of the patients because they are unable to pay.

Mrs. Lazarus said the association works "to promote broad acceptance of the fact that family planning is essential to the economic and social health of our city, to insure that everyone understands that medically, legally and religiously approved family planning services are available to persons of all faiths in Franklin County and to stimulate increased cooperation with public and private health and welfare agencies."

East—

for the Bob Miller coached team that owns a 3-1 loop log and is in a three way tie for first place.

THE VIKINGS have been paced by the 10 point hitting of center Jack Fulford and the 12 point scoring of forward James Walker. Academy is now 3-5 following an FCL loss to St. Mary 46-38 last Friday. Canal dealt previously unbeaten (league-wise) West Jefferson a stunning 103-75 blow. The Indians, who have been getting some good pivot scoring from 6-4 Bill Miles, amassed 98 points Saturday over Hamilton Township.

CAGE NOTES: Hartley snapped defensive - minded Watterson's eight game win streak last Friday night with a miserly defense of its own, 48-39 on the Eagles' floor in the Central Catholic League opener.

Hartley pressed the Eagles into 15 turnovers and turned a few of them into easy buckets in taking charge of the game in the third period. The Hawk defenders held Watterson bucketless for 13½ minutes en route to their seventh straight CCL win over two years.

WATTERSON sharp - shot Rocky Amicon scored with 3:16 remaining in the second period and the Eagles didn't hit another goal until Amicon's layin with 6:10 remaining in the game. The Eagle points during that time were a pair of foul shots by Amicon and a free throw by Tom McGarity.

Hartley's Denny Parker and Jim Trapp paced the Hawks with 15 and 10 points respectively in a game which the biggest lead was a 40-29 Hawk edge with 28 seconds remaining in the third period.

THE HAWKS had to catch Watterson as the Eagles broke loose for a 17-10 first period advantage. Pat Mannion's defenders caused 12 Hawk throw aways while Watterson's board men took a 47-43 edge.

OTHER CAGE ACTION: Pleasant View (2-7) at Whitehall (6-4), Hartley (7-2) at DeSales (6-5), Mifflin (1-8) at Gahanna (9-3), North (2-8) at Walnut Ridge (0-8), Urbana at Bexley (3-6), Whitehall (6-4) at Eastmoor (8-1), Pleasant View (2-7) at Hartley (7-2), Walnut Ridge (0-8) at Dayton Roosevelt, East (8-0) at Newark (8-2), Newark Catholic at Academy (3-5), Worthington (9-1) at Bexley (3-6) and Reynoldsburg (7-3) at Groveport (0-10).

Top point performers of the week were paced by the 37 point effort of Grove City's George Yates in the Greyhounds' 73-52 Mid-Eight win over Hilliard.

Yates' season high total was followed by Eastmoor's Eric Walz, who scored 30 in the Warriors' 87-76 win over Whetstone, Ready's Tommy Jackson, who tossed in 28 in the Knights' 84-83 victory over Reynoldsburg, West Jefferson's Mike Tyree, who scored 27 futile points in the Riders' 103-75 loss to Canal Winchester and Jim Frazier, who also counted 27 points in Northland's 80-49 win over Wehrle.

for the Bob Miller coached team that owns a 3-1 loop log and is in a three way tie for first place.

THE VIKINGS have been paced by the 10 point hitting of center Jack Fulford and the 12 point scoring of forward James Walker. Academy is now 3-5 following an FCL loss to St. Mary 46-38 last Friday. Canal dealt previously unbeaten (league-wise) West Jefferson a stunning 103-75 blow. The Indians, who have been getting some good pivot scoring from 6-4 Bill Miles, amassed 98 points Saturday over Hamilton Township.

CAGE NOTES: Hartley snapped defensive - minded Watterson's eight game win streak last Friday night with a miserly defense of its own, 48-39 on the Eagles' floor in the Central Catholic League opener.

Hartley pressed the Eagles into 15 turnovers and turned a few of them into easy buckets in taking charge of the game in the third period. The Hawk defenders held Watterson bucketless for 13¼ minutes en route to their seventh straight CCL win over two years.

WATTERSON sharp - shot Rocky Amicon scored with 3:16 remaining in the second period and the Eagles didn't hit another goal until Amicon's layin with 6:10 remaining in the game. The Eagle points during that time were a pair of foul shots by Amicon and a free throw by Tom McGarity.

Hartley's Denny Parker and Jim Trapp paced the Hawks with 15 and 10 points respectively in a game which the biggest lead was a 40-29 Hawk edge with 28 seconds remaining in the third period.

THE HAWKS had to catch Watterson as the Eagles broke loose for a 17-10 first period advantage. Pat Mannion's defenders caused 12 Hawk throw aways while Watterson's board men took a 47-43 edge.

OTHER CAGE ACTION: Pleasant View (2-7) at Whitehall (6-4), Hartley (7-2) at DeSales (6-5), Mifflin (1-8) at Gahanna (9-3), North (2-8) at Walnut Ridge (0-8), Urbana at Bexley (3-6), Whitehall (6-4) at Eastmoor (8-1), Pleasant View (2-7) at Hartley (7-2), Walnut Ridge (0-8) at Dayton Roosevelt, East (8-0) at Newark (8-2), Newark Catholic at Academy (3-5), Worthington (9-1) at Bexley (3-6) and Reynoldsburg (7-3) at Groveport (0-10).

Top point performers of the week were paced by the 37 point effort of Grove City's George Yates in the Greyhounds' 73-52 Mid-Eight win over Hilliard.

Yates' season high total was followed by Eastmoor's Eric Walz, who scored 30 in the Warriors' 87-76 win over Whetstone, Reedy's Tommy Jackson, who tossed in 28 in the Knights' 84-83 victory over Reynoldsburg, West Jefferson's Mike Tyree, who scored 27 futile points in the Riders' 103-75 loss to Canal Winchester and Jim Frazier, who also counted 27 points in Northland's 80-49 win over Wehrle.

Lynn Kramer's 31 points in Hilliard's 69-62 fall to Westerville was the Saturday night high.

New Year's Party Honors Former Grange Members

By ISA BARRETT

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tussing entertained former members of Reynoldsburg Grange at their home with a New Year's Eve party. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Feucht, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Oldham, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Moorhead, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Will and son Carl, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Miner and Mrs. Ola Rawn.

The Reynoldsburg Grange at one time was an active, progressive organization but like many other things, has passed out of the picture. Members have joined other chapters, including Summit Station and Winchester. The building now owned by the school and used by it as a music room was formerly owned by the Grange, and its meetings were held there. An annual play was sponsored by the Grange and was looked forward to each year.

Mrs. Ruth Pack was hostess to the Esther Circle of the Methodist Church Wednesday evening of last week.

Mrs. Grace Owen of Summit Station is in Grant Hospital after a fall in her home. She is in room 815, and a friendly card might help. She is a member fo Eugenie Chapter O.E.S., and also past matron.

The Reynoldsburg Electa Club will meet Thursday, January 12, at noon for smorgasbord at Haft's Restaurant. Mrs. Leah Scott is president.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Beason, Doug and Janie and Mrs. Frank Barrett were Sunday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Whitesalde, Jennifer and Jeanna.

Mrs. L. W. Tussing, who has been in Grant Hospital for eight weeks following a fall and broken hip, still cannot be moved to a nursing home.

Dave Kitzmiller, who for years owned and operated a barber shop in Reynoldsburg, has been a patient in Grant Hospital for several days, the victim of an apparent stroke.

Tom Gregory and daughter, Gayle of Winchester, Tenn., left Sunday, Jan. 1, after spending a week with his sister, Mrs. John Smith, Mrs. Aline Smith and Mrs. Dick Manning.

Mrs. Ken Rockey of Pataskala, formerly Naomi Reaver of Reynoldsburg, was called to Silver Fish, N.J., by the sudden death of a three-month-old grandson. Parents of the child are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Reaver.

Mrs. Ray Rausch was hostess to the Reynoldsburg Civic Club Tuesday afternoon Jan. 3. Mrs. Charles Kirsch showed pictures of their last summer trip to the Holy Land. At the business meeting, the club voted $50 to the English department of the Reynoldsburg High School to help finance the school paper.

CHRISTOPHER ONE VISITS 'BANANA REPUBLICS'

Holiday Fun Lures Columbusites

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Bexley-ite Russell Mock and his wife Jerrie, Columbus' famed "flying housewife," and their daughter traveled with Christopher One over the recent holidays to Costa Rica and Panama. The following account was written by Mock, 2490 Bexford-pl, exclusively for The Spectator.)

The big DC-7 stood at the end of runway 29 on Port Columbus and shuddered against the brakes as Captain Bob Chadwick called for full power. The four engines roared in their deep, rich baritone of power for a few seconds, then Chadwick released the brakes and the airplane moved forward.

Slowly at first, as if surprised it was free, then it quickly picked up speed and lifted into the cold mid-winter air.

Christopher One was on the way to one of its most unusual tours to date — a visit to the Banana Republics of Costa Rica and Panama. By mid-afternoon half a hundred Columbus area folks would be deposited on sun-drenched, mountain-ringed El Coco Airport at San Jose, the capital city of Costa Rica. Many of them were making their first trip out of the U.S.

For my wife, Jerrie, our six-year-old daughter Valerie and myself, the trip was rather unique, too. We had all visited foreign shores before, but usually Jerrie and I are busy with radios, charts and navigation instead of lounging leisurely in big, soft reclining airline seats.

As Jerrie and I relaxed and Valerie decided to play stewardess, the rest of the bunch began anticipating the week ahead in the sun. Some of them came because of the lure of the tropics, some wanted to poke around native markets and browse through museums. For others the magnet was the jungle and the challenge of matching wits with a jaguar or two.

It was easy to forget the problems of flying with an old pro like Chadwick at the controls. A veteran of thousands of flying hours, he has flown in all parts of the world.

Flash bulbs popped on shiny new Christmas present cameras and the stewardesses were kept busy with refreshments. Laughing groups congregated throughout the cabin. In the forward compartment Father Robert Davis of Bishop Watterson High School and Fr. Samuel Durbin of Zanesville chatted and cat-napped. Joe Soler of 2786 N. Starr-rd was busy shooting up movie footage of the fun breaking out all around him.

Dr. Emma Bower, Costa Rican Consul for the Columbus area, and her husband, Dr. W. D. Bower, 3894 N. High-st, were seated behind us, and soon we were in the midst of a conversation about Costa Rica. Like every transplanted person, Mrs. Bower was tremendously enthusiastic about her homeland, and gave us a long list of things to see and do.

Between Mrs. Bower and Dave Davidson, the young American public relations director of the Grand Hotel of Costa Rica, there were no customs to go through after landing. We signed the necessary tourist cards and affirmed that we all had current health certificates, and were quickly bussed downtown to the hotel.

A quick wash-up and the crowd was ready for a welcoming cocktail party given for them by the hotel. Wonderful tropical drinks and highballs for those who wanted them, punch made with tree-fresh fruits, and native snacks were just the right thing to rekindle the life in us after the 2500-mile flight.

The hunters in the crowd were disappointed since an unusually long rainy season had turned much of the jungle areas into soggy tangles of undergrowth and dripping trees. The guns went back into their cases and the big cats continued their life of leisure instead of becoming an adornment on someone's den or office wall.

It was fiesta time and the populace wasn't going to waste a minute of the happy season. Community bull fights were the order of the day and dozens and dozens of would-be matadors piled into the ring at the same time, madly waving their capes and screaming entreaties at the many bulls. However, most are quick to run and jump head-long into a huge watering trough should a bull decide to play the game, too. Fireworks are the order of the day and are fired wildly in all directions, especially into the crowd where fire balls exploding among the spectators cause tremendous eruptions of hysterical laughter and shouts of glee.

The party broke up and individuals and groups headed in various directions — to the smoking summit of Irazu volcano, almost 12,000 feet high; to the beaches at Puntarenas and Barranca and the tiny village of Liberia located on the Pan American Highway close to the Nicaraguan border. Some, like us, went by car, others took the brightly painted narrow gauge electric railroad that hums along its 42-inch wide track.

The hillsides are under intense cultivation, and such crops as bananas, coffee, sugar, oranges and corn grow side by side for hundreds of kilometers along the highway and back into the verdant hills.

During our last night in San Jose we found ourselves dining at the lovely home of Dr. Bower and suddenly realized we were stranded there since the center of town was a solid mass of humanity turned out for the glittering carnival parade.

The cabs could not get within seven or eight blocks of the hotel, so we decided to try to fight our way through the mobs. We must have made an incongruous sight, the two of us and little Valerie pushing our way one minute, being dragged by the crowd the next, as we (loaded with suitcases and cameras) fought our way to the hotel. A block of rooms held by some Christopher One members overlooked the parade and tour director Lloyd Bower and his wife Maime decided to have a party for everyone as they watched the festivities in the street below.

Four nights and five days are hardly enough to see a country, even one as compact as Costa Rica, but the big bird was standing at the gate and ready to move further south. The one hour flight to Panama City took us over the mountains to Puerto Lemon on the Atlantic coast, then across the ocean for a few minutes and finally over the solid jungles of Panama.

As we turned on base leg for landing at Tucomen Airport at Panama City, the eastern, or Pacific, end of the Panama canal passed under our left wing. The "S" shape of the country causes the interesting orientation of the canal which puts the Atlantic entrance further west than the Pacific.

The contrast between the two countries and their people was evident at once. The economic level of the two is widely divergent even though they are neighbors sharing a common border. Again entrance formalities had largely been arranged, even to the hotel pre-registering us right at the airport and passing out room keys.

Again, the hotel had arranged a party for the group with a great spread of shrimps, lagosta (a native lobster), broiled chicken livers and a half-dozen or so other tempting items.

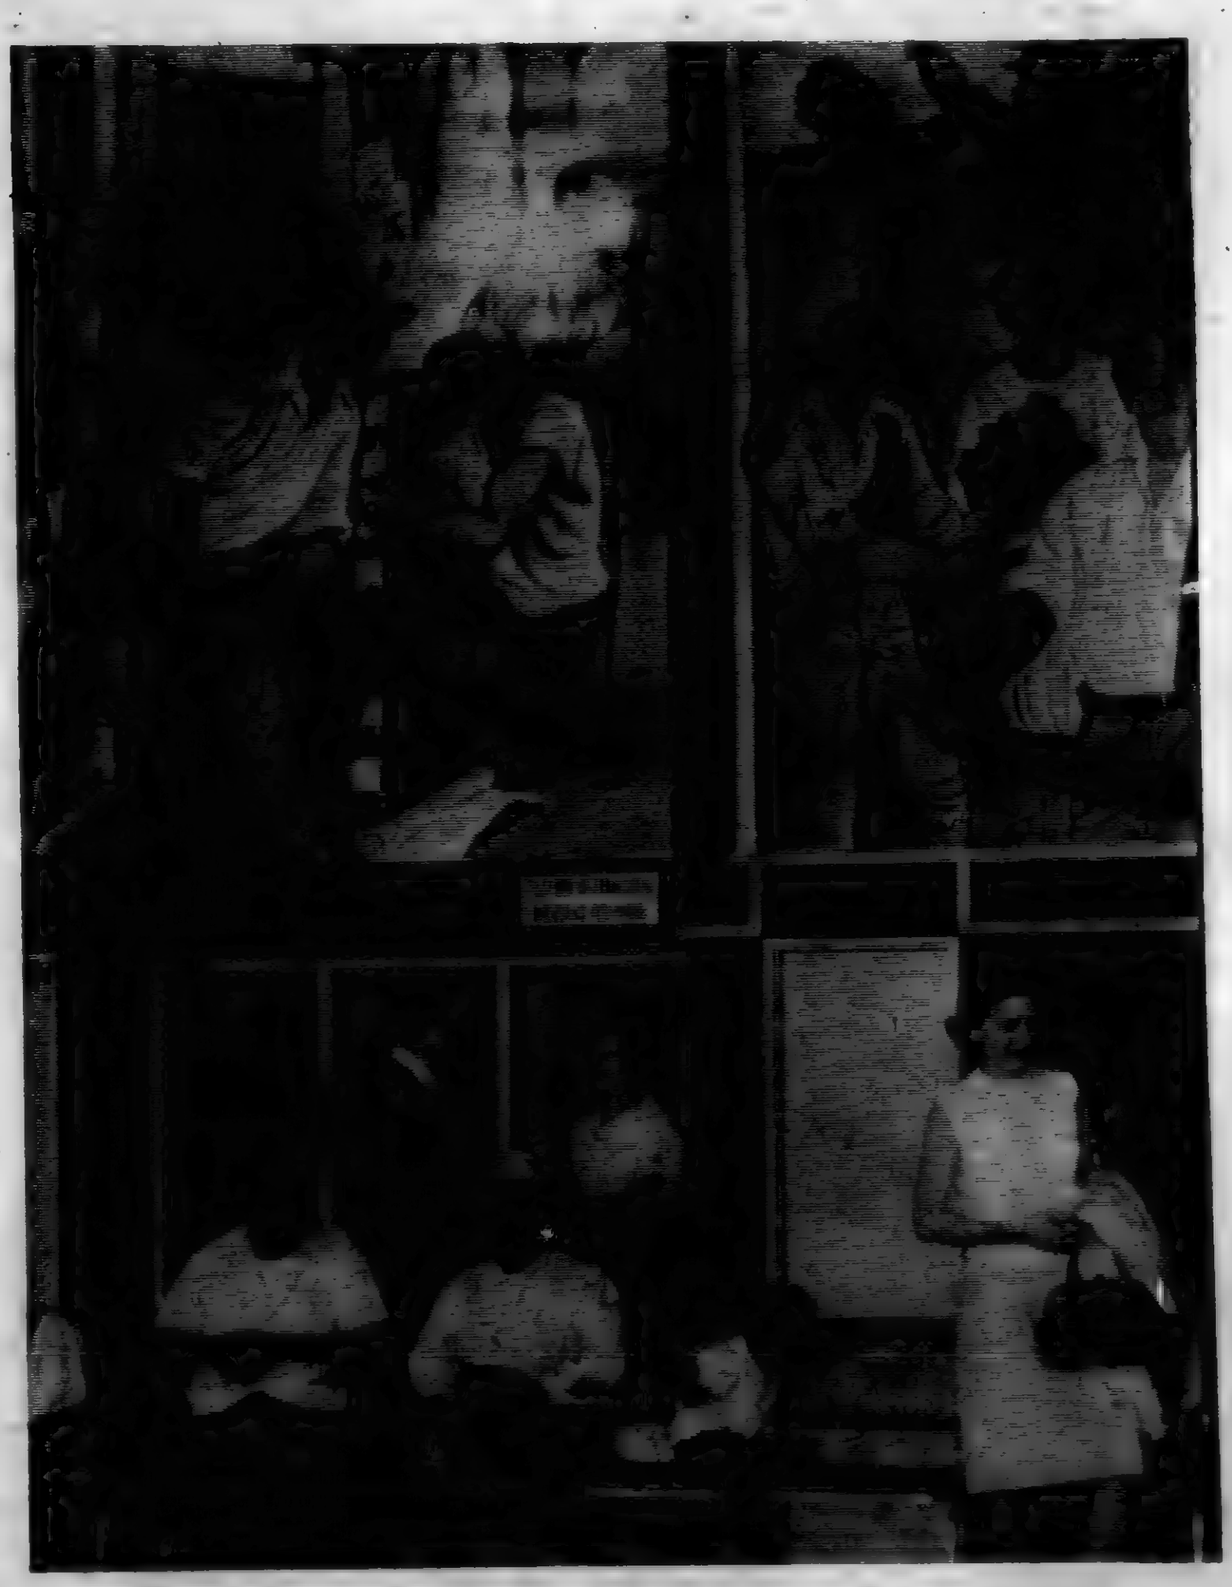
By daylight the next day the group had discovered points of personal interest, with some heading for the pool, some for a sightseeing jaunt across the isthmus and our crowd piling into two small airplanes and heading for the San Blas Islands a few miles off-shore in the Atlantic.

A New Year's Eve party at the Panama Hilton is a noisy affair, with literally thousands of local people jamming the huge patio, dining rooms and crowding into numerous private parties. Coupled with the hotel guests, the mob swells to impressive size, with cars coming and going through the parking lot in a steady stream until 4:30 or 5 a.m. when things begin to simmer down a bit.

Those of us who had not taken the trip across the isthmus the first day rented a car and made the swing on New Year's Day, heading out along the main Panama City-Colon Highway and returning through the Canal Zone for a view of the locks and the fantastic jungle through which part of the road passes.

Unfortunately, someone reminded the pilot we had to get home on time, and by noon on Jan. 2 we were climbing back aboard the airplane.

Although for most of us, the trip would be the last for a while, other members were already discussing plans for a week-end "mystery trip" and a few days at the Mardi Gras. Christopher One members are people on the go, it seems, and they take advantage of the airplane whenever they can.



The membership in Christopher One numbers over 750, with people of all ages and backgrounds. There are young marrieds, active businessmen, teachers, doctors, attorneys, clergy and retired folks. But they all share the love of travel and the excitement of seeing new and different things.

Clubs like Christopher One are springing up throughout the country and now total over 20. Membership dues vary from club to club, but are for the most part similar to Christopher One's, which are a $100 initiation fee for a single person or $150 for a family, plus modest monthly dues that are the same for an individual or a family. Trip prices are based at just slightly over two cents a seat mile — less than normal bus fare.

Trips are planned with an eye toward meeting the desires of everyone and range from such places as Las Vegas or the Bahamas to Europe, North Africa and South America.

And the airplane is on the go almost constantly so that almost anyone's vacation schedule can fit a trip time table. Although there are many major trips each year there are even more long weekend jaunts for those who want an occasional "quickie" break in the routine.

The airplane is under a perpetual maintenance program higher than airline standards and is crewed by men with a total of almost 100 years experience in airlines and commercial flying all over the globe.

Central Savings Reports Gain In Assets, Savings

Central Savings and Loan Co. has announced a five-year total gain in assets to $7,214,512, up 53.7 percent over the five-year period.

Richard Heer, vice-president and secretary of the company, said that "almost $5 million of this gain was in savings deposits, bringing total savings to an all-time high of $16,803,107 as of Dec. 31. Also, during the same five-year period, Central made 1,612 mortgage loans, a total in excess of $30 million.

Heer said he looked for 1967 to be a good savings year," based on legislation boosting insurance protection on savings accounts to $15,000 and a drop in purchases of durable goods such as automobiles and appliances.

He said interest rates would stay high but mortgage money "will be available."

Let's Knit

By URSULA DUBOIS

QUESTION: Is it really necessary to line a garment?

ANSWER: Lining is not a must, but like any other garment it will look more expensive if lined. Many people — my daughter included — cannot stand any wool or mohair near their skin. In such cases lining is absolutely advisable.

QUESTION: Does lining hold a knitted garment better in shape?

ANSWER: Not really, although skirts for the heavier person should be lined. Any commercial skirt pattern will do; leave side seam open a bit for insertion of the zipper.

QUESTION: How do I go about lining a knitted garment (other than a skirt)?

ANSWER: Have all your knitted pieces blocked before lining. Baste pieces together with a large running-thread, and try garment on to be sure it fits. Separate the knitted pieces again and lay onto lining material. Cut lining for the back two inches wider than needed plus one-half inch extra for seam allowance. Cut front and sleeve lining in width as is, plus one-half inch for seam allowance. For the length, cut lining three and one-half inches longer than needed if garment is a coat and one and one-half inches longer if garment is a sweater. After the lining is sewn together, steam the seams open. Handstitch lining into place. If the garment has a collar, sew the collar to garment first, then sew the lining to edge of collar covering the seam. Make a pleat to fit back of neck.

For coat, skirts and jackets, leave lining hang free after hemming, and for sweater, stitch loosely into place and one inch above hemline. Otherwise lining will pull as a knitted garment has a natural elasticity.

Miss duBois welcomes mail from readers but cannot give a personal answer. She will discuss and pass on the most interesting questions and hints.

'We give an extra "5." And Sundays don't count.

At Central Savings you get more time to save.
Besides our generous 4.5% interest rate on savings . . . we give you 15 days (instead of 10) to earn a full month's return on each deposit.
This means you get an extra "5" (days) to bank at Central Savings. And Sundays don't count.
We give the extra "5" because most folks get their pay checks twice each month. They pay current bills on the 1st . . . save systematically on the 15th.
So at Central you don't lose as much as a month's interest like you do at a commercial bank where the 10th of the month savings deadline falls between paydays.
This is one more example of the way Central Savings does more for people . . . more and more.

Bob Tyo Duo Swings Nightly At Everglades

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

The Everglades has been featuring the Bob Tyo Duo for the past several weeks.

Thursday night they were performing in top form. Both men, Bob Tyo and Vic Peccora, are nice to talk with, but nicer to listen to as Vic sang, played an amplified piano and drums, and Bob played a Hammond organ.

A Columbus resident, Bob has spent most of his life playing the organ. He has rebuilt a 31-year-old Hammond organ which has a lighted keyboard, with a back-drop mirror—so those that aren't dancing can watch with awe as his hands dance over the keyboard.

Vic's ability to play his instruments is matched only by the ease of both men to glide easily into each other's style and routine.

Vic's singing will leave you with a memory of "Satchmo" and Louie Prima.

The Everglades is well-known around town for its atmosphere and pleasant surroundings. This is the sort of place to keep in mind when an important occasion arises.

Famed blind organist and composer Jean Langlais from the Basilica of Ste. Clotilde in Paris will play a recital at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 18, on the Mershon Auditorium organ. General admission ticket sale is in progress at the Mershon Ticket Office.

A Mid-Winter Dream Come True

Each August when boys don their football equipment and set out on the task of becoming Little Buckeyes, a dream is born.

The boys know if they work hard and, by doing so, are successful on the field of combat, there is the chance they might realize that dream four months and many bumps and bruises later.

TWENTY-EIGHT Little Buckeyes realized that mid-winter dream come true during their recent holiday vacation, journeying to Hollywood, Fla., and returning with a still unblemished four-year record via a 20-0 victory.

Success has long been a by-word for the Tom Krieger-coached gridiron Little Leaguers.

The Hollywood victory followed two Bowl titles in two previous tries at Key West.

KRIEGER'S plans now include getting his Little Buckeyes to Hawaii in the future but that's another dream which is continued success afield plus plenty of the wheelin' 'n' dealin' on Krieger's part away.

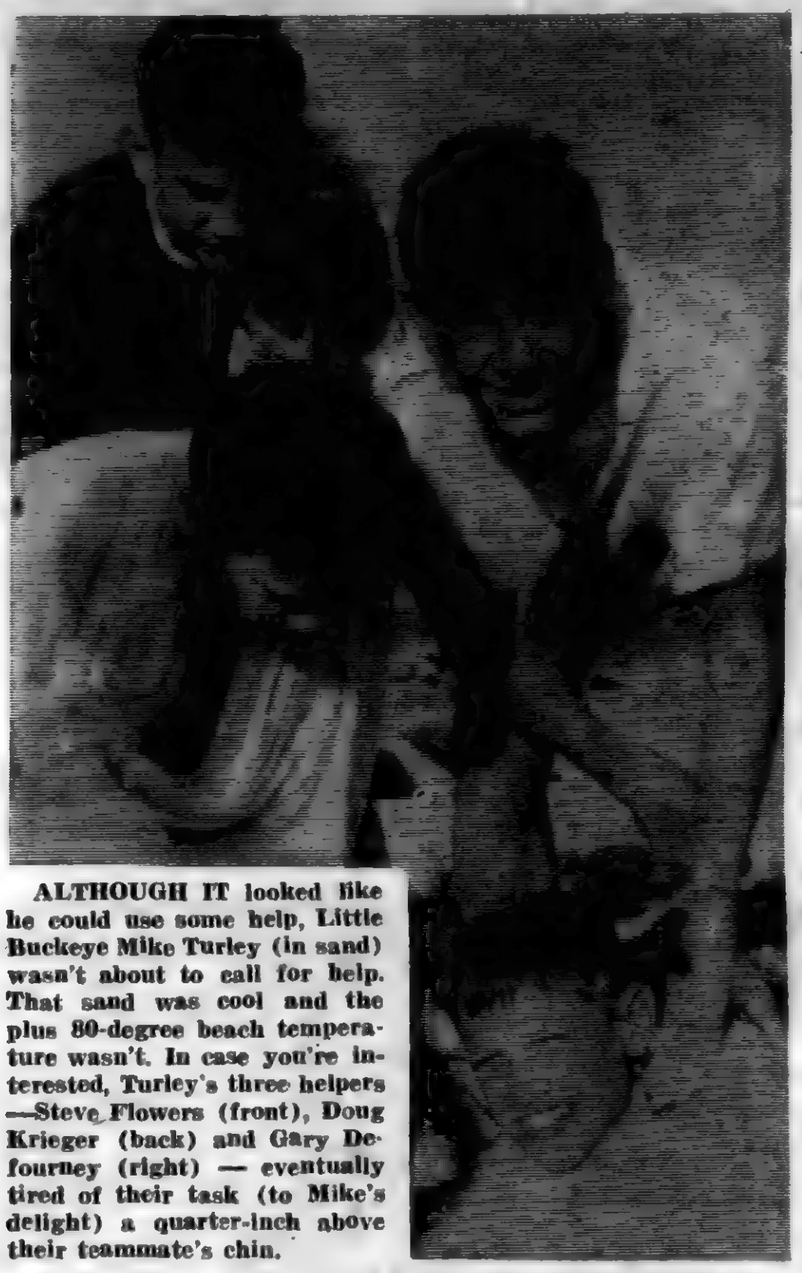
As far as the game went, it was a case of size (Hollywood's) versus execution (Little Bucks'), the latter — as usual — coming to the fore.

Top individuals would have to be fullback John Moltenberry (offensively) who was voted as the visitors' "MVP" for getting the Bucks out of trouble consistently with long swallows of real estate.

DEFENSIVELY, the nod went to middle guard Rob Trojack whose persistent pressure on the opposition center eventually resulted in five fumbles.

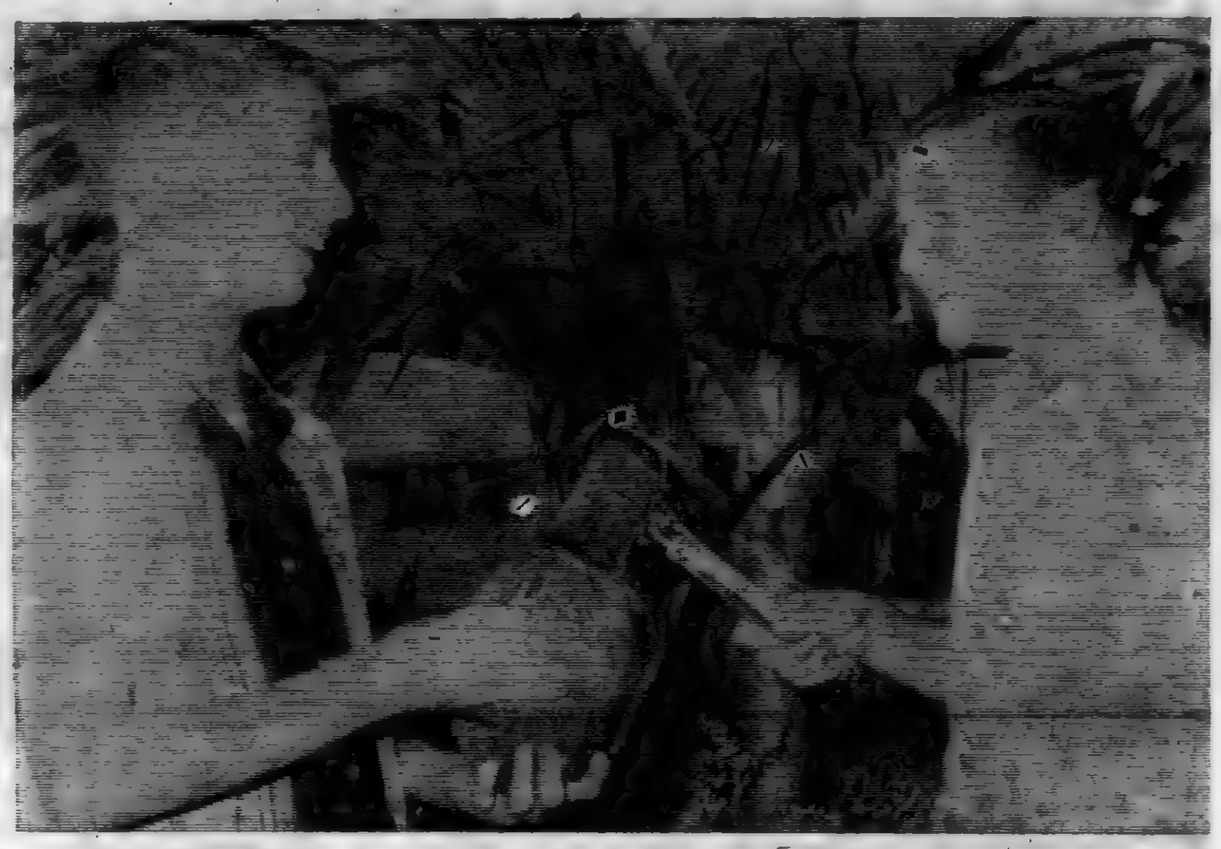
But most impressive — in this writer's estimation — was the squad's gentlemanly behavior both on the field and off.

Nothing but the highest compliments were heard from the team's Florida hosts.



AND FOR those who point out that today's teenagers get so much they don't really appreciate anything that's done for them, take heed.

The Bowl trip to Florida hung in the balance after plans to play in Fort Lauderdale fell through at the last minute late last month.



Cancellation of the trip looked imminent as a Little Buckeye coach transported one of the players home after a practice session.

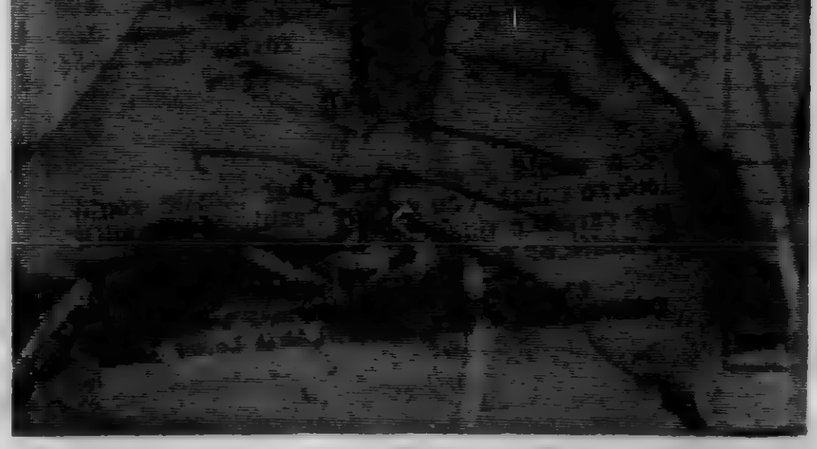
THE BOY was silent until the destination was reached. Then looking up at the coach, he asked, "Do you suppose it would help to pray?"

Apparently, it did.

ALTHOUGH IT looked like he could use some help, Little Buckeye Mike Turley (in sand) wasn't about to call for help. That sand was cool and the plus 80-degree beach temperature wasn't. In case you're interested, Turley's three helpers —Steve Flowers (front), Doug Krieger (back) and Gary Defourney (right) — eventually tired of their task (to Mike's delight) a quarter-inch above their teammate's chin.

SOME OF THESE old coconuts are pretty tough to crack, Hollywood (Fla.) host Mike Maloney (right) explains to house guest and Little Buckeye guard Van Ambrose as the pair prepare to get the job done with Mike's hatchet. Florida hosts didn't spare the adjectives complimenting gentlemanly behavior of Buck gridders. Boys were housed at opponents' homes for five days before joining coaches at Fort Lauderdale quarters.

'HOW SWEET IT IS' AS BUCKS BATTLE FT. LAUDERDALE SURF



GARY WAS LATE BUT . . .

SPECTATOR STORY

ALL SMILES and trophies (above) after being named as Hollywood Bowl's "most valuable players," Little Buck fullback John Moltenberry (left, game's top ground-gainer) shakes hands with Hollywood's Jim Cates. Little Buckeyes had a surprise fan at the game in Watterson's Dick Walker, Ohio's high school "Coach of the Year" for '66. Walker (below, at left), who was vacationing in Florida at the time, talks football with Buckeye athletic dir... Tom Krieger at halftime.

SAVORING A post-game delicacy is the smallest of the Little Buckeyes—89-lb. Pat Armbruster. Pat, along with other Buck teammates, got first opportunity to "splurge" in the calorie department after careful maintenance of weight during season. Host parents were amazed at local gridders' tenacity when it came to refusing home-spun high-calorie desserts.

Planning Vocational School Tricky

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

Organizing an entirely new school district is never child's play.

When it involves the development of a curriculum based on the relatively new concept of vocational education, it becomes even more complicated.

BUT WHEN it must dovetail with the programs, calendars and time schedules, curricula and policies of five long-established districts, the job assumes the aspects of a Chinese puzzle.

This fact became clear when Jim Spadafore, director of the Eastland Franklin County Joint Vocational School, reviewed the hatful of $64 questions the board is facing.

Far from the least of these is how many academic courses will be offered in addition to those leading to vocational skills.

FROM THE beginning it has been recognized that English and American history and government are musts to conform with diploma requirements set by the state.

However, these courses alone will not fill the graduation standards for an out-of-state transfer student who lacks the credits demanded in Ohio.

Additional academic courses cannot be offered, Spadafore pointed out, without considering available classrooms, the financial burden of classes for which there is no state subsidy and the problems of an extended school day. (The four vocational lab periods, two periods of related classroom work, one academic course plus a normal lunch hour, utilizes all the time of a standard school day).

A RECENT meeting was devoted to the guidelines that must be set up for the counselors of the parent schools (Canal Winchester, Madison, Whitehall, Reynoldsburg and Jefferson).

With junior status (seven units of credit) the only absolute prerequisite for admission to Eastland, considerable reliance will be made upon the guidance directors of the individual school in admission.

"These counselors have known these kids for years," Spadafore stated, "and consequently can evaluate their needs and aptitudes better than anyone else."

He [illegible] that a student's entire high school curriculum can be Eastland-oriented if his interest is shown sufficiently early—perhaps in the seventh or eighth grade.

"For example, if a student is interested in business education, he would do well to acquire typing skills before entering the vocational school as a junior," he added.

Although students will ordinarily enter the school as juniors when it opens in 1968, those already seniors will be allowed to enroll and take junior courses.

THIS IS being done, according to Spadafore, with the presumption that a majority will return to complete on a tuition basis the second year in the adult school. (The planning of this adult program is still another of the knots to be untied).

Expanding on the subject of school policies, the director stated that in some areas regulations for an individual student will depend upon that of his parent school.

"If a local school allows married students, a married student from that school would be eligible for enrollment at Eastland, and, conversely, no married student will be admitted if he would not be admitted in his own high school," Spadafore said.

TWO OF the areas in which a decision has been made are that of physical education and sports.

All physical education requirements must be met before entering Eastland, and the sports-minded student will participate in the athletic program of his home school.

"It is entirely possible," Spadafore said, "that two boys will work together in lab on Friday afternoon and face each other as opposing tackles Friday night."

WITH THE exception of specific vocational clubs (such as DECA) the students will also participate in the activities of their individual school from which they will graduate.

Spadafore stressed that the gigantic task at hand would be an impossible one without the cooperation of the principles and administrators of the participating schools.

One problem Eastland has laid at the feet of these participating schools is the one of busing.

EASTLAND is maintaining a "hands off" policy in this matter and not attempting to establish a transportation system.

Whitehall CAP Squadron Rebuilds

They're rebuilding an airplane in a Whitehall garage these days.

"They" are the teen-age members of Whitehall Cadet Squadron 803 of the Civil Air Patrol, and the plane is their transportation in fulfilling their "search-and-rescue" missions.

The plane is a 1946 Aronca Champ, a single-engine two-seater with a fabric-coated aluminum frame, perfect for the air-search and disaster-relief operations of the CAP.

Supervising the project is Senior Member Foster J. Shuren, a pilot who recently joined the Whitehall Squadron and agreed to act as supervisor.

But most of the work is being done by the cadets, age 13-18, who make up the squadron. They devote their Saturday mornings to the project—which Commander Bruce Eastham hopes to have completed within a year.

The rebuilding project started two years ago under the direction of the late Capt. George Doherty. When Doherty died in July, 1966, work on the airplane was suspended.

Most of the materials for the project have been donated by interested area firms. Senior Member Paul Shoaf donated the garage to house the aircraft.

With the completion of the plane in sight, the squadron is also seeking to expand its membership. An open house will be held tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. at Holy Spirit School, E. Broad Street and Yearling Road.

There are openings for cadets interested in learning about aviation and for adults, with or without flying experience, who are interested in working with children.

Members of the Air Force auxiliary unit are issued Air Force uniforms with CAP insignia.

DON DOHERTY, a senior member of Whitehall Cadet Squadron 803 of the Civil Air Patrol, makes required mechanical checks on the engine of the squadron's Aronca Champ, currently being rebuilt in a Whitehall garage.

Shells From Murder Gun Reported Found

Columbus Police are reportedly in possession of the spent shells taken from the gun allegedly used to kill Mr. and Mrs. Harry Levine and Mrs. Minnie Perrot last Dec. 10.

The Spectator has learned that boys from a Hilltop family found the shells and had them in their possession for some time. Their father reported the find to the police when he read that the shells had been emptied from the gun chamber and that police had conducted a search for them.

Police apparently have the shells in their possession and presumably would have tested them by now. But when confronted with this information a member of the police detective bureau refused to discuss it. He said the bureau "will not discuss any evidence" it may or may not have. He did not deny the department did have possession of the shells.

Jerry Weiner, counsel for Harry Levine, Jr., accused killer of his parents and grandparent, would not reveal whether or not the defense had knowledge of the police department finding the shells.

Wonderful, Wonderful

This is the Wonderful World of Ohio, the state administration tells us.

Ohio, where profit is not a dirty word. Ohio, where "jobs and progress" will cure all social ills and turn our state into the finest place in the nation to live.

So it seemed a bit strange earlier this month when Gov. James A. Rhodes and Finance Director Richard Krabach turned up in Florida to look for colleges for their children.

It seems to us that the Wonderful World of Ohio certainly has better colleges than Florida, or New York, or California, or any other state.

Or does it?

Two weeks ago, The Spectator Newspapers announced we would immediately initiate a concentrated program aimed at bringing all of the local news to our six circulation areas.

The response to our "Open Invitation" has been extremely gratifying. Numerous civic, social and religious groups have responded, and we hope none have been disappointed.

We wish again to emphasize our firm conviction that this newspaper should serve each and every citizen of its area. No organization is too small, no function too minor to warrant our consideration.

Please feel free to contact us at any time. We'll be more than happy to help you get your message across to our readers.

Baumann's Charade

Councilman James Baumann's announcement that he would not run against Mayor Sensenbrenner was about the only understandable part of Baumann's confusing 1967 charade.

With only one year of City Council experience under his belt, Baumann could not possibly have been so presumptuous as to think himself qualified to take on the incumbent mayor in the May primary.

This is not to say that Baumann isn't future mayoral timber. In another four years, presumably with more Council experience under his belt, he might be qualified to offer himself as the Democratic candidate.

In four years, the Democrats will be looking for a solid candidate, presuming that Sensenbrenner is re-elected and also presuming he doesn't seek a third consecutive term, as he has said he will not.

But in 1967, the Democrats have their candidate — Columbus' energetic, sometimes brash but always well-respected mayor.

The mayor himself said, "Jim Baumann will have to prove himself to me."

We couldn't agree more, Mr. Mayor.

A Worthy March

The annual Mothers' March of the March of Dimes comes up next Tuesday and Wednesday, and thousands of Central Ohio women will take to the streets for this worthy cause.

The March of Dimes supports the truly vital work of seeking the cause and cures of birth defects — a problem that can strike any home.

The money raised also goes to operate birth defect treatment centers like the one at Children's Hospital here in Columbus. That one, incidentally, was the first of its kind in the nation.

The Spectator Newspapers strongly urge that you support the March of Dimes by donating when the Mothers' March reaches your door.

A Light Is Lost

It is better to light just one little candle than to curse the darkness.

The WRFD Commentator was created with that thought in mind. Now it has been snuffed out.

The chill wind has been whipping at The Commentator's back for some time. In the harsh realities of the publishing business it is not always the fittest who survive, but the fattest.

In its all too short lifetime The Commentator probed like a searchlight into a black morass of social, economic and political issues that others chose to leave undisturbed in an atmosphere of dimbulb journalism.

True, its circulation of some 8000 was too small to have much impact. But it was read by those hungry for the real stuff of the news. It was read by the "shakers and the movers" and those to whom a new thought is not an assault on the mind.

Some of its critics felt the bright little journal was "too liberal." It only appeared that way in contrast to the massive voices of reaction that dominate this area. And to others, even its small sting was a constant threat, an occasional discordant note in an otherwise chorus of unanimity.

The unquestioned reason for the discontinuance of publication of The Commentator was "purely and simply economic."

One need only to thumb through the slender Commentator to know how little outside support had rallied to its banner. The faithful few could be counted on a handful of fingers.

There are those who gave the Commentator the benefit of lip service, but print costs and payrolls demand something more tangible. The Nationwide Insurance Companies and later the Peoples Broadcasting Co. fought the good fight practically alone.

The next edition of The Commentator will be its requiem.

In an all too dark world, another light will have gone out.

Don't send to know for whom the bell tolls.

More On Junkers

To The Editor:

I was glad to see "Hilltopper's" letter to the editor last week complaining about junk cars littering our streets.

Believe me, The Hilltop isn't the only place in town with that problem. We live on the East Side and we've got it, too.

I hope the police will begin to crack down on people who leave these wrecks on our public streets.

Expresses Shock

To The Editor:

Your editorial, "Cruel Hoax," came as a shock to me and left me wondering who could do such a thing.

As the wife of a career Air Force enlisted man, I am proud to have my husband serving his country. He has already served one tour in Vietnam and will probably serve another.

I would like to make an appeal to anyone who has ever considered making one of these crank telephone call. The family of a serviceman in a combat zone lives in constant fear. It doesn't take much to take advantage of that fear.

I hope I am never subjected to such a hoax and my sympathy goes out to the hoaxster's victims.

don maclean ★ Job Corps Snafu ★

Every now and then I wonder if I didn't just fall asleep around 1959 and dream everything that's happened in Washington since then.

For instance, I keep hearing about all this unemployment and, theoretically, we have an Office of Economic Opporunity that's feverishly training people to fill manpower needs. Yet, every day in the newspaper there are listed approximately 100 jobs that even UNSKILLED workers could have. Oddly enough, there are few takers. Of jobs, that is. There are plenty takers of welfare.

And we have the Job Corps advertising for jobs for the people it presumably has trained. Well, all I can say is that it must not be training people for the right things, because other branches of the government — at the same time — are desperately advertising for help.

It's a pity that OEO's three-year-old Job Corps is not aware of what other agencies need in the way of employes. If it were, the Job Corps might not have to be running TV commercials pleading with businessmen to hire a Job Corps man or woman. Instead, the Job Corps simply would be training secretaries and draftsmen and placing them with at least two other government agencies that I know of.

For instance, the Navy's Military Sea Transportation Service, as I mentioned in a previous column, is so hard up for secretaries that it sent out a direct-mail letter asking girls to think about it. The letters were addressed simply to "Occupant." The odds against such a letter reaching a home where a qualified secretary lives—and one who'd like to change jobs—must be fantastic. So you can see how critical MSTS's secretarial shortage must be.

And now I find that the Army Map Service needs draftsmen and mapmakers so badly that it's offering a BOUNTY for them! No kidding. A bulletin signed by the commanding officer says Map Service employes can get $50 per head — no limit — for every new employe they recruit who is accepted.

All of which brings us to this point: In fiscal 1967, which started last July, the Job Corps is spending $303 MILLION to train 30,000 people. (That works out to $10,000 per corpsman, neighbors. You could send them to the Harvard Business School on that).

It may be presumptuous of me, just a taxpayer, to ask this, but what is the Job Corps teaching those unskilled people who have enlisted in its program — basket weaving?

william s. white ★ Powell's Critics ★

WHITE

The long-heralded attempt by angry fellow liberals to permanently bar Rep. Adam Clayton Powell from the House of Representatives will not go anywhere when the showdown falls in the new Congress.

This is exactly as it should be. For when this thing is stripped of an emotionalism that is clearly excessive and of a finger-pointing humanly justified but not relevant, one central truth remains unalterable. This is that the voters deserve precisely the kind of representation they get and it is apparent that in his case Powell's Harlem constituency is perfectly satisfied with him.

Moreover, constitutional practice and tradition demand for every member a fair deal. This is easy to grant when the man under attack is widely seen as a good fellow. It is not so easy, however, when he is reckoned to be a bad fellow. And "bad fellow" describes Powell's current image, especially among the very ultra-liberal types who are now his principal accusers where so long beforehand they had been happy to have him as a demagogic chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor.

His sins — including his contempt for the civil courts in his highly confused financial affairs — are doubtless legion. That he is something of a rogue as well — using this to denote irresponsibility as distinct from guilt —may be strongly argued. But to proceed from this to contend that he has no right to sit in the House, as Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin of California and some others have been doing, is to go altogether too far.

For Powell sits in the House under the repeated choice of his voters, and however unwise that choice may be, it cannot fairly be overturned by excitable colleagues simply because he has for years undoubtedly behaved with a marked lack of decorum — if also a lack of hypocrisy.

To oust him justly would require his conviction of crime in a court of law and not in some pseudo-court of head-wagging at his undeniably imperious and embarrassing conduct.

For while the Constitution does say that Congress alone may, if it wishes, determine who shall be allowed to sit among it, honorable custom also says that a man duly elected is not to be thrown out in the absence of legal proof of wrongdoing of a far more serious sort than has ever been charged to this man.

The truth is that those who have come so late to their conviction of Powell's unworthiness have gone about their job in the wrong way, as, unfortunately, ultra-liberals always do. The way to "get Powell" is the hard but just way of exposing his official actions inside the House and not, for illustration, his private sportiveness outside the House.

GOLDWATER

TOKYO — In this nation once defeated by U. S. airpower I have to read stateside headlines saying that the United States faces such a bad pilot shortage that the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee is going to investigate.

Distance, however, does not make it difficult to place the blame squarely where it belongs — right on the head of Robert Strange McNamara, our bumbling, fumbling and, in this instance, lying secretary of nondefense.

The lying involves Secretary McNamara's repeated assurances to congressional committees that his plans would meet our pilot requirements. He knew when he testified, unless he can actually claim to never even hear or see any military comments, that this nation has faced a pilot shortage since 1961—and this without a major war in Vietnam.

In that same year, both as a senator and as an Air Force reservist, I privately brought to the attention of the chairman of the Preparedness Subcommittee the full, documented forecast of a serious pilot shortage by 1966-67. The Air Force on at least two occasions made full presentations regarding the pilot plight.

Right in the face of all the facts Secretary McNamara glibly jammed his own supercilious and superficial substitute for the truth — his blackboards, chart and double-entry bookkeeping. He assured the Congress that there would be no pilot shortage, that he could sell off training bases, cut the training program to a dribble and still meet our needs.

He went so far as to take hundreds of men off flying status—assuring that they would lose the skills that had taken so long to develop—and yet they continued to draw flight pay, like farmers being paid not to grow crops.

He went ahead with the sale of bases, the shrinking of training programs and all the time boasting that he was saving money. He was also ignoring the evident possibility that he was buying those so-called savings with the future security of the United States.

The warnings and flat predictions of a pilot shortage that he suppressed in and by his testimony were based on normal conditions. The advent of large-scale war in Vietnam made those predictions many times worse. But McNamara did not move. He continued to mislead the nation with his bland assurances that everything was all right.

When the need for pilots grew with the increase in Vietnam fighting, the only solution was to transfer men from European and domestic assignments. There was no reserve. It was immediately apparent that the Tactical Air Command could not fulfill new missions elsewhere if trouble broke out because of the drain in Vietnam.

In Vietnam, combat pilots whose age and missions ordinarily would dictate replacement were the only men available to fly — and fly on. In one desperate effort to cover up his deepening mistake, McNamara permitted the lifting of the 45-22 rule, by which pilots who either reach their 45th birthday or their 22nd year of flying are taken off flying status.

Every few days, as in this latest instance, there is new evidence of McNamara's downright incompetence and his disregard for truth. The President will not move against him. Only the Congress can. I pray it will — for the sake of all of us and our future.

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

'Fiddler On Roof' Cast Guests At Gallery Players Party

Thursday evening, Gallery Players of the Jewish Center held a cast party for 125 guests. This number included 35 of the most down-to-earth, humble and congenial professional actors one has ever had the pleasure to meet, the cast of "Fiddler On The Roof."

As groups of three and four formed throughout the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Roth, familiar faces were obvious as each basked in the glow of radiance flowing throughout the evening. These were — John Crawford, Carolyn Lane, Sue and Eddie Kaye, Fran Kerns, Abe Green, Harold Cohn and the Copelands.

The entertainment was simple. It was a beautiful blend of congeniality and mutual respect. With complete ease everyone was made a star as all conversed on subjects of intellect, theater and family.

Of course, there were a few flaws—Bea Roth was the perfect hostess, she outshined the honored guests.

Harold Eisenstein was so busy finding people to introduce, he was everywhere. He couldn't have staged a better production.

Observations made the following day sum up the success of this undertaking.

The cast of "Fiddler" had traveled since April without being invited to a home for supper. The cast was humble for this tribute.

'Penelope' Cute, Captivating; Showing At Area Cinemas

Natalie Wood, the star of "Penelope," will captivate you and then wrap you around her finger as she frolics through wigs and clothes to find enjoyment while and after committing robbery.

Penelope becomes an outcast as her once attentive husband displaces her with the bank.

This is the gist of the story. A cute story, better yet, a cute show that will appeal to you for its entertainment through cleverly devised scenes, wit and just a hint of slapstick.

An instance in the action involving sltpstick occurs in a flashback sequences when Penelope relates that on her high school graduation day one of her professors becomes ardent. A chase, over and around the lab equipment develops and is hilarious as Penelope is defrocked but saved just in time by a stuffed gorilla.

Both male leads, Dick Shawn and Peter Falk, haye developed characters and are on top of thier lines.

Shawn, as the frustrated psychiatrist, has the "meat" of the script in lines and reactions; however he falters in a few scenes.

For example, late in the film, Shawn admits to Penelope that he loves her. This scene falls flat as Shawn stumbles through with no conception of the scene.

Falk, as the detective assigned to find the female robber with red hair, yellow suit and a wiggle, has created good characterization.

I was taken aback at Lila Kadrova's performance as this is not one of her better portrayals. She just didn't fit in with the rest of the cast. Her acting seemed stiff, totally unrelated to the concept of the story.

But all is forgiven as the ending is "and happily ever after." Penelope is now showing at Town and Country, Great Western and University Cinemas through Tuesday.

Entertainment Notes

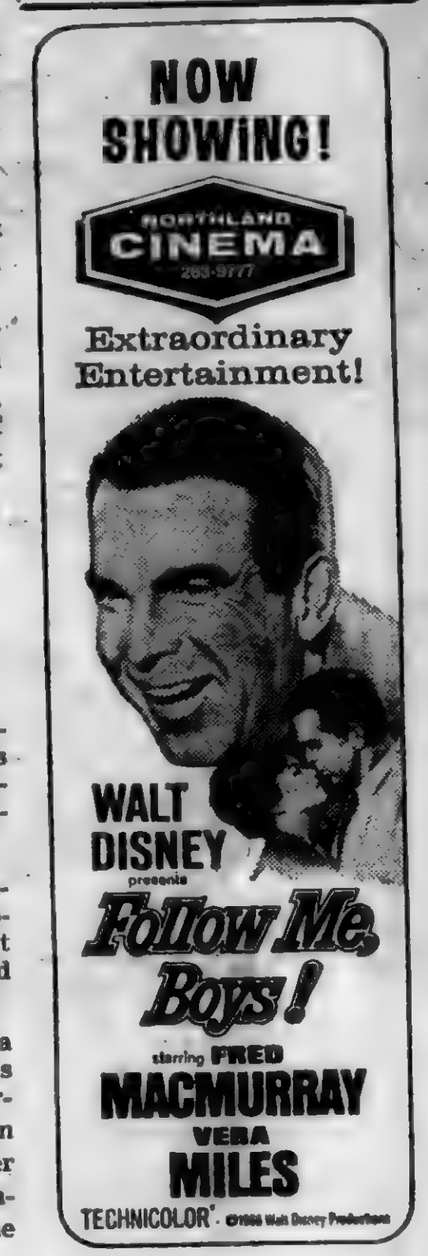
A visit to the Desert Inn, Aztec Room this past week developed into an hour of pleasure as Marvin Roberts, featured with a four piece combo, sang and played the "sax'.'

Although Roberts has been featured at the Desert Inn off and on for two years, his material and delivery is appealingly fresh.

Two words come to mind as each song is delivered. These are quiet and mellow. Keeping his style simple leaves one entertained by quality, not showmanship.

Max Gold on piano, Rod Mitz on bass and Wally Mitchell on drums comprise the combo.

The Aztec Room is both spacious and elegant with room for dancing, dining and bar. Thisi s without a doubt one of Columbus' best entertainment spots.



RADIO and TV NOTES

And So It Grows

Three new flowers and two new vegetables were named as winners of the 1967 All-America awards. These awards are designated each year by 20-plus judges each for vegetable plantings and for flower plantings. They make their selections after viewing at least 25 test gardens across the U.S., Mexico and Canada.

Flowers named were the "Foxy" foxglove, the "Golden Jubilee" marigold and the "San Francisco" sweet pea. Special about this foxglove is it's the first and only biennial foxglove to bloom the first season — about five months from seeds. It grows only about two and one-half feet tall, so it's called a dwarf. As many as nine branch spikes besides the main one grow on this variety. Plant spread measures about 15 inches. Colors available include white, yellow, cream, pink, lavender, magenta and purple.

Bright golden yellow is the color for the "Golden Jubilee" marigold selected. It's a new hedge or knee-high type of giant flowered marigold which grows about 20 inches high and sports blooms three and one-half to four and one-half inches in diameter. Making it an extra special plant is its ability to bloom early and be prolific.

The "San Francisco" bush type sweet pea chosen is a salmon cream pink. It offers more flowers per stems which don't drop. And its sturdy, heavy stems need no staking or other support. The strong stems also make it excellent for cutting. Plant height varies with climate and culture. It may vary from about 18 inches with four or five florets in four feet with five to 10 florets per stem.

The "Bell Boy" pepper and the "Spring Giant" tomato came out on top as the vegetable winners. This pepper is reportedly a blocky pepper great for stuffing as well as for salads. Usually four-lobed, the dark green fleshy fruits turn red at maturity. The plants, which are resistant to tobacco mosaic virus, grow from 18 to 24 inches tall.

"Spring Giant" tomato offers resistance to verticillium and fusarium wilts, which often plague tomato growers. It has a rich bright scarlet color, is heavy yielding, and has a deep globular shape. According to the All-America judges, "Spring Giant" tomatoes shine with top quality for home gardeners as well as for the commercial growers.

'Phenomenal Growth' Reported By Huntington National Bank

Huntington National Bank President Clair E. Fultz has reported what he terms "phenominal growth" in assets of $101 million during the two-year period which ended Dec. 31.

Fultz said The Huntington had assets of $419 million as of Dec. 31, 1966, an increase of 31.7 percent over December, 1964. In the quarterly period which ended Sept. 30, 1966, assets had been $380 million.

"This gain is indicative of the outstanding growth pattern shown by The Huntington in the decade since 1956 when assets of $176 million were reported," Fultz said.

"The predictable continued growth of Columbus along with the increasing of The Huntington's share of the region's banking gives our management much confidence in the coming first decade of Huntington's second century," he said.

Junior Achievers Plan Trade Fair

Trade fair chairman Carl W. Lindahl, Denison Division, Abex Corporation, has announced that four special attractions will be offered.

The special attractions include: an antique and classic car show; a competition among high school bands for prizes with finals set for the evening of Feb. 12; a beauty contest in which a dozen finalists will vie for the Miss JA Crown and door prizes of a color television set and a $500 college scholarship.

Admission to the fourth and largest of the trade fairs will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Children under 14 will be admitted free of charge.

Friendship Leads To Big Bequest To Cap

Capital University has received one of the largest bequests in its history thanks to the friendship between a Cap alumnus and a Pittsburgh, Pa., physician.

President Harold L. Yochum announced receipt o $113,451.-06 in cash and securities from the estate of the late Dr. Frederick W. Bremer of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Bremer never attended Capital, but became interested in the Bexley school through his 25-year friendship with Carl Hein, a 1929 graduate of Cap and currently an executive with Westinghouse Electric in Pittsburgh. He and Dr. Bremer met when both were attending St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Pittsburgh.

Through their enduring friendship, Dr. Bremer became interested in Capital, making periodic contributions to the university.

Sizebale portions of his $457,877 estate were also left to missions of the American Lutheran Church, which supports Capital.

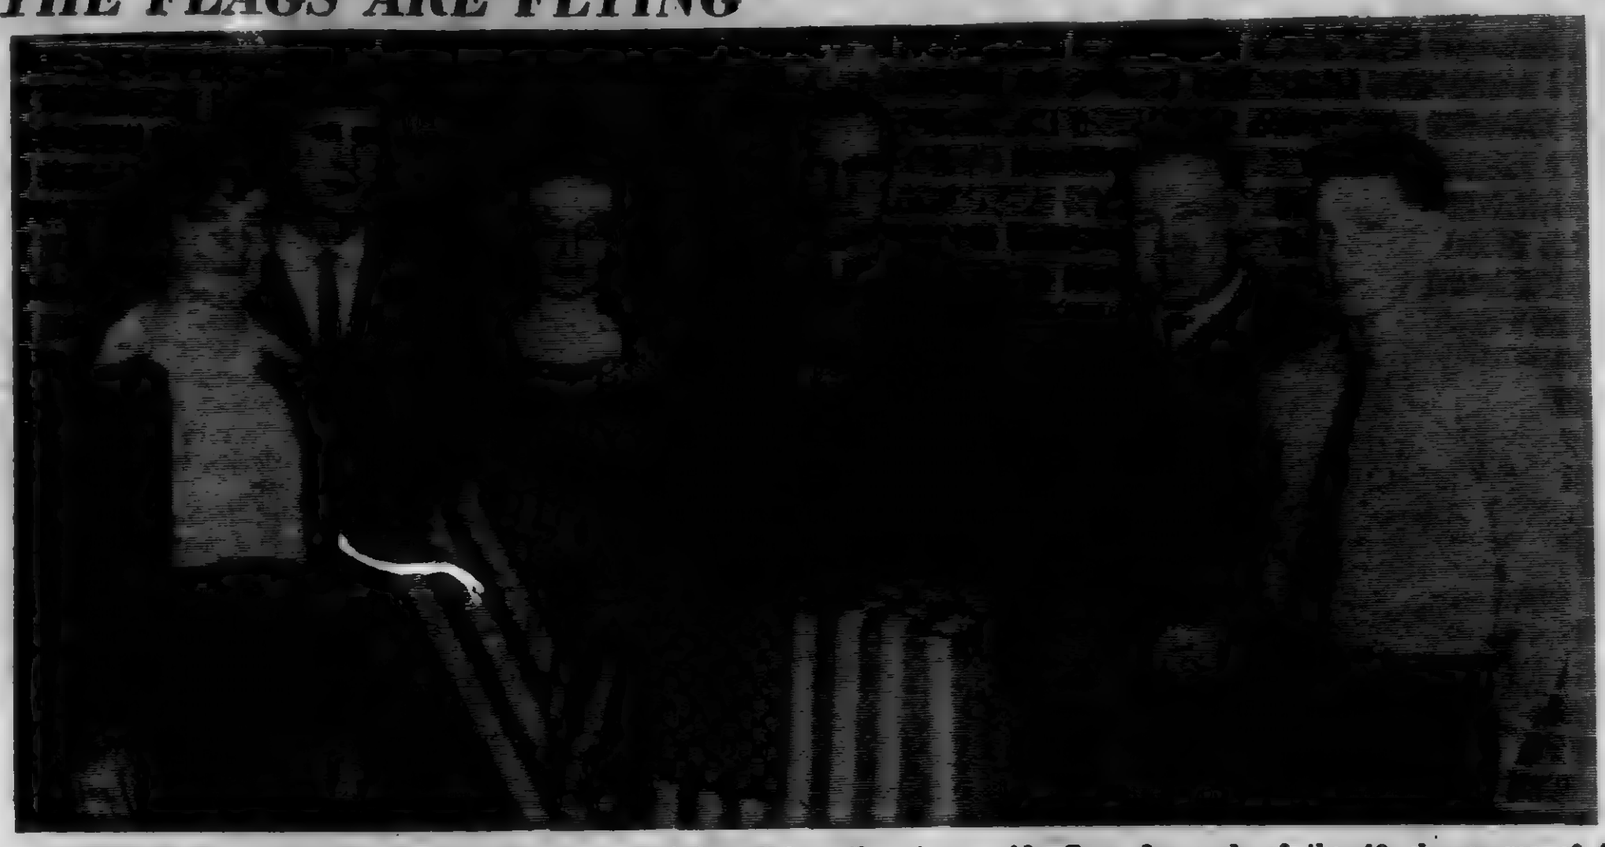
Walnut Ridge

Members of Mr. Glick's Current History classes prepared a radio debate for station WCBE which was heard Jan. 11 and 13. The topic for the debate was "Should We Change United States' Foreign Policy in Regard to Red China?"

Members of the class who participated in this debate were Mike Chambers, Maureen Whalen, Florence Little, Kevin Oberle, Jeff Shipman and Lynn Elk.



The 12 members of the Walnut Ridge Science Research class appeared on Channel 4 Jan. 10, as part of the Columbus Public Schools daily telecast at 7:25 a.m.

The annual Ugly Man Dance will be held at Walnut Ridge on Feb. 3 after the basketball game with Brookhaven from 10 to 11:15 p.m. All 12th grade boys are eligible to be chosen as the "ugly man" of Walnut Ridge.

Voting by the Senior High School will determine the top 10 choices and of these boys, five will be in the competition the night of the dance. Balloting for the "ugly man" will be done on each student's admission ticket to the dance.

The Columbus Technical Clinic each year asks for one nomination for "Science Student of the Year." From all nominations, three students are chosen to receive money prizes. The student who will represent Walnut Ridge in the competition will be David Drake, a senior majoring in the sciences.

THE FLAGS ARE FLYING

SOMETHING has been lacking at the new Wehrle High School on Parsons Avenue — the American Flag. However, thanks to the Jewish War Veterans, the Southern Kiwanis and the Southway Post 144 of the American Legion, the school is now exceptionally well-flagged. The War Veterans provided the flag for the front of the school and the Legionnaires and Kiwanians joined together to provide flags for each of the 40 classrooms of the building. Pictured at the presentation are, from the left, Vickey Fontain, student; Ray Gillenwater, Post commander; Sister Gavin, vice-principal; Father Clement Durbin, principal; Al Braverman, president of Kiwanis, and Jeff Troncff, student.

Guard Still Feels Callup Coming

By JANE WOLLEEMAN
Spectator Staff Writer
(FIRST IN A SERIES)

First Sgt. Victor A. Jutt, 4981 Palmetto-st, and Supply Sgt. George R. Hilf, 4634 Hanley-av, were ushered into the company commander's office.

I was sitting at his desk in the second floor office of the National Guard Armory at 4098 Sullivant-av. Without preamble, Capt. John Hughes said, "This lady wants to ask you some questions. Sit over there."

They sat . . . uneasily. After a few minutes in which I asked them about their military occupations, Sgt. Hilf said to the captain, "Sir, could we ask what this is for? Are we being drafted?"

No one had bothered to tell them that I was from a newspaper and they had taken me for a female emissary from the draft board!

It was an amusing incident, but the attitude of the two sergeants in immediately assuming that Uncle Sam wanted THEM is rather typical of most men in the Selected Reserve Force.

CAPTAIN HUGHES who lives at 1281 Bluff-av, said that when the Third Brigade (and his company) were originally put on Selected Reserve Force status the man had no doubt they were being readied for a call-up.

"Overnight our orders went from 50 to 60 percent strength to 100 percent strength. Our drills went from one evening drill per week to weekend drills almost every weekend. And when we began to receive all this new equipment . . . everything in the latest model and fully equipped . . . we thought we were ready to move," he said.

SRF Guardsmen have continued in this state of expectancy through summer camp, when the Third Brigade was tested for combat readiness to battalion level, and on into the fall. The fact that the Brigade has now passed one year as an SRF unit has only slightly increased its conviction it will be called up.

The Third Brigade, part of Ohio's 37th Division, was designated an SRF unit by Ohio's Adjutant General at the time of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara's re-organization of reserve manpower in late 1965.

By the first month of 1966 the unit had doubled its drills and was spending almost every weekend at the armory or in the field. Records were brought up to date complete with physicals on a par with the active Army.

Equipment began to arrive, jeeps, trailers, trucks, communication systems, weapons —the newest and best of everything and enough of it to get the unit into the field. By early 1966 the Brigade was up to 100 percent strength and 85 percent equipped. They were beginning battalion level training, preparing for the combat readiness test they must pass in June.

Guardsmen, whose family life was cut to the bone, and whose employers were seeing less of them than some of them would have preferred, could not believe they were getting all that attention merely to became a "ready backup" for the regular Army. Mobilization had to be their ultimate goal, they were sure. Some still think so.

CHECKING UNIFORM and pack of a Guardsman are (left to right) First Sgt. Victor A. Jutt, Supply Sgt. George Hilf, company commander Capt. James J. Hughes, and Sgt. Major Luther J. Beane. Maintaining and learning the use of new and modern equipment is a large part of the SRF unit's increased training.

There are about 2,500 men in a full strength brigade, which the Third now is. In one year they have arrived at the point of mobilization in which they could move the Brigade to a training area on one week's notice and could be ready for combat in four weeks.

The accelerated training and the great number of hours required to meet the SRF mission has worked a hardship on the men involved.

"Company commanders and the active duty technicians assigned to each company have borne the brunt of the increased work," Lt. Col. John Spain of Holly Hill, Brigade executive officer, stated.

"Our paper work doubled over night and so did the drill time . . . from 48 drills per year to 96. In the planning stages, officers traveled often more than 100 miles two or three times a week to make the change. We didn't lose a single officer during this period. And, considering the hardships at home and with the employers, we lost surprisingly few men over all."

CAPT HUGHES, commander of the Brigade Headquarters Company, said, "There is more work, of course. But since we are up to full strength we have the personnel to get it done. We no longer have sergeants doing privates' work. Having all this new equipment to work with has made a big difference in the morale of the outfit and so has the advance training schedule. Morale is very high."

The Army's assessment of the Third Brigade, part of the SRF 28th Division of Pennsylvania, is that it has fulfilled its mission. They passed their readiness test last summer at battalion level and are now proceeding on a reduced training schedule of 58 drills per year . . . 10 more than they had prior to SRF designation.

Next goal for the Third Brigade: To pass readiness testing at brigade level, participating in exercises with other brigades of the 28th Division.

Next: A look at the Army Reserve.

UCC To Give Priority To Public Welfare Education

WILL HELLERMAN, 4165 Saturn-rd, chairman of the United Community Council public welfare committee, points to problems surrounding welfare in Franklin County to, from left: Rev. N. H. VanderWerf, 1447 Archmere Square N. of the UCC welfare education committee; O. A. Donnenwirth, 3880 Fairlington-dr, UCC president, and G. Ray Fenner, 2678 Wexford-rd, member of the welfare committee.

MRS. LAZARUS said her committee would begin participation in a series of special events on Jan. 21 and 22 when it takes part in the Sabbath of Community Concern sponsored by area churches.

Mrs. Phillip Bradley, 593 Indian Mound-rd, was named chairman of a speakers' bureau which will provide speakers on public welfare to interested civic groups.

Other members of Mrs. Lazarus' committee include:

MISS SYLVIA Brooks of the County Welfare Department; Morris Butler, special services director for WLW-C TV; Glenn Campbell, director of communications for First Community Church; Mrs. Anna Coffman of South Side Settlement House; Mrs. H. D. Colson, 238 Irving-wy; and Mrs. John Deinhardt, 433 N. Drexel-av.

Also Jack Egan, business agent for Bakers Local Union 57; James Goodrich, public relations director for Lazarus; Mrs. Henry Grinsfelder, 2654 Ruhl-av; Thane Griffin, director of special services for the Ohio Citizens' Council; Mrs. Ben Handley, Jr., 2376 Abington-rd; Mrs. Joseph Horchow, 1190 E. Broad-st; Kenneth Kline, Department of Community Development, Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Jean Mackey, Planned Parenthood Clinic of Neighborhood House; the Rev. Fr. Bernard McClory, executive director of the Catholic Welfare Bureau.

ALSO THE REV. Jonathan H. Mitchell, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church; the Rev. E. A. Parham, Trinity Baptist Church; the Rev. Ward Parham, Bethany United Presbyterian Church; Mrs. Katherine Rhodes, 1109 Fair-av; Burton Schildhouse, public relations consultant; Dr. Richard Medhurst, director of the OSU School of Social Work; Mrs. Howard Sirak, 2399 Commonwealth-pk; Lawrence J. Tolbert of B&T Metals Co.; the Rev. N. H. VanderWerf of the Inter-Church Board for Metropolitan Affairs; Mrs. Seth Washburn, 400 Medick-wy, Worthington, and Bernard J. Wohl, executive director of the South Side Settlement House.

Public welfare education will get "number one priority" from the United Community Council in 1967, UCC President O. A. Donnenwirth has told The Spectator.

Donnenwirth and Mrs. Robert Lazarus, chairman of UCC's Public Welfare Education Committee, indicated UCC's immediate goal was "winning support for increasing assistance grants for Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) to 100 per cent of approved minimum standards."

DONNENWIRTH, 3880 Fairlington-dr, said more than 16,000 children in Franklin County were affected by ADC grants, which are currently based on only 62 percent of minimum standards for food, clothing, carfare and other personal expenses.

"Although we fully realize that 100 per cent of subsistence is not the entire answer," Donnenwirth said, "we believe it is a step in the right direction. We eventually need to consider additional legislation and community services such as basic adult education, family planning, additional day care, health and rehabilitative facilities and other matters in order that people may live decent lives."

East, Gahanna Face Top Loop Tests

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

It couldn't be done in Cuyahoga Falls nor in Canton nor last Saturday night in Newark, so if East's number one rated Tigers are to be licked Friday night it will be an inside job.

For the polished Tigers of Bob Hart (10-0) will travel to meet Vince Chickarella's always scrappy Panthers (10-1) in the City League showdown, with the winner more-than-likely emerging as the City champion.

THE GAME will put Linden's two super-stars . . . Jim Cleamons and Eddie Young . . . against an East team that can hurt teams from any of the five positions but killed Eastmoor last Friday from forward with the maneuvering of talented Eddie Ratleff, who wiggled free for 42 points.

Chickarella's Young takes an 18 point per game average and the 16.0 point scoring partner of Cleamons against Ratleff's 19.9 firing and Nicky Connor's 14.7 scoring in a game where East's awesome rebounding may make the biggest difference.

REBOUNDING WILL also play an important art in Gahanna's bid to unseat Mid-Eight champion Grove City when the Lions and the Greyhounds battle Friday at Grove City.

Gahanna will have a slight overall height advantage with Mike Browning (6-5), Fred Browning (6-4), Bob Lawhead (6-4) and Chuck Bosse (6-3) posing a tough board threat for GC's Roger White (6-5) and George Yates (6-6), and Greyhound taskmaster Herb Russell figures that the game will be won or lost in the rebounding phase of it.

"WE ARE faster than they are and we will have to keep them off the boards," Russell added, "they have hurt a lot of people with second shots."

Gahanna's John Stanley doesn't look for game plans to be altered too much from the first meeting which went to his Lions 51-49.

"I FEEL that the team who does the best with what he has been doing all year will be the winner," John said.

But Stanley did figure that a little more pressure should be put on GC's Yates who has improved throughout the season. "He is capble of hurting you if he is not guarded properly," John concluded.

FRED BROWNING (208 points), Mike Browning (165) and Chuck Bosse (185) has been the best for Gahanna while Yates' 189 points and Lloyd Curtis' 154 markers is leading the 'Hounds offense.

Gahanna carries a 10-3 overall mark compared to Grove City's 9-3 record, both have one defeat in the league.

BEXLEY'S GENE Millard says that the Buckeye Conference could be knotted up after Friday play with his Lions facing Delaware and league leading Grandview facing always tough Urbana in Urbana.

"We are looking to win over Delaware and Grandview has a tough road trip going to Urbana," Gene said, "it is tough winning there."

Millard figures to see a mostly high post man offense from the Pacers with a little shuffle and a 2-1-2 or 1-3-1 zone defense to go with their man-to-man defense.

BOB FORMAN has been credited with an important role in the past three games for Bexley as he has been averging 22 points per game along with 15 rebounds in those outings.

From the foul line Forman has notched 26 of 28 with 14 of them coming in a row.

"He is really coming along strong," Gene stated.

CAGE NOTES: The boy that DeSales' Jerry Connor feels is the most complete ball player in the city lived up to Jerry's respect Friday night in a key Central Catholic League clash.

Denny Parker zipped in 15 foot jumper with one second remaining to give the defending CCL champs a 50-49 comeback win over a taller DeSales team. Parker heroics were set up by two Mike Irwin jumpers in the last minute of play to bring Hartley from a 49-44 deficit to the victory margin.

HAWK FORWARD Rod Parker teamed up with his brother to score 30 of Hartley's 50 point total. Denny netted 10 while junior Rod scored a game high 20 to give the Hawks their eighth straight win over the 10 game card.

Irwin turned in some dazzling floor play to help Denny in the gained possession department, but the most important gained possession wasn't picked by either but was the result of their tight defense when DeSales had the ball out with seven seconds remaining. Irwin and Parker put the clamps on Stallion guards causing the ball to be throw away setting up Parker's game deciding goal.

ACROSS TOWN East working Eastmoor on the boards en route to a 101-64 victory that was paced by the 52 point scoring of dangerous sophomore Eddie Ratleff.

The Tigers fired in a 57 per cent shooting night compared to the cool Warriors 31 per cent total. That and rebound-

Spectator's Cage Spotlight

Eddie Ratleff

Nicky Connor

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

East High's top-ranked Tigers have been getting the bulk of their offensive scoring punch from a pair of blue ribbon sophomores, Eddie Ratleff and Alonzo Nicky Connor.

The feared twosome, who take their cage act to Linden Friday night, were labeled "real competitors" by veteran Tiger coach Bob Hart.

"THEY BOTH played on winners in junior high," Hart said, "and brought that winning attitude with them."

Connor, a rangy 6-4 forward has posted 147 points in the Tigers first 10 games and pulled down 14 rebounds per game. The Mohawk Junior High product has been netting 50 percent of his shots from the floor for a 14.7 point per game mark.

HIS RUNNING-MATE at forward Ratleff, a 6-4 west shot nicknamed "The Rat" by teammates, owns a 19.9 point per game average with about eight rebounds per outing. The Champion Junior High whiz has bagged 54 percent of his shots for his 199 point total including a 42 output against Eastmoor last Friday.

Hart, who guided his 1963 Bengals to a state crown, hailed his prize pair:

"The league is very lucky to have one of their caliber as sophomores, so we are most fortunate to have two of them."

'Top 8', B-H Invite Top Mat Schedule

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

With approaching league meets looming on the horizon for a shortened '66-'67 high school wrestling season, the last two major mat tourneys of the season headline the schedule this Saturday at DeSales and Brookhaven.

The Stallions play host to the "really big show" annually in the "Big Eight" match (featuring top eight finishers at last season's District Meet).

DISTRICT finishers (in order of finish) who will vie for honors Saturday will be East, DeSales, Worthington, Franklin Heights, West, Eastmoor and Whitehall.

Watterson, the ninth-place District team last season, will sub for Arlington which declined its invitation to participate.

"Big Eight" prelims get under way at 1 p.m., according to host coach Bob Triano, with finals slated for 7:30 p.m.

AWARDS will include trophies for the top team and 11 individual champions, ribbons for second-place individuals and an award for the tourney's "most outstanding wrestler."

The latter honor will be presented by Don Woodland, ex-Franklin Heights and Capital U. mat coach — now a City Councilman.

Columbus West, which nosed out defending District champ East last season, is defending champ.

INDIVIDUALS vying for second straight wins include Franklin Heights Dick Grambo (112) and Charlie Hall (145), DeSales' Steve Arnold (120) and East's Ralph Cox (112).

Feature match of the day should come at 112 where Cox battles Grambo, the former winning at 103 last year, the latter at 112.

In a meeting earlier this season, Cox decisioned Grambo, 5-2.

ADMISSION for the Top Eight Meet will be 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for students (prelims), $1 for adults, and 50 cents for students (finals).

Also on tap Saturday across Karl-rd at Brookhaven will be the Bearcats' Invitational with North, South, Walnut Ridge, Central, Bishop Ready, Bishop Hartley and Gahanna joining the 'Cats.

This tourney (third annual same as Top Eight) will open with 10:30 a.m. prelims, followed by finals (about 4 p.m.).

HARDWARE includes trophies for the winning team and "most outstanding wrestler" plus awards for the individual weight class champs.

Mating Choices Few For Metro Quartet

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

The remaining four members of the shortened Metropolitan League are busy shopping this week.

But like their post-holiday counterpart busily poring over downtown store counters, they are likely to find that most of the choice merchandise has been gobbled up.

HOPES FOR the Metro foursome's (Pleasant View, Franklin Heights, Teays Valley and Hamilton Township) link up with the Mid-Eight League fell through last week with the admission of Bexley and Grandview to the latter circuit, thus reestablishing an eight-school loop.

Aligned together in the four-school South Suburban League several years ago, the outlook was brightened with a union with Reynoldsburg and Whitehall, thus forming the Metropolitan League.

But the Metro appears short-lived as the latter two schools broke away to join ex-Mid-Eight members Westerville and Gahanna and independent Worthington in inaugurating the Ohio Capital Conference (set to begin play in Septembre, 1968)

THE FOUR schools have set a parley for noon today but nobody is looking with great optimism for a solution to the problem that soon.

It might appear that the quartet's failure to jump somewhere on the league merry-go-round when it slowed last month has left the four schools right back where they started from a few years back.

Metro athletic directors admit that (1) hopes to add members to its own alignment are dwindling due to a scarcity of non-league schools and (2) chances for admission to a full-strength Mid-Eight or the five-school Ohio Capital Conference look slim.

TRAVELING distances admittedly make Bexley and Grandview's old Buckeye Athletic Conference mates — Delaware and Urbana — unattractive.

Feelers to several other schools (Circleville, Miami Trace and Washington C.H.) have turned up "negative."

Metro members attended a meeting at Fairfield Union recently but came back disinterested in linking up with the bulk of the schools attending the meeting.

PIN NEWS

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Be sure to catch the new Championship Bowling at 2:30 on Sundays on WLW-C and remember the noon "Let's Go Bowling" on WTVN-TV.

Junior City Doubles of Greater Columbus' Junior Bowling Association will be held at Main Lanes Feb. 4-5. More than 400 youngsters participated in the singles recently at Northern Lights. Trophy winners will be invited to the Sports Awards dinner in May.

IT WAS a 729 for Bob Brown, third 700 series in two weeks, in the Amos Masters A/3C Ron Stromfield rolled a 711 at Lockbourne. Joe Taylor left a 7-pin after a run of six strikes and totaled 279. George Brake got a 267/718 at Amos.

Zep Chemical at Rainbow garnered a 3264 (1,000, 1150, 1114) for season's high — one pin higher than their own record.

Northern Lights continues newsworthy scores like Bill Dietrich's 278, Betty Barrett's conversion of the big four and Linda Gairney's 254-657 in the Ladies' Trio.

BEFORE THE holiday lull in collegiate circles, WIBC had sanctioned 10 leagues and 144 new members under its collegiate division, which was initiated in September. There were 43 additional leagues completing sanction applications, with a potential of 842 additional WIBC members. The WIBC collegiate division is a special membership service program to provide sanctioned league and tournament bowling for women college students.

Carl Mattern entered the 1940 Rochester, N.Y., association tournament and was assigned an 11 pin handicap based on his average. He then strung 12 strikes for 300 and, with his handicap, had a 311.

WHEN ASKED what was the best average he ever carried in league, ABC Hall of Famer Hank Marino likes to answer, "235." He filled in one game for a missing member of a Marino summer league team and bowled 235. The fellow showed up then, and Hank ended his play in that league.

ing power told the story of the game.

RATLEFF HAD a 17 of 28 shooting night from the field and a eight for eight free throw percentage in bagging his 42 points.

THE 42 POINT effort of East's dandy sophomore Eddie Ratleff paced the point parade last weekend. Ratleff's total helped his Tigers in a 101-64 win over Eastmoor. Carroll's Roger Epperson totaled 40 in the Bulldogs' 82-59 win over Liberty-Union for a second high performance followed by Linden's Eddie Young, who netted 31 points in the Panthers' 90-45 win over West, New Albany's Glyde Marsh, who bucketed 30 points in the Eagle's 81-68 win over St. Mary, and West Jefferson's ace Mike Tyree who canned 30 in the Rider's 66-55 triumph over Dublin.

Fearless Predictions

The Fearless One slipped a little from two weeks ago but came out with a 29-8 weekend that featured a few surprises even for him.

But his wondrous crystal ball got its monthly sprucing up and he is ready to go again.

Overall Fearless' total is 176-41 for an 81 percent.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

A year ago this month, Melvin J. Rebholz, chief of Ohio's Division of Parks, called a hearing in order to institute a program of higher horsepower motors on Ohio's fishing waters.

Sportsmen from Cleveland to Cincinnati and from all walks of life were on hand to protest the raising of horsepower. There were petitions by the thousands and dozens of clubs represented.

DESPITE THE fact that only one newcomer to the outdoor world rose to speak in favor of the change — the change was made. Over all signatures and hours of pleading, Rebholz went right ahead and did what he set out to do. He raised the outboard limit from six to 10 horsepower on six of Ohio's best fishing lakes. He was asked later in the year why he held the meeting if he was determined to ignore all democratic processes. He smiled when he said, "It's the law, I have to hold a hearing."

PAUGH

Somehow, that attitude has the aroma of Hitler and Peron about it. It just doesn't jell with me. The odds were about 10,000 to one that he was doing right by the sportsmen but he went right ahead and carried out his plans. He instinctively knew more about outdoor recreation than 10,000 practicing fishermen.

ON JAN. 18 he will again prance and preen at a hearing of his own making. On the agenda are more changes to raise horsepower limits. The 18th falls on Wednesday and the meeting will take place at 9:30 a.m. at the Ohio Departments Building. Many of the proposed changes are innocent looking but carry a lot of weight. Thirty-seven lakes owned by the State of Ohio (and bought mainly with fishing license money) are being changed to "state parks."

As state parks they will serve the non-supporting picnickers and bird-watchers. The long suffering fishermen, who were forced to buy the waters, will be served less and less as the horsepower trends prove.

BECAUSE LAST year's hearing turned into a perfect parody of democratic processes, do not stay away from the hearing this year. As long as the sportsmen show what they want with a show of strength, Rebholz must lay bare his true nature. Your time will not be wasted if you show up and stand up to be counted. It has been proven that no matter how large the force against the Chief of Parks, he will execute his ambitions. But as long as you sportsmen are there for his "hearings," he'll find it tough to look in the mirror every morning.

If the Parks Council appointed by the Governor had any backbone, they would look at those thousands of signatures and study those hundreds of eager faces out in the crowd instead of looking at their watches to see if that free lunch is near. Rebholz is apparently in a very sheltered position behind the Director of Natural Resources and the Governor. No matter what the public wants or doesn't want, GOOD OLE MEL just heads straight through to whatever his lofty goal might be.

Scot Matmen Set Area Mat Tourney Pace

Walnut Ridge stole the wrestling thunder on area mats last week by topping an eight-team field at Pleasant View's invitational — edging the hosts, 89-83.

Terry Roberts (103), Dave Carr (148), Dave Saffle (156) and Bob McFarland (167) set the winners' pace with finals victories.

THE SCOTTIES also gathered two seconds and three thirds to help compile that winning total.

Keith Stevens and Ralph Cox earned finals wins at 103 and 132 respectively but East had to settle for third place (57) behind winner Grovesport (61) and runnerup Whetstone (58) at Westerville's invite Saturday.

Whitehall placed fifth at Worthington's classy invitational whose title was shared by the hosts and Martins Ferry.

HEAVYWEIGHT Ken Flowers and 129-pounder Steve Beery earned the lone finals wins for the Rams — the latter compiling the most pins (three) in the shortest amount of time.

In area dual meets, Whitehall pinned Eastmoor, 32-14, Central dropped winless Bexley, 35-8, DeSales stopped East, 32-11, and Eastmoor battered Ready, 39-4.

Steve Beery rounded Whitehall's "charge" as the Rams overcame an 11-0 T-M lead by winning seven of the last eight matches.

BEERY EARNED a decision at 120 and Spike Ludwig, Dave Nichols, Mark King, Mike Case, Ken Schmitt and Ken Flowers followed with wins, the latter via a pin.

Dom Caminiti, Dan Callinan, Pete Prendergast and Larry Mixon got Warrior wins.

Mike Neff (by forfeit) and unbeaten Reese Lattimer (by decision) earned Bexley's only points in the setback to Central.

DOM CAMINITI, Dan Callinan, Steve Flower, Bob Schuster, Rick Neuperf, Larry Mixon and Steve Casto all registered pins in Eastmoor's walkaway win over Ready.

A pair of decisions by Keith Stevens and Ralph Cox and heavyweight Bob Truse's pin-win gave East a good start and big finish but DeSales did the scoring in between in the Statlers' dual win over the Vipers.

members as possibilities for membership are neighboring West Jefferson and Dublin.

The two schools (along with "phasing-out" St. Mary) now form what's left of the old Franklin County League.

Both schools are admittedly shopping around for greener pastures but alignment with the Metro quartet en masse would appear dim in light of the pair's small enrollment.

WEST JEFFERSON athletic director Don Schiff left the door open last week when he told The Spectator: "We're always interested in talking. But, as you can see, our size is certainly a shortcoming in any consideration of joining with the Metro schools."

FOR TIRED SKIN
About this time of the year everyone is pressing so hard to meet family and social obligations that we're all dead tired and look it, too. What to do about it? Well, I'm sure I don't have to remind you to take your vitamins. In this enlightened world taking vitamins is as generally accepted a part of a woman's daily beauty program as taking her daily bath. There are many fine cosmetic masques and lubricants that help enormously and perhaps you'd be interested to hear about a new way we've learned to make use of that good old standby white vaseline.

Heat it until it's warm (not hot) and apply sparingly all over the face including the eyelids. Cover the whole face wth a cloth or cotton saturated in warm (very warm almost hot) water. Lie back comfortably allowing nature's magic to do the rest for 15 to 30 minutes. (At this point we would seal in the oils with a hot plastic covering). Remove the vaseline with a good freshener (not an astringent) and you're ready for your makeup. You're sure to notice a remarkable improvement. Or if all this is too much trouble come in and let us give you this facial in our salon.

AND NOW . . . FROM TURKEY
Fashions begin to have a definitely Turkish look. They are catching on in New York and Paris so perhaps we'd better consider them seriously too. Like Istanbul — Constantinople itself the fashion has both the old Turkey of Mosques and Harems and the modern westernized Turkish look. We were particularly interested to observe how hairstyles would be handled to go with fashions from the land where hair was always totally covered. It has been managed by Wearing the hair in a close to the head side drape completely covering the ears making an enchanting oval of the face. It finishes with an elaborate loose chignon worn very low almost below the neck. A delightfully Eastern Old-World look is achieved. It is also refreshingly new.

ARE YOU HOPELESS ENOUGH FOR IT TO DO ANY GOOD?
We like new patrons who have reached the point where they don't believe anything can be done to restore their charms. At that point they invariably follow our advice much more faithfully. And we DO get results. Try us.

HEARD UNDER THE DRYER
Only an American would pay for policing the world, then complain if he doesn't get 12 shaves on one blade.

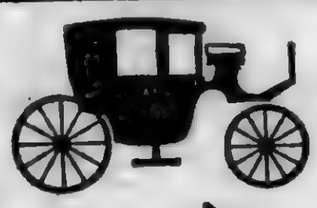
ACCEPTED

Richard F. Heuer, 845 S. Hampton-rd, has been accepted as a Big Brother by the Big Brothers Association. In this capacity, he will be assigned to a boy who does not have a father in the home. Heuer, a department manager with the J. C. Penney Co., is a member of Faith Lutheran Church. He and his wife, Lou Ann, have no children.

SHALL IT BE plain or shall it be fancy? This sweater features set in sleeves and a shawl collar which can either be worn up as shown by Diana Lee or turned down as shown by Irene Irwin. The inside facing is knitted separate and can of course be knitted in a contrasting color. We knitted the sweater in a white worsted weight yarn with a red facing which makes for an eye-catching contrast. The cost of yarn for this entire garment came to approximately $8. The yarn flower decoration on the sweater at the right was made from leftover pieces of mohair yarn. Illustrated instructions are written in sizes 12 through 20 for mother and 10 through 14 for daughter. All sizes are included on one pattern. To obtain these patterns send 75 cents for each to Ursula duBois, Spectator Newspapers, Box 3307, Van Nuys, Calif. 91407.

Let's Knit

Some pattern stitches require the knitting together of a number of stitches. This can pose a rather tight situation especially if you are a tight knitter.



A fan writes the following: "I had quite a bit of difficulty in kitting four stitches together until I got the idea of using a number two crochet (steel) hook to slip through the knit four stitches and pulling the yarn through with the aid of the crochet hook, instead of using the needle. This works like a dream and the knit four together stitches aren't a problem anymore. Just thought perhaps this little hint would make it easier for other fellow knitters."

QUESTION: "Dear Miss duBois: I am knitting a cardigan and after sewing up the sides and shoulders I would like to add a collar, but instead of sewing the collar on separate, I would like to knit it right onto the cardigan. Do I start the picking up of stitches for the collar at the right neck center edge or the left?"

ANSWER: I would start at the inside of the left center front ending at the right front edge. In this way the seam will be at the outside of the garment, but under the collar giving the garment an all-over neat appearance.

Ohio Bell To Spend $19.5 Million Here

The Ohio Bell Telephone Company will spend $19.5 million in expansion and modernization programs in the Columbus area during 1967.

The announcement was made at a press conference held last night by Ohio Bell President F. R. Eckley, who said the $19.5 million figure is nearly $2 million more than last year's expenditures in metropolitan Columbus.

The bulk of the total, $14.2 million, will be spent within the city of Columbus.

Eckley said that 1967 "looks like another good year for business as a whole. In our case, the $125 million statewide construction program reflects enormous public demands on us."

The largest part of the total outlay in Columbus, $4.8 million, will be spent for communications equipment, construction equipment and motor vehicles.

Another $2.8 million will be spent on extension of cables, $2.7 million to introduce electronic switching systems to Columbus and $1.6 million for installation of additional toll facilities and microwave equipment.

Additional Centrex systems for large businesses will cost $1.5 million and $800,000 will be spent to install 6,000 additional lines for new customers.

Other expenditures in the metropolitan area include $200,000 for Alton, $100,000 for Canal Winchester, $200,000 for Dublin, $400,000 for Gahanna, $300,000 for Grove City, $400,000 for Lockbourne, $100,000 for New Albany, $700,000 for Reynoldsburg, $200,000 for Westerville and $400,000 for Worthington.

Eckley said Ohio Bell statistics show Columbus growing at a more rapid pace than the rest of the state and the nation.

In 1966, 27,181 new telephones were installed, bringing the total number of phones in the district to 506,462. Columbusites made an average of 2,130,111 local calls per day last year, compared with 2,084,377 in 1965. Long distance calls rose more than 5,000 per day on the average to a daily average of 68,850.

"Despite moves toward mechanization which have been part of the communications business for many years," Eckley said, "the phone company still needs more people — as craftsmen, operators and business office service representatives — in virtually every large city where it operates."

Revco Reveals Plans For Two New Stores

Revco D.S., Inc., operator of a chain of 117 discount drug centers, today announced plans to open two new stores in the Columbus area.

Revco president Sidney Dworkin announced in Cleveland that the new Columbus stores would be at 887 S. Hamilton-rd in Whitehall and at 4942 N. High-st. The Whitehall store will open Feb. 1, while the North Side outlet is scheduled to open Feb. 15.

THE TWO NEW units will give Revco three stores in the Columbus area. The company already operates a store at 41 N. High-st.

Dworkin said the decision to expand local operations was due to "the excellent patronage of our downtown store."

"Many Columbus residents told us they would appreciate the convenience of having a Revco Discount Drug Center in their home neighborhood," he said.

PLANS ARE also under way to open additional stores in other areas of Columbus.

Tommy Henrich Featuring Bombshell Singer, Sue Darby

Susan Darby is a 21 year old bombshell of a singer who opened Monday at Tommy Henrich's.

She sings rock 'n roll, ballads, popular and old time favorites with complete unawareness of the word "showmanship." She doesn't need it. She is herself and that is more than enough as she belts out every song with her heart, soul and voice in it.

Susan is a talented performer in all respects and is certainly deserving of Columbus' attention.

As a matter of fact there was a girl singer some years ago — Nancy Wilson — who was here and now belongs to the ages as she has made the professional world of entertainment. Susan will be there some day soon.

Her arrangements are varied, enabling all ages to fully enjoy her singing.

As for Tommy Henrich's, it is exquisite as a new policy is now in operation. This policy is "new, fresh and promising talent." This policy is well under way as Susan and the backup band, "In-Men," entertain nightly.

Several changes have been made at Tommy's restaurant and night-club. There are female baseball players everywhere — the hat check girl and the waitresses.

These uniforms are clever and charming. For easy identification numbers are on the back of the shirts. These numbers were worn by famous New York Yankees who played with Henrich.

Henrich will continue the policy of no cover, no-minimum charge. Also plans are being made to open a cocktail lounge to be called "Bull Pen" which will feature a reduced price cocktail hour, entertainment and a limited menu.

If it is entertainment, elegance, atmosphere, warmth or good food you are seeking, do check your coat with number one at Tommy Henrich's home base.

OSCAW Spokesman Claims Ohio Legislature Is Boxed In

"We have the legislature boxed in," stated Mrs. Gwendolyn Gaston of Cleveland, "the members must listen to us."

Mrs. Gaston, a welfare client who is vice-chairman of the Ohio Steering Committee for Adequate Welfare, was discussing the group's plans after the state-wide meeting at the South Side Settlement House last week.

SHE EXPLAINED her contention by saying the legislature has the poor on one side of the box, their supporting organizations on the second side, industry on the third and "threat" on the fourth.

Claiming that no one can define this threat, she states that, even nameless, it is an effective weapon in the OSCAW's effort to have the Ohio lawmakers meet their demands.

The group has asked concerned people to convene at the downtown YMCA, 65 S. Fourth-st at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 25, to study legislation needed "to build an adequate public assistance program in Ohio."

CURRENTLY they have a five-point program which includes asking that funds be appropriated to provide welfare grants at 100 percents of current standard, revised state standards for public assistance to meeting cost - of - living changes, emergency funds for a $100 clothing grant for 125,000 school children on public assistance, revision of tax structure to provide for increased state services and permission for welfare clients to supplement welfare grants up to the poverty level by earned wages without a corresponding decrease in the assistance they are now receiving.

If the efforts at next Wednesday's meeting, to which legislators have been invited, prove fruitless Mrs. Gaston stated that other strategies will be employed. She declined to spell out what these strategies would involve.

It is impossible to accurately report all that was discussed at the meeting as it was closed to the press.

MRS. GASTON stated this action was taken because of "negative reporting" on OSCAW programs in the past and because it was felt that the presence of the press would tend to muffle the people attending the meeting. (The steering committee is made up of two welfare recipients and one interested person from each of seven Ohio cities. Bill Whitaker of the South Side Settlement house and Georgia Bounderant and Coleen Agnew represent Metropolitan Columbus).

Mrs. Gaston also stated that "we have to get our own bed bugs out" before they are ready to talk for publication.

Although stressing that the committee is firmly entrenched against the use of violence to obtain relief for clients, she expressed the fear that if something is not done soon those on public assistance will be aroused to the point they will take matters into their own hands.

INDICATING that she is more optimistic than some other committeemen on the effectiveness of pleas to the legislature, Mrs. Gaston was emphatic that no one any longer believes Gov. Rhodes will raise a little finger to help them.

"I'd say he has mud in his veins, but mud eventually thickens, so that cannot be accurate. I can't even say he has ice water in his veins, because it, too, congeals," she stated.

Claiming that there is strength in organization she stated that she was encouraged to see new faces at the recent meeting.

ONE PERSON seen leaving the meeting was the Rev. Don Huey, the "sidewalk parson" of Parsons Avenue.

Auxiliary Will Hear Defense Director

Russell E. Pennel, director of local Civil Defense, will speak when the Auxiliary of the American Legion, Southway Unit 144 meets at 8 p.m. Friday, at the Post home, 874 S. High-st.

Mrs. Wilmajean Backus and Mrs. Alma Hahn will serve refreshments.

Progress Edition Inside

The Spectator today presents its seventh annual Progress Edition, highlighting 1966 and looking forward to economic growth in Central Ohio in 1967. This 32-page special section will be found inside your regular paper. The front cover art is used through the courtesy of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. and the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce.

Speed Limit Signs Up

Those long-awaited speed limit signs on the East Freeway from the Innerbelt to Hamilton Road are finally up. The city and the state worked out their argument over who should erect the signs and City Engineering Department crews began the installation late last week. For the present, the limit will be 60 miles per hour for cars and 50 for trucks along the entire length of the East Freeway. But City Traffic Engineer James Musick said consideration would be given to raising the limit east from Alum Creek Drive once construction work on the highway is completed. Mayor Sensenbrenner indicated he felt the signs would also "give police a lever to enforce the speed limit."

Adult Education Classes Slated

A 10-week program of self-improvement courses will be offered to Reynoldsburg adults in the high school at 7:30 p.m. beginning Feb. 7. Classes in typing, physical conditioning for men and women, sewing, art, shorthand, interior decorating, drivers' education, income tax preparation, office procedures and business practices will be offered. A minimum of 10 students is needed for a course to be offered. If enough interest is shown, other classes may be added. Registration is from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. and will be closed on Feb. 3. For additional information, call the high school, 866-6397.

Trailer Deadline Nears

The deadline for filing applications for registration of house trailers and making complete payment of house trailer tax is Tuesday, Jan. 31, reminds County Auditor Arch J. Warren. Deputy auditors are on hand daily Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., to assist in the preparation of applications. Warren emphasized that applications and payments received after Jan. 31 will be subject to a penalty. Questions relative to the tax should be directed to Freda Galloway or Bill Zim at 221-1181, extension 269 or 270.

FRIEND OR FOE?

Whitehall eager Bill Anderson (20) looks a bit pensive as he reaches for a rebound Friday. That white uniform looks familiar enough (teammate Jerry Sickles) figures Bill but that bump on the head doesn't seem a bit friendly. Guest Worthington was unkinder yet, defeating the Rams, 81-65.

Revco To 'Blast Off' In Whitehall

Firing of a salvo of miniature rockets will herald the grand opening of the new Revco Discount Drug Center at 887 S. Hamilton-rd in Whitehall on the morning of Thursday, Feb. 2.

Two men in space suits will participate in the opening ceremonies, and a replica of the space-conquering Gemini capsule will be on display at the store all day.

Whitehall Mayor Paul Haytcher and Sidney Dworkin, president of Revco D.S., Inc., will formally open the new center at 9 a.m.

The rockets will blast off after Mayor Haytcher snips the ribbon.

Dworkin announced that the "blast-off" will launch a major Revco expansion in the Columbus area.

Revco already operates a downtown store at 41 N. High-st.

"Many customers have asked us to provide similar prescriptions and health needs services in their home neighborhoods," Dworkin said. "That is our program."

Another new Revco Discount Drug Center will be opened at 4942 N. High-st later in February and the company is seeking other sites throughout the Metropolitan Columbus area.

The Whitehall store will be the 118th outlet in the fast-growing Revco chain.

Purpose of the "space-age" grand opening theme is to spot-light Revco's modern merchandising method and emphasize the "out-of-this-world" savings, Dworkin said.

Revco, known as "America's only total discount drug chain," was founded in Detroit nine years ago. The firm's formula for success was to combine emphasis on prescriptions with self-service sales of quality products at the lowest practical "everyday prices."

Starting with four stores, the chain has grown to 118 by opening new outlets and acquiring other outlets. Largest acquisitions were the Standard Drugs chain of Cleveland, where Revco's headquarters are now located, and the Gallaher chain of Dayton and Central and Southeastern Ohio.

This week, Revco received a plaque from Squibb honoring the fact that the firm's pharmacists have compounded more than 20 million prescriptions.

Revco pharmacists now sell almost five million prescriptions per year, more than any comparable national chain, including several with larger numbers of stores.

Revco pioneered in establishing a widely-imitated "senior citizens discount plan," which grants an extra 10 percent reduction in prescription prices to men and women 60 years and older.

The space suits and Gemini capsule will be provided by the Center of Science and Industry of the Franklin County Historical Society. Revco will distribute free tickets to the center to Whitehall school children.

Pharmacist Herman Stavis of 4238 Rickenbacker dr, Whitehall, will manage the new store. He has been assistant manager of the downtown Columbus Revco store for the past five years. Stavis is a graduate of the Ohio Northern University School of Pharmacy. His wife, Linda, is a fourth grade teacher at Whitehall's E. Broad Street Elementary School.

Whitehall Smashes Records In Recreation Participation

Whitehall residents broke all previous records in using their recreation facilities during 1966, Whitehall Recreation Director John LaCorte reported this week.

LaCorte said total participation in the program came to 131,874 in all programs ranging from indoor and outdoor sports to Senior Citizens activities.

LaCorte cited a Certificate of Merit awarded to the city by the Sports Foundation, Inc., as the highlight of the year. The award honored the city for "growth and achievements in the field of management, parks and recreation programs."

Whitehall's Senior Citizens established a first during the year when the group chartered a bus and toured a glass factory in Williamstown, W. Va.

In sports, the Celtics won the junior boys' basketball league with Denny Purdue as leading scorer; Chances R won the young adult men's hoop crown with Sam Maxwell, Ken Maxwell and Terry Tedder leading the way and the Darnell squad won the men's softball championship.

East Main Street and Beechwood won boys' softball crowns while the Beechwood girls won their softball title.

In addition, a softball program for women was introduced during 1966 and more than 300 children participated in the Junior Olympics program.

Vocational School Construction Unlikely Before Mid-Summer

With preparation of working drawings for the East Franklin County Vocational School slower than anticipated, Tom Quick, superintendent of the Franklin County Schools, predicts advertising for construction bids will not begin until late May or early June.

This will preclude b'ds being awarded and ground being broken much before July 1.

QUICK EXPLAINED that efforts to satisfy the views of individual members of the joint board and the recommendations of administrators of the individual schools is largely responsible for the delay.

When the board met last week, it learned that extensive soil tests have been completed to furnish the architect with information upon which to base the decisions that must be made concerning the type of foundation to be used.

Although color is still a moot question, the new facility will utilize concrete block construction with brick facing.

IT HAS ALSO been determined that windows in the shop areas will be relatively small and high to conserve usable wall space in the areas where the need for such is critical. In other areas (academic classrooms and administrative offices, for example), windows will be lower and larger, although still kept to a minimus to prevent heat loss. Another decision yet to be made is that of natural gas versus an electrical heating plant.

DAVID MARTIN, superintendent of the Vocational Distric, who will assume his responsibilities Feb. 1, attended last week's board meeting as part of his efforts to keep abreast of the building program as it evolves.

QUICK EXPLAINED that although the schedule is not coming along quite as rapidly as originally expected, the architects (Dan A. Carmichael) are pushing to catch up.

The board has completed its part of the contract through which it enters into a joint effort with the State Department of Vocational Education to establish the new facility. (Areas devoted exclusively to vocational education are 50 percent subsidized with state-held funds received from the federal government).

Participating school districts include those of Canal Winchester, Madison, Whitehall, Reynoldsburg and Jefferson Local.

Brubaker Honored By Eastern Kiwanis

Charles Brubaker, 2645 Powell-rd, was honored as outstanding 1966 member of the Kiwanis Club of Eastern Columbus at the club's annual President's Party.

Brubaker served as new club building chairman and was honored for his work in the development of the new Berwick Kiwanis Club.

William H. Edwards, 3861 Gilroy-rd, received the Distinguished Service Award for his work as editor of the club's weekly bulletin.

Outgoing president Donald L. Callander, 1193 Pierce-av, was presented with an antique rifle as a token of appreciation from the club.

Master of ceremonies for the party was Harold F. Marsh, 62 S. Dawson-av, past president of the Eastern Kiwanis. Guest speaker was Harry E. Rawlins of Lancaster, lieutenant governor of Kiwanis Division 10E.

Scots Bite South, Face Cowboy Rope

BY BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Walnut Ridge relied on some tenacious defense and a last second shot by Paul Gillespie Jr., to get their first City Loop win of the year last Friday night, but the Scots couldn't celebrate with East stopping them last Saturday, and West facing them Friday night.

The Scotties (1-11) ditched South 54-53 in a game that was won with some dandy foul shooting (26 of 37) which was labeled by W-R cage coach Jackie Moore as a little below par for them this season. Said Jackie though not complaining about Friday's 71 per cent; "We have been hitting 80 per cent from the foul line."

ABOUT WEST, the Scot boss knows for sure that the Cowboys 6-4 pivot ace Mike Dreeling must be stopped. "Dreeling is the one we have to contain on the inside and (Doug) Sickmeier must be handled from the outside," Jackie said in running down plans for Friday's contest.

Dreeling owns a 226 point log that has been instrumental in West's 8-4 mark with Sickmeier getting 136 thus far to follow Dreeling's total.

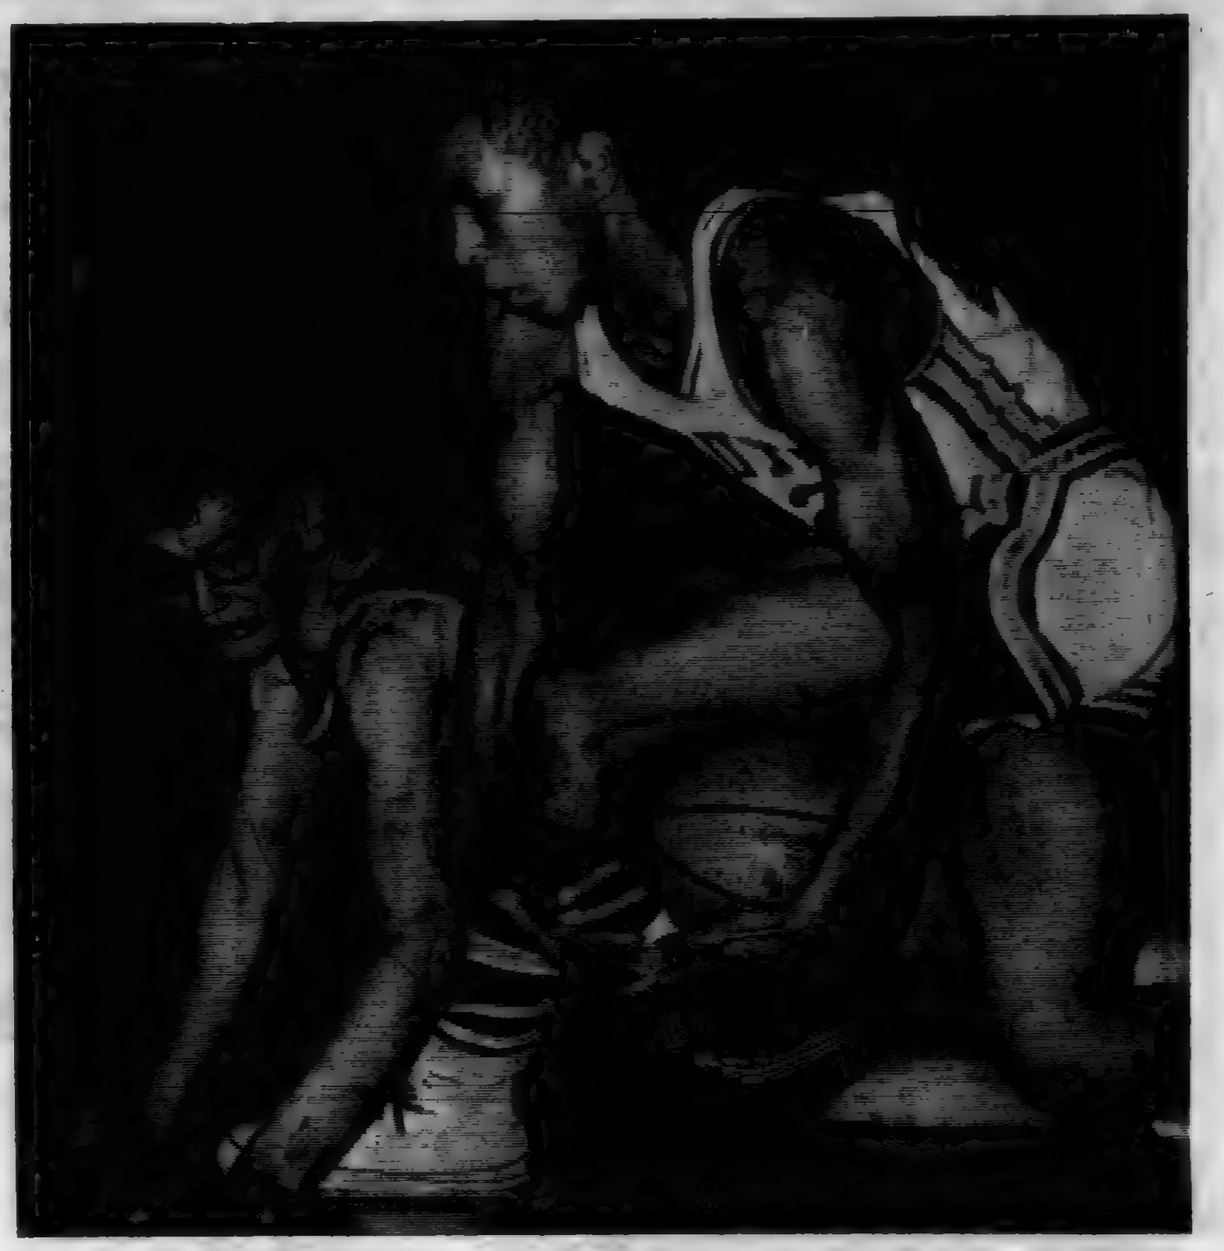
MOORE DID think that Kenny Shaw, from the outside, also merits some close watching.

Against East's top ranked Tigers, Walnut Ridge came up with a defensive gem by halting Eddie Ratleff to a single point. The Scots' man-to-man and zone combination hampered Ratleff with Bill Burget doing the heavy work.

RATLEFF STEPPED down from his role as scorer and became an assist man with Randy Smith, the Tigers' 6-6 center, getting the benefit and 26 points for his season's high.

In the South win, Moore feels that Burget and 5-7 Marc Trimmer's performance against the Bulldogs' press gave the Scots a big lift.

"FRIDAY'S GAME will be the one," said Watterson's Pat Mannion speaking of the two toughies that his spunky Eagle troopers run into this week end. That Friday date refers to a Central Catholic League showdown against rival Hartley (11-2) and "we will start thinking about Linden (10-2) at 8 o'clock on Saturday," Pat added.



The Eagles will be trying to avenge an earlier defeat at the hands of the Hawks, 48-39 in the first round of CCL action. Watterson has stumbled once since that time 58-51 to Springfield South while the Hawks of Dick Geyer have reeled off six wins to up their win streak to 11.

GEYER LOOKS for Watterson to be a little more offensively sound with the addition of Ben Melancon to the starting five. Said Dick: "He has been doing the job for them offensively in the past two games."

Now Hartley's cool defenders, 3-0 in Catholic loop action, must stop Melancon, with a 19 point per game average since being brought up from the reserve team, plus Watterson's Mr. Sharpie Rocky Amicon who owns a 16.5 average.

Watterson's defensive problems are double also. Rod and Denny Parker gave a sample

SLIGHT OF HAND — South's Mike Smith (right) appears to be trying a little bit of "now you see it, now you don't" on this possession scramble with Walnut Ridge's Brent Beveridge Friday. City Wrestling Crown Truly 'Up For Grabs'

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

The biggest-yet plums of the '66-'67 high school wrestling season ripen on the vines at four localities this weekend as loop mat meets at Eastmoor (City), Hartley (CCL), Mifflin (Mid-Eight) and Hamilton Township (Metro) — highlight the schedule.

City Meet

It's just about anyone's tilte when prelims get under way Friday (4 p.m.) on the Warrior mats.

EARLY FAVORITES would appear to be fast-coming Walnut Ridge, defending champion East and the hosts with Brookhaven earning the "dark horse" tag.

Other combatants are Linden, North, West, Central, South, Marion-Franklin and Whetstone.

The City Meet will extend into Saturday with semi-finals beginning at 1 p.m., immediately followed by the final round.

THE CITY Reserve meet will be held separately this season with South playing host tomorrow (Thursday) at 4 p.m.

Admission for the City (varsity) meet will be 50 cents (students and adults) for the Friday session and $1 (adults) and 50 cents (students) Saturday. There will be no charge for the Reserve Meet.

Only defending City champs trying for an encore victory are East's Ralph Cox at 112 (won at 103 last year) and South's George Harper at 175.

Mid-Eight Meet

GROVEPORT Cruisers striking for their third straight loop crown, are odds-on favorites to do just that when prelims get under way Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Mifflin.

The Mid-Eight event, also a top two-day affair, resumes with semi-finals and finals Saturday at 12:30 p.m.

Admission each day will be $1 (adults) and 50 cents (students).

DEFENDING champs back this season are Groveport's Skip Musselman at 127 and Jeff Nelle at 133 and Hilliard's Larry Bryant at 138, and Pete Miller at 175.

All four westlers will be competing one step up in the weight scale this year.

All Mid-Eight schools but London will battle for the title with Gahanna-Lincoln the newest mat member.

'He Loved It'

A very unfortunate and tragic happening rocked the local schoolboy wrestling corps last week when a 16-year-old Marion-Franklin athlete — Mike Clark — died as the result of injuries suffered during a match.

Almost as unfortunate as the fatality itself was the headline of the account in a local daily newspaper which read, "High School Wrestling Kills Boy."

Unfortunately, many newspaper readers get no further than the headline and this one carried with it the implication that the sport carries with it a good proportion of danger.

Local wrestling coaches, concerned these days for the very life of the sport in Central Ohio, fear the incident and the headline might set the sport back considerably on the local front.

There is always the element of finality present in any activity — wrestling, driving, even sitting here at this typewriter.

Stressing statistics and odds to Mike Clark's family can understandably serve as little solace for their loss.

And yet we question the justice for the lack of such headlines as "Souped-Up Car Kills Five Boys."

M-F mat coach Dick Mileff recalled Mike Clark's attitude about wrestling as: "He loved it. It was all he talked about."

St. Thomas Aquinas, when once asked what he would do if he discovered that he had but five more minutes to live, replied, "I would continue doing whtaever I happened to be doing at the time."

Perhaps that's how Mike Clark might have felt about it.

Progress — Here To Stay?

The Spectator this week presents its seventh annual progress edition with pride and the hope that that pride will not be diminished in years to come.

Progress is a word we in Central Ohio have heard much of during the past several years. This area has won itself a national reputation for progressive growth — sometimes in spite of itself.

But progress belongs only to those who are ready for it and who are willing to take it by the hand and work with it.

So far, Columbus and its surrounding communities have proved, for the most part, that they are willing to do the work needed to keep progress from turning into chaos.

We sincerely hope it stays that way.

Step Forward

The Spectator notes with great pleasure that the Development Committee for Greater Columbus has launched an all-out "community assault on the future of transit in Columbus."

Through its Advisory Committee on Transit (ACT), the Development Committee is asking the Regional Planning Commission, the city, its suburbs and the business community to participate in a program aimed at developing a coordinated effort toward solving transit problems.

This city is already faced with a transit problem. Within 10 years, that problem will increase to major proportions.

The Development Committee, as usual, is trying to put out the fire before it gets out of control. We wish them the best.

Washington Expose

My friend and fellow reporter Jack Anderson has written a book, called "Washington Expose." Writing a book is something many newspapermen threaten to do, but only a few of us ever accomplish.

Mostly, the book is very serious and filled with those events which have illuminated and—simultaneously—darkened our times. There are various Capitol Hill scandals, credibility gaps, Vietnam revelations, etc. But there are also bits of humor in some of these things and, acting as a reviewer, I've raided Jack's book for them.

For instance, he says radio news carries about as much information as you might get if you drove slowly past a well-lighted newsstand. In another place he tells how Rep. William Ayres (R., Ohio) spent $200 for an ad asking for campaign donations and received only $51.

Sen. Allen Ellender (D., La.) is "saluted" for his "goodwill tour" of Africa, during which Ellender got himself banned from several countries by observing that "the average African is incapable of leadership except through the assistance of Europeans."

White House press aide Bill Moyers is quoted as saying he keeps his words soft and sweet because he never knows when he might have to eat them. The book says also that when LBJ visited Canada he winced when the bagpipes played in his ear. This caused the Canadian Prime Minister to revert to weapons-lingo and say, "Ha! And you thought YOU had the great deterrent."

Anderson describes Lyndon Johnson, when he was Vice-President, as eating from a table that rose "like a giant lily out of his swimming pool. Barefoot servants with pantlegs rolled high splashed in and out of the pool to wait on him."

The foreign aid chapter mentions that we built a $500,000 sawmill in Iran when the only lumber available was teak, too hard to be cut by the mill. In Cambodia we astonished natives by giving them 150,000 tubes of toothpaste. Unfortunately, they had no toothbrushes.

I like the comparisons at the end of the book: NASA, "its eye on the unexplored," is located directly across from HEW, "its eye on the unemployed." And Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman is pictured struggling to reduce farm surpluses while, at the same time he spends millions researching ways to make farmlands more productive.

Music Hath Charms

To The Editor:

Years ago, William Congreve said, "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast."

Such a statement is true in 1967 to soothe the "juvenile delinquents" (so-called).

Why do not the federal, state, city, county and local school authorities recognize the part the musical organization, both instrumental and vocal, has in the part of the school curriculum?

A basketball team can floor five players and includes about 10 subs. A football team outfits 30 to 40 boys in a good sized school.

But the membership of a musical organization is unlimited. Yet trafining and discipline are a strict part of the program. Boys and girls work together to achieve a standard as high as that which the representative sports squads are attempting to achieve.

There are numerous inter-city band, orchestra, choir, stage-band contests.

There are many such contests between schools of different locales. An imaginative director, with the help of a cooperative principal and school board, can work out routines, drills, music, etc., which can be as interesting as the most closely contested athletic feat.

We at Columbus West High School possess such a group of boys, girls, instructor, principal and parent organization. Yet we are limited due to the lack of financial backing from the governing boards.

Plans are in the making to treble our present organization in a few short years. But the cost of the additional uniforms, music, instruments, etc., is not forthcoming.

Our band room, designed years ago, is far too small to be even close to adequate for our needs.

If the city and state educational budgets cannot be increased to cover costs for those schools that desire to musically educate students, as well as promote better future citizens for our community, how can we promote a program to encourage private citizens and industries to help underwrite such costs?

I'm proud of West High's vocal and instrumental organizations' records.

marquis childs ★ Needs More Troops ★

CHILDS

The word from Gen. William C. Westmoreland circulating at the highest level among military men is that the commander in Vietnam needs at least 500,000 troops on the ground, and he needs them not next July or September but now.

Nothing could illustrate more dramatically the squeeze in which President Johnson is caught. Having promised to give Westmoreland everything he needs to win the war, can the President persist in the prescribed course of a gradual troop buildup to 475,000 by September?

The number of Americans in uniform on the ground on Jan. 7 was 395,000. Gen. Westmoreland's plea for a swifter buildup was underscored in a broadcast interview he give in December that got little attention. In that interview he called for more troops and he warned that the war in Vietnam would last for years rather than months.

For a soldier who has tried to keep out of public controversy this was a remarkably frank statement.

Here is the crux of the continuing debate over money, taxes and the economy — the cost of the Vietnam war and the size of the defense budget. That cost has been consistently muffled, to use a word more generous that some of the President's critics apply to what they say is deliberate obfuscation.

In mid-1966 the official estimate was in the range of $1.5 to $2 billion a month. But a sterner computation by those with the available data put the cost of the war at $2.7 billion a month.

The defense budget was at the heart of the long and often anguished argument over whether to apply new taxes to meet the rising cost of the Vietnam conflict and advanced weaponry. The compromise decision — a six percent surcharge on all corporations and individual taxpayers — seems to have had the desired effect. It has pleased a sizeable segment of the business community and even the professional viewers with alarm have made only conventional protests.

But even within the President's own circle of economic advisers the argument is far from ended. Certain of these advisors will not deny that they were impressed by a document thrown into the debate in the inner circle in mid-December. That was a memorandum on taxes and spending sent to the President on Dec. 10 by William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, at the President's request.

Martin has maintained his strict "no comment" both during the debate over taxes and spending and since the President's decision on the surcharge. But within the Treasury and the Council of Economic Advisors the Martin memorandum is still a hot potato and in strictest privacy it is conceded to be a grim warning of what can happen if the optimistic calculations of the White House prove wrong.

Should the memorandum become part of the public debate it would have an explosive effect. For Martin predicted that the budgetary deficit for fiscal 1968 will be from $18 billion to $20 billion. That is more than twice the size of the 1968 deficit estimated by the President in his State of the Union Message at $8.1 billion.

The Martin memorandum, the President's advisors say, recommended an across-the-board tax increase that would bring in $7 billion in additional revenue. This contrasts with the $4.5 billion to come from the six percent surcharge. But even with this added revenue, Martin is said to have noted, the deficit for '68 will be larger than President Dwight Eisenhower's record peacetime deficit of $12 billion in 1959.

william s. white ★ Nixon For Second Spot? ★

WHITE

Important figures within the liberal wing of the Republican party are both examining and propagating the notion that Richard Nixon might in some circumstances accept the Vice-Presidential nomination next year.

At first glance, this would appear to be a hardly polite way of offering a very small beer to Nixon, who is after all a major aspirant not for the second but rather for the top place on the ticket. Viewed less superficially, these still tentative and probing gestures toward a man who has already been Vice-President for two terms have great meaning.

First, they reflect a readiness within significant liberal G.O.P. circles, who cannot here be any more precisely identified without breach of confidence, to concede to Nixon a critical influence in the 1968 Republican National Convention. It is an acknowledgement that Nixon, even should he be defeated for the Presidential nomination, must still be dealt with as a high power center.

Second, and even more interesting, Republican personages entirely outside the orthodox section of the party, whose first choice is Nixon, are accepting the reality that whatever may happen at that convention, he will still be greatly needed in the campaign lying ahead.

All this actually is based primarily upon the assumption that Gov. George Romney of Michigan, the current favorite of liberal Republicanism, can win the nomination to head the ticket. It is a way of saying that in such an eventuality Romney would have profound need for Nixon on his team for two reasons — because Romney has no experience in foreign affairs and because he is untried as a national campaigner.

Granted a Romney nomination for President, in short, these people feel Nixon could provide to the ticket as a whole a kind of irreplaceable strength that was, for example, provided to John F. Kennedy in 1960 by the agreement of Lyndon B. Johnson to take the second place then.

Transcending all these points, however, is the crucial fact that there is a clear disposition within liberal Republicanism, even at this early date, to avoid a doctrinal separation of sheep and goats of the sort that has embittered the party ever since General Eisenhower took the Presidential nomination away from the late Sen. Robert A. Taft in 1952.

What Richard Nixon himself would think of all this, at this point anyhow, is not difficult to guess. Unless and until he fails to obtain the top designation, he would not, of course, for a moment entertain any idea of becoming the No. 2 man. Nevertheless, his record as a good party man is not matched within the whole field of Republican presidential possibilities, and if in the last showdown he should be offered the Vice-Presidency where clearly he could not hope for the Presidency, there is perhaps a 50-50 bet that he would say yes.

GOLDWATER

HONG KONG — This amazing place, part island, part mainland peninsula, is scarcely a dot in the physical geography of the world. But in the geography of the human spirit it is virtually a continent.

Hong Kong has hardly any natural resources. It has a small domestic market. It has all of the conditions of crowding and squalor that are supposed to set up unbreakable and vicious circles of poverty. It has no elected government, the British governor being the boss.

And yet Hong Kong is booming, thriving, exciting, free and so dynamic industrially that virtually every nation in the world has set up restrictive barriers against the outpourings of Hong Kong shops, factories and offices.

It has one of the most serious overcrowding problems in the world, and some of the most poverty-stricken living conditions, and yet more people want to come here every day. Those who do come manage to survive. Many prosper, and the idea of any family being stuck forever in poverty is not part of the landscape. Constant change, unlimited opportunity and growth are the main features of the human landscape here.

The first thing you notice is that many of the refugees who pour out of Red China — to take their chances camping out if necessary in Hong Kong rather than stay in the Asian People's Paradise—are skilled workers. They want freedom and are willing to risk everything for it.

They obviously consider that life is not worth living without freedom, in sharp contrast to the many dreary, pessimistic socialist theorists in the West who moan that men must sacrifice freedom for security and that most men want to make the trade.

Nonsense. They should come here to understand that the human spirit is not that crippled everywhere.

Not only the skilled benefit in this amazing outburst of energy amid hardships and crowding. Their creative efforts constantly provide new and greater needs for the services of the unskilled as well.

It is the prodigious energy of the people that has turned Hong Kong from what could be the worst slum in the world to one of the most hopeful places.

There is poverty aplenty, to be sure, but there is growing opportunity to end it, person by person, by individual effort.

But how is all of this freedom and opportunity possible if there is no elected government? Simple. The government may not be elected, but it has one virtue that, in this instance, is even greater. It is very limited. It maintains order, but by and large it stays out of people's lives and lets them solve their problems, set their goals, set their pace and enjoy their rewards both for energy or for lack of it.

Unlike most other places in the world today, a man here may have to stand for a time in the mud but he can reach for the stars. And watching such men work makes you realize their reach is unlimited. The stars are theirs.

And So It Grows

If your foliage plants need repotting to bigger containers —use light, well aerated, well-drained garden loam for potting mixture. Usually a mixture of two parts soil, one part organic matter such as coarse peat moss or partially rotted manure, and one part perl-lome, vermiculite — or coarse sand will make an excellent growing medium.

Packaged potting soil is available and convenient as well as sterilized to prevent trouble from weeds, nematodes and other soil pests.

In tomorrow's space-age horticulture, you may be able to go to a greenhouse or florist and order any plant you want any time of the year. That's the implication from a speech by a USDA scientist at the Ohio Florists' Short Course in Columbus recently. Dr. H. M. Cathey gave the commercial florists a report about the labor and time-saying possibilities of using chemicals and certain environmental changes on plants. But the results indicate better plants and year-round availability will be in it for the consumer.

Though Cathey directed his talk toward the commercial florists, he mentioned that some day chemical regulators for use by amateur gardeners may be readily available.

A recent release says USDA agricultural engineers have developed an instrument that measures precisely how fast a plant grows — even in the dark. This motion detector measures and records movements of a plant during night or day with little or no disturbance to the plant. It has measured growth and movements as small as 0.0005 of an inch, or less than the thickness of a page of ordinary newspaper.

Recent years of forestry research show clear cutting, or removal of all standing trees from a logged area, is an advisable way of harvesting timber stands. According to OSU Extension forestry specialists some of the best stands of hardwood timber to Ohio resulted from clear cutting forests to produce charcoal for the steel furnaces that operated here years ago.

But it's a great shock to see a complete woods removed in one swoop and OSU specialists say the resulting look of devastation has been the subject of much controversy—even though this is a good silvicultural practice.

This will be the main topic at a Mar. 3 meeting on the Ohio State University campus of the Society of American Foresters. Anyone may attend.

You can get a free "1967 Guide for Buying Roses" by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to the American Rose Society, Dept. 8, 4048 Roselea-pl. This guide gives information on more than 1,000 rose varieties including heights, colors, horticultural classifications and the Society's ratings. It lists all roses available on the American market, including those varieties introduced in 1967.

Army Reserve: Stepchild Of DOD

By JANE WOLLERMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

(Second In A Series)

When I entered the office of Maj. General Henry K. Benson, 20th Corps commander at Ft. Hayes, I was accomanied by Col. Charles T. Heinrich, Lt. Col. Jack W. Groseclose and Lt. Col. William E. Wear. Col. Groseclose, who lives at Galena, O., Col. Wear, 196 Highfield-dr, are both Army Reserve officers on extended active duty for training and were there to supply information to the General from their sections.

It has been three weeks since General Benson said, "This post has a low priority on active duty personnel, and we would have a hard time getting our work done here if we did not have some of our Reserve officers who are willing to come on active duty for a while."

Developments in recent days forecast the closing of Ft. Hayes in 1968 as one of the 39 military installations to be shut down or cut back in another of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara's economy moves. This could be the death of the Army Reserve in any visible form for this city. The Reserve is already suffering as a result of the creation of the Selected Reserve Force.

The Defense Department's 1965 concept of a Selected Reserve Force to be given a high priority, intensive training and up-to-date equipment was a boon to the National Guard, but a crippling blow to the Army Rererve. When the SRF units were announced, Ohio's 38th Guard Division came up with a Brigade while the 20th Corps got 14 small support units, all at company level or below except for two battalion headquarters groups. The 14 units are scattered all over the Corps' three-state area of Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio.

Due to the re-organization which took place in late 1965, the Reserve lost a lot of personnel. The Pentagon's theory had been that the manpower loss would be light because men whose units were eliminated could join SRF units.

"This didn't happen," Gen. Benson said, "because of the geographic factor. Men couldn't relocate in SRF units when they were too far from their homes of employment." The percentage of Reservists who went into Guard units is variously estimated depending on who does the estimating, but a concensus is that it was lass than five per cent.

Among the things which happended to the Reserve was the loss of the 83rd Division which cut off 8,000 Reservists with one blow. To help absorb some of the lost manpower, Regular Reserve units were permitted to increase their strength for a period of up to one year. This had a limited effect, again because of the geographic factor.

Another innovation brought about by the re-organization was the creation of the Reinforced Training Unit. The name is a little misleading because the RTU is not reinforced and it does not train in a true sense of the word. Reinforced Training Units are a haven for displaced Reservists who could not re-locate in another unit, but who do not want to give up entirely on their military allegiance. These men meet on a regular schedule and do military exercises (on paper for the most part). Only patriots need apply because members of RTU's are not paid, and are not issued any uniforms or equipment. It is entirely a voluntary thing kept alive by men who simply will not believe that the country no longer needs them.

There are six RTU's in the Columbus area. Col. Robert C. Ringer, 4280 Kendale-rd, commands the Headquarters and Headquarters Battery of the old 83rd Infantry Division Artillery. The Division was permitted to retain its colors and designation when it was inactivated. Headquarters and Headquarters Company of the Second Brigade, also part of the 83rd, is commanded by Col. David A. Pierce, 140 Fairlawn-dr.

Other RTU's in the city are Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Third Battalion of the Second Infantry, commanded by Maj. Clyde E. McConnell, 495 W. Third-av, the 1401st Corps commanded by Col. Eugene E. Finke, 1835 Washington-av, the 1402nd RTU, Lt. Col. Harold R. Royer, 248 Rathbone-rd west and the 1416th RTU, Col. Harry B. Goodwin, 410 Tucker-dr, Worthington.

The approximate overall strength of the six units is 170 men.

Since the Defense Department's announcement this week the future of Ft. Hayes is even more uncertain and the Army Reserve structure seems to be hopelessly fragmented. Many people wonder if this is not just another way of eliminating the Reserve when the Defense Department's original plan for that was stymied by Congress.

NEXT WEEK: What will be the future of the Reserve . . . and the Guard?

Sensenbrenner Plans Neighborhood Forum

Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner, with his cabinet in tow, is planning another visit to the South Side.

When he appears at the Barack Recreation Center at the invitation of the Lincoln Park Community Council, Tuesday, Feb. 14, it will be the third since taking office for his current term that the mayor has held a forum on the South Side in his effort to communicate with residents of the area.

WHILE ATTENDANCE at such meetings (27 have been held throughout the city) has fluctuated widely with as few as 30 and as many as 225 persons attending, the mayor believes the subsequent publicity has brought the story of the administration's plans for individual areas to a large number of people.

Stressing that there are never enough city officials to carry out adequate programs in a metropolitan area, Sensenbrenner states a great impact can be felt when the local residents form a team with the city.

A special speaker at the February forum will be Walter Tarpley who will report on the progress made during his two years since his appointment as director of community relations.

ANOTHER CABINET member whose remarks will demand the attention of those interested in the South Side will be Warren Cremean.

According to city spokesmen, the service director will explain the effect on the community of the opening of the large sewage treatment plant at Shadeville the city will put into operation late this summer.

It is believed that this plant will represent a "giant step" in the long overdue efforts to rid the South Side of its "insidious stench."

THE MAYOR is expected to release further details of the non-profit organization to be known as the Southside Development Co., the organization now on the drawing board to push not only industrial but residential development of the community.

City officials are proceeding on the premise that the revitalization of the South Side is already on the "launching pad" and will soon prove to keep pace with the rapid growth of other parts of the Greater Columbus.

Other topics that will be limelighted include those of sidewalk improvement, additional street lighting and continued police vigilance to meet the vandalism and other problems arising in the neighborhood.

Army Nurse Corps Chief Will Address AUSA

Col. Mildred I. Clark, chief of the U. S. Army Nurse Corps, will address an evening dinner meeting of the Central Ohio Chapter Association of the United States Army (AUSA), at Fort Hayes Thursday.

Col. Clark will discuss efforts by the Nurse Corps to recruit more volunteers to the service. About 300 members of the AUSA are expected to attend the meeting at the Fort Hayes Officers' Club to begin at 6 p.m.

As Chief of the Nurse Corps, Col. Clark is in charge of nearly 4500 nurses serving on active duty. Of that number, 950 nurses are men. The Corps, begun in 1901, has seen service in both World Wars, Korea and more recently, Vietnam.

All members of the Nurse Corps are commissioned officers, and have completed civilian courses in nursing.

Colonel Clark has been a member of the Nurse Corps since 1938, when she received her direct commission in the Regular Army. She was serving at Schofield Army Barracks hospital in Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack.

In 1959, she was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for her many contributions to Army nursing programs. She also holds the First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Commendation Medal, is a life member of Zeta Chapter, Sigma Delta Tau and was named outstanding alumna of the University of Minnesota School of Education in 1963.

Dr. Thomas, a scientist and research administrator, has been president of Battelle since 1957. He is a member of the executive committee of the Division of Engineering and Industrial Research of the New Academy of Science-National Research Council of the National Council of the National Planning Association.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas live at 326 Walhalla-dr.

The schedule of activity leading up to the Easter Seal drive will begin Wednesday, Feb. 15, with Seal Day. Chairman for the event will be Mrs. J. D. Salzgeber and Mrs. Joseph Van Heyde who will have 150 volunteer workers to prepare Easter Seal letters.

Pensions, Incinerators Topics For Council Of Mayors

CLARK LOOFBOURROW MAYOR'S COUNCIL PREXY

Police and fire pension plans and the county incinerator project will probably be universal problems discussed by members of the Franklin County Council of Mayors when it convenes, Clark Loofbourrow, mayor of Worthington and newly-elected Council president, said.

Loofbourrow said the Council, a co-ordinating body whose charter calls for dedication to home-rule and responsible government, would probably spend much time studying the possible local assessments in connection with Franklin County's "big-trash-burner" proposal. Robert Wells, Upper Arlington city manager, is the Council representative to the project, and Loofbourrow said Wells will make periodical reports on its progress.

The Council cannot take any action, except by resolution, but the Worthington Mayor said each councilman can report to his own community what latest developments are.

The mayors meet six or seven times each year to discuss Franklin County community problems or to hear speakers who talk on related subjects.

Loofbourrow said that the Council is definitely not a pressure group. "We serve only to inform ourselves, each other and our communities on the complexities facing other area municipalities."

Dual Civil Defense-Teen Center Proposed

The City of Reynoldsburg will submit an application for matching federal funds of $30,000 to build a civil defense emergency operations center which could be used as a Teen Canteen also.

William Harrison, chairman of the Recreation Commission, said the primary plan of the building could be set up to fit ideally with the plans for a teen center. This would double the proposed $30,000 outlay to $60,000.

Mayor George Twyford and Harrison met with Russ Pennell, head of civil defense for the State of Ohio, to discuss prerequisites for such a building. The target date for submission for federal funds is Mar. 1. If the requirements can be met, the building will probably be the first of its kind in the country, Harrison said.

The plan for Emergency Operations Centers was made available by the federal government in September, 1966, to provide facilities in case of national disasters such as floods or atomic blasts.

P-V (The Spoiler) Tests Raider 5

By JACK WITTENMEIER

If the '66-'67 Raider cage season keeps progressing at its present pace, Reynoldsburg mentor Bill Borland should set another record by tourney time.

Borland's already in the books as the youngest varsity Raider cage tutor and — if his charges provide many more wins like Friday's (58-57) at Whitehall — you can add "youngest coach with the highest blood pressure" to Bill's tabulations.

BUT, nerve-racking or not, Borland is still happy to find his Raiders still all alone atop the Metropolitan League heap at 7-0 (10-4 overall).

Despite the finger-biting finish, Borland listed way back in that second period as the "turn-in' point" as Reynoldsburg outdid the Rams, 20-8, while big Stev oAller and troublesome Billy Anderson cooled their heels on the bench with three fouls apiece.

"We got our fast break going in that (second) period and it really helped out," Borland related. "And we were able to control the boards (67-51)."

SCORING standouts were again Terry Miller (20) and Gary Shade (16) with the latter also chipping in with 15 big rebounds. Borland also lauded the efforts of Paul Lauderbach who came off the bench in a big way for the Raiders.

On the minus side, Borland moaned over his Raiders' effort at the charity stripe (10 for 29, 35 percent — a far cry from the Reynoldsburg mentor's desired accuracy of 65-75 percent).

Actually, it was ironic that the Raiders should win it at the foul line (both clubs hit 24 goals, the Raiders percentage was 44, Whitehall's 33).

FREE THROWING was better the next night vs. Hartley (14 for 24, 58 percent) but "they beat us on the boards," claimed Borland (59-47).

The Hawks won, 69-56, using Reynoldsburg's magic second period to do it (Hartley scored 10 straight points in that period — four straight buckets off press — while the Raiders never got the ball past the Hawks' foul line).

Miller tossed in 25 points but took a backseat to the Hawks' family act of Denny and Rod Parker who combined for 45 big markers.

BORLAND credited Denny Parker as "the best ballplayer we've seen this season."

With no one else apparently willing to lend a hand with Teays Valley, there's still no room for relaxation as far as the Metro race is concerned.

The Friday night foe (at home) will be Pleasant View, the "mystery" quintet of the loop this season.

THE PANTHERS are only 3-4 in the league and 3-11 overall — their latest outing resulting on a 97-50 setback to Miami Trace.

But here's the catch. P-V fired a red-hot 71 percent from the field Saturday and an unbeatable 100 percent from the foul line — and got beat by 47 points.

"You don't hit that well and lose many games," Borland reminded. "They'll be coming in here sky-high.

"THEY KNOCKED us out of a clear-cut football title this past fall and they'll have the same thing in mind for basketball," Borland concluded.

P-V's most potent scorer is forward Monte Rhoden who's hitting at a 14 per game clip. Next in line is guard Charley Hess (10 per game).

Horsemen Banquet To Hear Arcaro

The fourth annual winter dinner meeting of the Ohio Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association promises to be the "biggest and best yet," according to President L. J. Bennett. The affair is scheduled for the main ballroom of the Neil House here at 12:30 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 29.

Guest speaker will be Eddie Arcaro, the one-time master jockey who is now a New York insurance executive.

Another highlight of the program will be the election of five members to the organization's 15-man board of trustees, after which the board will meet in executive session to name a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer for 1967. William J. Green, Orient, is the current vice president and Mrs. John J. Osterman, Grove City, secretary and treasurer.

The banquet and post-banquet program will be open to the public at $4 per plate. Reservations may be made by writing the Ohio Thoroughbred Horseman's Association, 3715 Elm-st, Grove City, O., or by calling the OTHA offices in Grove City, 875-2790, area code 614.

Fearless Predictions

The "Fearless One" maintained his 81 percentage last week with a 25-6 mark that upped his record to 201-47 for the current cage campaign.

ERIC WALZ

"He's got every shot in the book," said veteran Eastmoor cage coach Red Courtney the other day with an obvious gleam in his eye.

He gets that twinkle every time he is on the subject of Eric Walz, the slender six-foot Warrior slick shot who has collected 224 points thus far with a 52 percent shooting accuracy and an awesome 82 percent foul shooting mark.

COURTNEY DESCRIBES his two-year performer as a real competitor who "is a good playmaker and ball handler and is always thinking ahead." Those important ingredients mixed with Eastmoor's hustle have given the Warriors a 10-2 record to date.

Last season, Walz notched 229 points to pace all E-M scorers and is rapidly approaching that mark this season.

Sewer And Water Rate Increases Go To Committees

Reynoldsburg City Council, meeting Monday night, referred the proposed ordinance for water and sewer rate increases to the Finance and Service Committees for further study.

This was the second reading of the proposed ordinances. A motion by Everett Landis, chairman of the Finance Committee, to suspend the rules and vote immediately was defeated. Council will vote on the issues at the third reading during the next regular meeting.

Five other proposed ordinances received second readings also.

A resolution was adopted to take injunctive action to stop the State Department of Liquor Control from issuing more C-1 and C-2 liquor permits for Reynoldsburg. The action would avoid oversaturation of permits. There are 10 such permits for "carry-out" liquor stores now in the city.

BY NANCY LOGUE
Spectator Staff Writer

It's lucky that Reynoldsburg Mayor George W. Twyford, Pastor Sherman Jefferson of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Roy Merrick, Ralph Hamilton and about eight other church members did not turn their talents to a life of crime.

They are experts at breaking into cars—and my little VW is extremely difficult to break into.

So that readers will not get a wrong impression about these Reynoldsburg men, I should explain that they were only acting as knights gallant by giving aid to a somewhat embarrassed damsel in distress.

I was sent to get a picture of a groundbreaking to be held somewhere east of Reynoldsburg. I had difficulty finding the spot. When I finally did, the ceremony had just begun, so I parked the car in the middle of the driveway and jumped out.

After it was finished, I hurried back to the car so that I could unblock the driveway since people were already beginning to leave. But . . .

The key was in its proper place—I had only to break the window and get inside with it. So, with all the dignity I could muster, I went back to the church to sweetly ask for a hammer.

When the men heard why I needed the tool (I thought it best to tell them), they wouldn't hear of such a thing.

"It's impossible to break into," I explained, "The last time the police couldn't even do it. I'll just break it with a hammer."

"I could call the Reynoldsburg police. They can have it open in minutes," the Mayor said.

Not having as much faith in the Reynoldsburg police as the mayor did (the car is extremely difficult to break into) I very sweetly said, "No, I'll just hit the window a little with this." I raised the hammer high over my head.

And, so, armed with a hammer and a dozen men, I marched to the car.

Merrick brought along a wire clothes hanger and began to work on the little window. The other men were stationed at various windows sizing up the situation.

Somewhere between the "Just a little to the left, Roy" and my own "I'll break it with the hammer," the window flew open.

And so, I say thank you to my Knights gallant.

Miss Judy Robinson Weds Robert Strohler

Miss Judith Ward Robinson became the bride of Mr. Robert Strohler in a ceremony performed Saturday in the St. Mary Church of Marietta.

Miss Robinson, who was formerly a resident of 1179 S. High-st, Columbus, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Robinson, 60 Washington-st, Canal Winchester. She is a graduate of Marietta High School and is a service representative with Ohio Bell Telephone Company in Marietta.

Strohler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer J. Stohler of Marietta. He is a graduate of the St. Mary Central High School and is associated with Martin-Marietta.

The former Miss Robinson chose a gown of white peau de soie with applique of Chantilly lace. With the A-line dress featuring a scalloped neckline and long sleeves, she wore an illusion veil and a chapel length train and carried a cascade of white roses and carnations.

She was attended by the groom's sister, Mrs. James Stengel who served as matron of honor, and Miss Charlotte Thomas, both of Marietta and her sister Miss Pam Robinson of Canal Winchester. Her sister Kimberly registered guests.

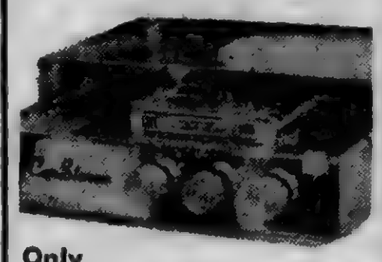
The matron and the maids of honor all wore floor-length gowns of cerise velvet and matching chapeaus with veils. They carried colonial bouquets of red and white carnations.

Slated For Oblivion Southside Eye Sores

The South Side has its finger in the pie provided by a quarter of a million dollar housing demolition project on which the city is pushing forward.

City officials estimate that there are currently at least 700 condemned homes in the inner city and within two and one-half miles of the inner city which are beyond salvage.

ALTHOUGH THE FORT Hayes area to the northeast quadrant and Market Mohawk in the southeast quadrant present the greatest concentration of such property, the South Side, along with the Near East and West Sides, has its share of the eye sores.



When the city attempted to begin this demolition three years ago with revolving funds of $21,000 appropriated by City Council, the inadequacy of the funds kept the demolition to a snail pace.

The step-up occurred towards the end of 1966 when a federal grant of $172,000 was okayed to be supplemented with $83,000 of local money. Although the money is not yet on hand, it will eventually materialize, allowing the city to proceed with assurance the money it spent will be replaced.

THE SCOPE OF the program is practically unlimited, with cost of demolition placed upon the tax duplicate of the property owner.

As the money for earlier projects is recovered through the assessments it will be reinvested in further demolitions.

Brace 4 Plans Annual Parade

Brace Four of the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children will hold its annual Lilliputian Parade on Wednesday, Feb. 1, beginning at 11:30 a.m. at the Neil House.

Proceeds for the annual affair go to the Society for Crippled Children.

Theme for this year's parade is "Cinderella's Easter Eggstasy." The theme will be carried out with Cinderella slippers as table decorations, filled with flowers. A coach and four white horses will adorn the ballroom and pumpkin arches will lead the way into the ballroom.

Following the luncheon will be a fashion show featuring fashions from Sabbacks Children's Store and Montaldos.

As usual, local radio, television and newspaper personalities will select their choices of the outstanding hats. Chet Long will pick his annual "Chet's Choice." Roy Briscoe, Earl Green and Spook Beckman will pick the "Men's Mania" while June Wells Dill, Jane Keher and Marianne Tomlinson will select the "Women's Whimsey."

Mrs. Raymond W. Bethel is general chairman of the parade. Committee heads include: Invitations, Mrs. Ted Hysell and Mrs. Charles Schwenker; door prizes, Mrs. Richard Rodenfels and Mrs. James Trapp; adult fashions, Mrs. Ivan Hill and Mrs. David Belnap; children's fashions, Mrs. Joseph Gallen and Mrs. Russell Williams, hostesses, Mrs. Paul Jacobs and Mrs. J. One-needle sweater with the Oriental touch is modeled by Edy Williams, television actress. The sweater is knitted from the neck down which eliminates finishing of side seams, therefore this is a great beginner's item. The sweater can also be worn with or without buttons and buttonholes. We gave this garment the Oriental look by using pre-made silk frogs which are available in notion departments. Our sweater is knitted in a rich yellow and trimmed with black frogs for a stunning contrast. Illustrated instructions are written in sizes 12 through 22. All sizes are included on one pattern. And if you wish to make a complete outfit, we have straight skirt pattern 90 and A-skirt pattern 92 available; and for the sporty minded we have pants pattern 135 available. Instructions for skirts come in sizes 10 through 22 and for pants in sizes eight through 18. To obtain pattern 73, 90, 92 or 135, send 75 cents for each pattern, in coin, check or money order, to: Ursula duBois, Spectator Newspapers, Box 3307, Van Nuys, Calif. 91407.

Let's Knit

I love the following suggestion which was sent to me by Mrs. L. McLean from Michigan. She writes:

"I have one of those little money counting gadgets that keeps track of the money one spends for groceries while shopping — except I also use mine as a stitch and row counter. I use the dime and cent column for keeping track of the number of rows or stitches and the dollar column for the number of increases or decreases whichever my pattern may require."

Thank you, Mrs. McLean. I am using my money counter now for the same purpose. It has now become part of my knitting tool kit. It is much more fun to use it for counting stitches than for counting the money one is spending. One grows — the other goes.

For knitted lace lovers, here is another quite lovely one sent to me by Mrs. C. Wells from North Carolina. Cast on eight stitches, rows 1, 3, 5 and 7; knit 4, yarn over, knit remaining stitches. Purl rows 2, 4, 6, 8 and 9, bind off 4 stitches and continue with row 1. You will probably love to make yards and yards of it. A marvelous lace for tablecloths, pillows—or sweater edgings or inserts.

Many readers query: how can we determine the yardage when buying yarn?

If the skeins are not marked, please ask the sales lady. Manufacturers supply information of yardage per ball or skein to the store owners even if it is not marked on the ball. Otherwise purchase one ball of yarn, go home, measure it and rewind the ball.

I have had to do this quite often. Tack a measuring tape with some thumb tacks onto a table for this purpose.

Miss duBois welcomes mail from readers but cannot give a personal answer. She will discuss and pass on the most interesting questions and hints.

Army Nurse Corps Chief Will Address AUSA

Col. Mildred I. Clark, chief of the U. S. Army Nurse Corps, will address an evening dinner meeting of the Central Ohio Chapter Association of the United States Army (AUSA), at Fort Hayes Thursday.

Col. Clark will discuss efforts by the Nurse Corps to recruit more volunteers to the service. About 300 members of the AUSA are expected to attend the meeting at the Fort Hayes Officers' Club to begin at 6 p.m.

As Chief of the Nurse Corps, Col. Clark is in charge of nearly 4500 nurses serving on active duty. Of that number, 950 nurses are men. The Corps, begun in 1901, has seen service in both World Wars, Korea and more recently, Vietnam.

All members of the Nurse Corps are commissioned officers, and have completed civilian courses in nursing.

Colonel Clark has been a member of the Nurse Corps since 1938, when she received her direct commission in the Regular Army. She was serving at Schofield Army Barracks hospital in Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack.

In 1959, she was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for her many contributions to Army nursing programs. She also holds the First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Commendation Medal, is a life member of Zeta Chapter, Sigma Delta Tau and was named outstanding alumna of the University of Minnesota School of Education in 1963.

Groveport with the most competition are Westerville, Hilliard and Grove City.

Perennial Catholic champion DeSales enjoys the "favorite" spot again this season in a battle with Ready, Watterson and Hartley.

The CCL Meet will be a one-session event with the finals (about 3 p.m.) directly following prelims which are set for noon Saturday.

ADMISSION for this one will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Defending CCL champs back this year include Bob Feeney (112, now up to 127) and Steve Arnold (120 of DeSales and Watterson's Mike Hilliard at 175.

Metro Meet

Franklin Heights, only wrestling champion in the short history of the South Suburban League, looms as the early favorite in the battle for the first-ever Metropolitan League mat title Saturday at Hamilton Township.

BUT THE Falcons don't figure to make any runaway of the tourney with strong Whitehall, improved Pleasant View and the host Rangers standing in F-H's path to victory.

Returning as the defending champs for this meet are: Roger Branham (up from 103 to 120), Dick Grambo (112), Charlie Hall (145) and Bill Green (165)—all of Franklin Heigh's —and Pleasant View's Rick Erbe (120), Randy Good (127) and Roger Bauer (133).

Prelims get under way at 1 p.m. with finals scheduled directly thereafter. Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Rams Extend Dual String To 15 In Row

Whitehall added two more mat wins to its bountiful dual meet record last week with wins over Pleasant View (24-20) and Upper Arlington (24-18).

Elsewhere, Bexley snapped a long losing streak with a 24-20 victory over Hamilton Township and East bombed Hartley, 35-6.

BACK-TO-BACK closing pins by Dave Graff and Ken Flowers overcame an Arlington lead as the Rams ran their '66-'67 dual mark to 7-0 and notched their 15th straight dual meet victory.

Bruce Turkal, Steve Beery, Mike Case and Ken Schmidt all added vital decisions.

Graff and heavyweight Rick Petty scored a pin and decision respectively earlier in the week to provide a similar come-from-behind win over P-V.

BRUCE UPPERMAN and Steve Beery picked up pins in this match while Mark King and Ken Schmidt chipped in with verdicts.

Pins by Mike Neff (103), Reese Lattimer (120) and heavyweight Rick Grove paced Bexley to its initial win of the season.

Neff's pin plus decisions by Lattimer and Gary Gitlitz were the lone Lion points in an earlier Lion loss—36-11 to Granville.

BOB FOWLE and Bruce Livingston provided Hartley with all its points via a pair of decisions as East won handily.

Ralph Cox and Dan Holmes scored pins for the Tigers.

Whitehall's Steve Beery and Ken Flowers and East's Keith Stevens and Ralph Cox secured the lone finals wins among area competitors Saturday at the "Top Eight" meet won by host DeSales.

THE STALLIONS scored 83 points to outdistance runnerup Franklin Heights (58). East (52) placed third while Eastmoor (44) was fifth and Whitehall (39) sixth.

Dave Saffle was named "most outstanding wrestler" and teammates Terry Roberts (103) and Dave Carr (138) also took firsts but Walnut Ridge had to settle for second place (80) behind host Brookhaven (96) Saturday at the Bearcats' invitational.

Here is the schedule of the week's dual meets:

THURSDAY
Grandview at Watterson
Newark at Bexley

SATURDAY
Arlington at COL Meet (at Marietta)

TUESDAY
Brookhaven at Whitehall
Bexley at Ohio Blind

WEDNESDAY
Watterson at Granville

of their fireworks in the Reynoldsburg game with 20 and 25 points respectively. The Hawks, 69-56 winners over the Raiders, relied on Denny's dangerous passing and Rod's slick maneuvering to go along with their scrappy press to do the job.

CAGE NOTES: East's tall talent was reduced to the charity stripe last Friday eve in the top City League cage contest, with fundamental foul line shooting playing the important part in the Tigers' 79-75 edge over the Linden-McKinley scrappers who annoyed Hart's crew like ants irritating picnic goers.

Because breaking up East's first half picnic is exactly what Vincent Chickerella's Panthers did. East eased ahead 26-12 at the first stop and increased that lead to a 46-27 halftime margin. The Tigers still had Linden by the throat with 2:41 to go in their third period 55-36 before a Linden comeback nearly shook McKinley High off its Duxberry foundation.

THE PANTHERS, tigered up by the remarkable play of Jim Cleamons, came within four, 69-65, with 2:23 remaining, but could get no closer until a last second goal by Ed Young chalked up the 79-75 final.

Both Young and Cleamons dazzled the packed Linden house with some fancy fireworks that resulted in 48 of the 75 Panther points. Cleamons notched 27 with a 12 of 25 shooting night while Young relied on 10 of 20 firing for his 21 point total.

THE EXPERIENCED Tigers gave East the big lift with Linden pressuring the sophomores. Although Nicky Connor scored 11 and Eddie Ratleff was Tiger high with 22, the elegant balance of Vance Carr's 20 and Randy Smith's 19 caused Linden problems by scoring from all positions.

Hart figured that Smith and Carr, heretofore 10 point scorers, came "out of it" by turning in good performances. He breathed deeply when saying that the Tigers were "darn lucky" as he pointed to the foul line — 29 of 37 — as the saving factor.

LINDEN'S Chickerella popped into the East locker room and commented on the high free percentage. "I didn't think you missed any. Every time I looked you made one."

Chick felt that his sparklers played a standout game but assured that East was "tough, plenty tough." "If they are number one in the state, then our kids have to be number two," Vince added.

OTHEA AREA ACTION: North (3-9) at Eastmoor (10-2), Gahanna (1-3) at Westerville (5-8), Academy (3-8) at St. Mary (6-5), Hamilton Township (1-12) at Whitehall (6-8) and Grandview (8-6) at Bexley (5-7).

CENTER OF ATTRACTION—Grove City's Lloyd Curtis (30) finds himself in an uncomfortable position Friday as the 'Hound eager eyes approaching Gahanna defenders Fred Browning (41) and Chuck Bosse (second, right) applying the squeeze. Teammate George Yates (54) breaks toward the basket for a pass. Lions dashed G-C's Mid-Eight hopes with second 82-35 victory. (Staff photo by Tim O'Brien).

NOW YOU SEE IT,now you don't. That's the little game Whitehall's Billy Anderson (20) seems to be playing with Worthington's Dwight Miller (35) as the Ram eager smacks the ball away after Miller had collected a rebound Saturday. (Staff photo by Jack Wittenmeier).

Checkers Host Des Moines, Muskegon Clubs

Local hockey fans get a special treat this week as the IHL schedule sets the Checkers on the home ice three times.

Port Huron's Flags invade the Colosseum tonight at 8:00 as a prelude to a two-day, two-game road stop-off at Des Moines by the Checkers.

The locals return home Sunday for a 7 p.m. battle with Muskegon's Mohawks, again hosting Port Huron a week from tonight (8 p.m.) as the Flags make a return engagement.

BY NORMA KIRKENDALL

Marathon bowling is again appearing—with current tourneys in Detroit and Los Angeles.

I can't see the "why," for prizes are not high and probably all have to be paid out to the doctor for patching up bowling fingers.

Tom Pastorious, bowling scribe, also likes other sports—elected as prexy for Ohio Chapter of the U. S. Harness Writers Association.

MORE OF those 700's—Bill Davis with 259/718 at Rainbow, and Loretta Linhart with 277/712. Add Joe Kristoff's 269-234-257/730.

The Southeast Lions Club is staging its second annual headpin event at Rainbow on weekends this month. Top prizes for men $125, women $100 and trophies for the juniors.

The ABC Masters Event will see Columbusite Bobby Brown, swinging his 15-pounder at Miami Beach on Apr. 28.

JAN. 21 at Clinton Lanes (1 p.m.) will see an Interclub Tournament including club teams from Brookside, Winding Hollow, Scioto, and Columbus Country Clubs. Spectators invited.

Wayne Zahn of Atlanta, Ga., was chosen as the Sporting News 1966 PBA Bowler of the Year, while Bobby Cooper of Fort Worth, Tex., was given the PBA Rookie Award. Zahn led the PBA as high money winner and high average with 208.663 pinfall for 27 tournaments.

The fabulous Petersen Classic — in its 18th year — attracted 17,536 entrants with $491,008 in prize fees. The winner gets a minimum of $32,000. This tournament runs until July 22 in Chicago.

ODDITIES: In 1885 a semi-circular bowling lane was in use in Berlin, Germany, on which the bowler was nearer the pins than he was to the ball when it reached the midway point.

Leo Piirainen, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., bowled at a 3-6-10 spare back in 1916. His ball hit the three pin, which in turn bounced off the back pit cushion, into the air and landed in the pin setting rack —in the No. 3 pin receptacle.

Gus Nelson of Hollywood bowled three 297 games in one season — and each time on his 12th delivery he left the 6-7-10 split.

Little Bucks On TV-Four

The Little Buckeyes, recent winners at the Hollywood (Fla.) Bowl game, will appear on WLW-C TV (Channel 4) tomorrow (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m.

Sports director Jimmy Crum will host head Buck coach Tom Krieger and his 28 squad members for 30 minutes of filmed highlights of the game and a rundown of the team's Florida activities.

Also on top for the color show will be four Little Buckeye assistant coaches and local sportswriters (including The Spectator's Jack Wittenmeier) who accompanied the team to Florida.

Your Future In Central Ohio

A Message...

The Challenge of '76 . . . Within the next ten years Metropolitan Columbus will either build a dream or live in a nightmare. One need not look outside of Ohio to find cities which failed to meet the challenge of dynamic urban growth, cities strangled in their own traffic, festering violence at their very core, atrophied by lack of imagination and planning. Columbus can escape that fate. To a large degree it already stands out as the most progressive major city in the state. But it cannot take refuge in the past and leave unheeded the challenge of the future. Those who guide the destiny of this vast city must be bold enough to dream, brave enough to dare and wise enough to know that the future begins today. The Challenge of '76 starts now.

Youth Key To New Investment

It's the younger and not the older generation which offers the consumer finance industry its greatest potential for growth, Harry E. Fuller, president of the Capital Finance Corporation, said.

Capital is a 17-state consumer finance organization which has its headquarters at 100 E. Broad-st, Columbus.

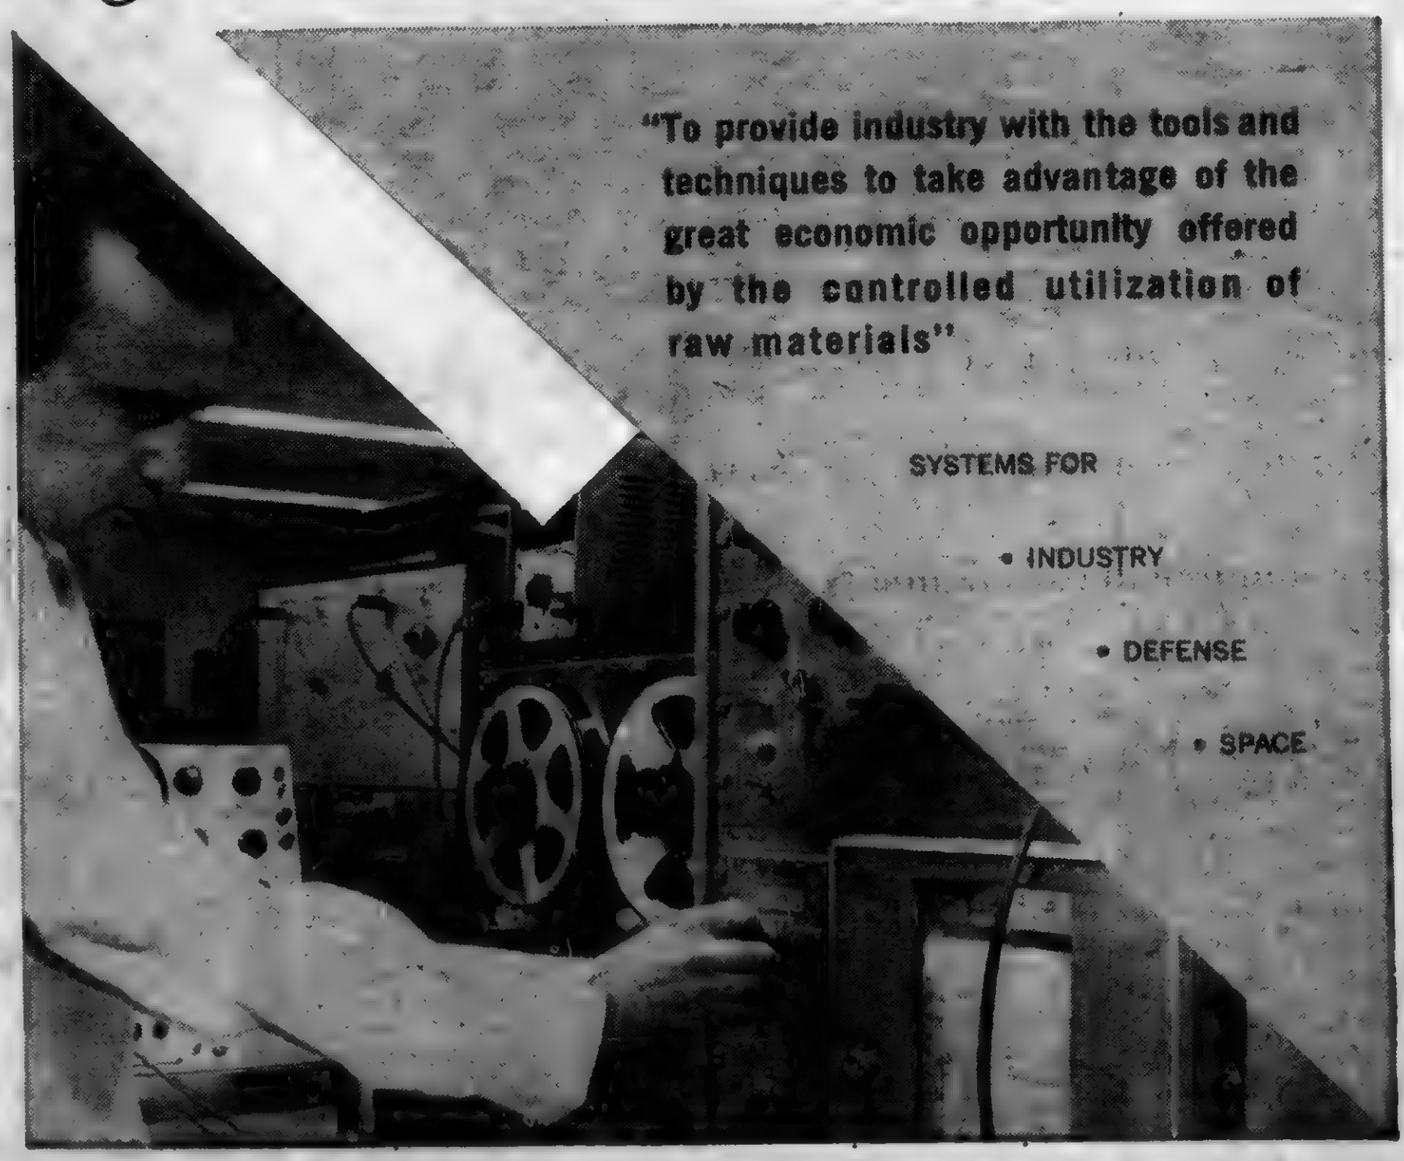
During the period 1960 to 1965, according to Fuller, the fastest growing age group in the U.S. was the 20 to 24 category which increased by 22.9 percent during that period. Between 1965 and 1970 this group will increase at an even faster rate of 26.3 percent.

"This is the group," said Fuller, "which has the greatest impact on the job market and the group which creates the greatest role in family formation and the establishment of new households. It is also the group which supplies the initial demand for consumer durables to equip newly established homes. Fifty-eight percent of this age category now uses installment credit."

There are some 13,667,000 in the 20 to 24 bracket, but right behind them are some 76 million Americans who are under 19.

"We must plan for them too," said Fuller. "It wasn't too long ago that the young lady who is now 24, married, a mother, and living in a house with durables she and her husband are buying through the use of credit, was a teenager who spent all of her allowance on Elvis Presley records."

While the younger set offers potential for the future, the 46,789,000 Americans in the 25 to 44 age group are the bread and butter of the credit industry, Fuller said. There is a significant fall-off of credit users in the over 45 group.



In the 25 to 44 group are those five figure salary earners who are increasing their use of installment credit.

Fuller related that early in 1965 only 32 percent of families with $15,000 or more income owed installment debt and 11 percent in excess of $2,000. Early in 1966, 47 percent of this income group owed installment debt and 19 percent owed in excess of $2,000.

Fuller said researchers for his firm see no major slowdown in the economy during 1967, and plans have been made to handle a responsible increase in the volume of loans and sales contracts purchased."

Homeowners Are More Selective, Munkel Reports

Present day homeowners are becoming more selective in decisions concerning home comfort, report officials of Munkel Heating and Cooling.

Munkel, which for more than 50 years has served Central Ohio residents by making their homes more comfortable, says homeowners now base their decisions on such factors as hometown products, service reliability, past performance and company reliability.

Changes are continually being made in the industry to meet demands placed on home comfort systems. The same factors are involved in commercial comfort systems.

Preston Marks Fourth Anniversary

E. S. Preston & Associates, Ltd., with headquarters at 939 Goodale-st is one of Columbus' fastest growing new companies. The firm of consulting engineers has just passed its fourth anniversary and is in a continuing program of expanding its personnel, facilities and equipment.

The company was formed by E. S. Preston, former Director of Highways under Governor Michael V. DiSalle, to provide engineering, economic and other services in a variety of professional fields. Among the many services available to clients are environmental engineering, all types of highways and bridges, aerial photogrammetric services coupled with electronic computations, economic anayl-ses, sewer and water supply, refuse disposal, airports and community and transportation planning.

The company has branch offices in Canton, O., West Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina and Washington, D. C. Preston's staff has risen from 100 to 150 people in the last year.

The company also has expanded its equipment and facilities to broaden its scope of services. Recent additions of equipment include a five-projector stereoscopic plotter) added to three others) for the production of topographic maps and other precise terrain measurements; a process camera and reproduction of narrative and colored exhibits, studies and reports; a Log-E-Tronic photographic printer and other time saving reproduction equipment.

In the past year, Preston has installed two 1130 IBM computers, which are programmed to provide a diversity of services.

A Benson-Lehner incremental line plotter is coupled with the computers to produce graphic illustrations of many types of computer output such as grade lines, cross-sections, earthwork mass diagrams, etc.

Application of the aforementioner techniques and equipment enable the firm to produce diverse engineering and economic products within an amazingly short period of time. The same work, under less modern facilities, possibly would take weeks to produce.

E. S. Preston is presently engaged in a number of projects in the city. They are preparing highway plans for the Olentangy Expressway from Kinnear Road to the Outerbelt. A study report has just been completed on the Morse Road extension from High Street to Olentangy Expressway. The firm's continuing services to the federal government have recently been summarized as "superlative" by the Appalachian Regional Commission for planning work in the highway area of the twelve state Appalachian Region of the eastern United States; and last year Mr. Preston received one of the coveted national awards from Engineering News Record for his outstanding contribution to the highway construction industry.

THIS 10 MILLION gallon ground tank for water storage is a recent project designed by E. S. Preston and Associates, consulting engineers. The tank is under construction for the City of Columbus on Morse Road, just west of Hamilton Road, to provide service for the east and southeast sections of the City. The spikes circling the wall of the tank will be backlighted at night to add to the beauty of this modern facility.

AT GREEN LAWN there is a constant program of improvement . . . a meticulous plan of maintenance and beautification to make the cemetery a veritable "shrine of remembrance." It is the logical cemetery in which to provide the family burial lot in advance of need.

Care Donations Set Ten-Year High Mark

Public contributions to CARE in fiscal 1966 set a 10-year record of $12,173,345, or $1 million more than the previous year, according to the just-published 20th Annual Report of the non-profit overseas aid agency.

Printed in the shape of a CARE package, the report shows that these donations by the people of the United States and Canada were multiplied into nearly $93-million in food, self-help and medical aid delivered to needy peoples in 40 countries of Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America and the Middle East.

The total includes U. S. Food for Peace donations and host government support toward internal expenses. Cumulative value of distributions since 1946 is $852 million.

Refugees and other civilian war victims in South Vietnam dominated CARE's attention in the past year, the report points out.

"Deeply involved as we were in this task, our other commitments around the world were not neglected," Frank L. Goffio, executive director, summarizes. "Our fight on hunger was intensified and expanded, helping to feed 40 million persons in 32 countries, including 26 million children in school feeding programs; our Self-Help projects increased in number and variety; our MEDICO service made new advances in spreading the benefits of modern medicine to deprived areas.

"This record of achievement fittingly marks our Twentieth Anniversary. It is also a tribute to the millions of donors who chose to express their humane concern through CARE." CARE was founded by Columbus Murray Lincoln, late president of Nationwide Insurance Co.

Ohio State Construction Stepped Up

Emphasis in the 1967 construction of Ohio State University (placed on the North Campus Dormitory Complex and off-branch facilities last year) will shift to science and engineering classrooms and laboratory facilities.

The new $3.5 million Physics building, the $3.2 million Electronics Laboratory, the $3.1 million Systems Engineering, the $2.4 million Materials Engineering Science, the $1.5 million Chemistry Research Facility and the $2.6 million Engineering classrooms and Laboratory Building represent a third of the cost of the projects totaling almost $49 million that are now underway.

DURING 1966 major projects completed at a cost of over $17.6 million included six student residence and dining facilities and buildings at Dayton, Mansfield and Lima branches totaling $7.3 million.

The balance of the funds went to the completion of an Aeronautical and Astronautical Laboratory, Antenna Laboratory Control Facility, Ohio Stadium Research facility and a Linear Accelerator Facility.

In addition to the construction already under way, 13 additional major classroom and laboratory buildings and other projects are scheduled to begin this year at a cost of $70 million.

THE LARGEST of these is the $12.8 million medical basic sciences building in the health center complex which will be almost 50 percent subsidized by federal funds. Four University College buildings and a graduate research center for biological science will account for another $19.4 million.

Off campus facilities planned include additional buildings at Newark and additional phases of work already begun at Mansfield and Lima.

The only major housing planned is that of the Jones Graduate Tower, a 13-story residence hall to be built for $3.5 million.

OTHER NEW projects to get under way during the current year are an addition to Dodd Hall Rehabilitation Center, a continuing education building to be known as "Center for Tomorrow," two parking ramps, printing facilities and an Airport Control Tower.

The budget, described as unprecedented in the history of the University, is OSU's answer to the growing educational demands placed upon it. The autumn enrollment of 41,207 involved a six percent jump over like figures in 1965.

With the exception of dormitories and service facilities which are financed by self-liquidating revenue bonds and student union projects which are funded from student fees and revenue bonds, most construction is financed through state bond issues with the help of federal grants.

When was there ever "LOOSE" MONEY?

One might get the impression that until last year money was "loose" . . . that is, handed out willy-nilly to just anyone wanting it for any purpose whatsoever.

Nothing is farther from the truth. The borrower always had had to be able to prove to the lenders satisfaction that he will repay the loan.

This is still the case at First Federal where we don't talk about "tight" money. We continue doing what we've always done . . . making a first-mortgage loan to any qualified person wanting to buy or build a home. How well we do it is proved by this fact:

We have never foreclosed on a single mortgage in the past 30 years.

We encourage you to find the house of your choice with the satisfaction of knowing First Federal will do everything possible to enrich your home life.

Gas Co. Forecasts More Growth

Accelerated growth is being forecast in all phases of the natural gas industry in Ohio and throughout the nation in the next decade, Elden H. Davis, Central District manager for Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., reported today.

A recent survey indicates that about 9.8 million customers will be added in the United States in the next 10 years. The nationwide pipeline network will increase 309,000 miles and the gas industry will spend $21.3 billion for new plants and equipment to serve new customers in new areas and to increase service to existing customers.

"As these demands for energy increase," Davis said, "Columbia Gas of Ohio will continue to expand and improve facilities and operating methods as needed to serve its 221,200 customers in Columbus and Franklin County, as well as those customers in more than 500 other Ohio communities that are served by Columbia Gas of Ohio."

Davis said that during 1966 Columbia Gas of Ohio invested more than $2,215,000 in Franklin County alone to build more than 70 miles of new pipelines to extend natural gas service to 5,800 new customers and to expand and improve service to existing customers.

These and other improvement helped make it possible for Columbia Gas of Ohio to deliver more than 60.6 billion cubic feet of natural gas to customers in Columbus and Franklin County, Davis said. More than 97 percent of these customers use natural gas for home heating, he pointed out.

Major projects completed in Columbus in 1966 included:

- Replacement of 5,059 feet of pipeline on E. Main Street. Cost, $103,678.
- Replacement of 4,110 feet of pipeline on Nelson Road. Cost, $28,280.
- Construction of 9,240 feet of pipeline on S. Hamilton Road to serve Eastland Shopping Center. Cost, $77,843.

Overall, $29½ million was invested in new construction by Columbia Gas of Ohio and its sister company, the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., during the year, Davis said.

Ohio Fuel supplies natural gas to Columbia Gas of Ohio and 26 other gas companies in Ohio. Both firms are part of the Columbia Gas System, Inc.

More than 608 miles of new pipelines were laid as part of the two companies' continuing program to provide the best possible service to more than 869,800 Columbia Gas of Ohio customers in 61 Ohio counties at residential rates that are among the lowest in the nation, Davis said.

"One important reason for these low residential gas rates is Ohio Fuel's underground storage program, Davis pointed out.

Ohio Fuel has 10 underground storage areas strategically located throughout the state. These facilities, with a total of more than 1,900 storage wells, were devolepod at a cost of more than $91 million. On the coldest winter days about 55 percent of the gas used by Columbia of Ohois' customers comes from underground storage, Davis said.

In 1966 Ohio Fuel spent almost $3 million to further expand and improve underground storage and compressor station facilities. Sixty new wells were drilled into the storage areas and new compressor engines were installed at Crawford Compressor Station, Fairfield County, and Weaver Station, Richland County.

In addition, two major pipeline projects were completed in northern Lawrence County and southeastern Richland County in 1966 at a cost of almost $1.5 million to increase deliveries of gas to and from underground storage.

At the beginning of the current heating season, with the help of these new facilities, the gas company had a record volume of more than 240 billion cubic feet of gas in underground storage, Davis said.

New records also were set in 1966 by Columbia Gas of Ohio in industrial applications of natural gas and in residential and large-tonnage air conditioning installations, Davis said.

As natural gas continued to gain in popularity as the favorite fuel for cooling as well as heating, more than 1,170 residential air conditioning units were installed in Columbia Gas of Ohio territory in 1966 — twice as many as were added in 1965.

Industrial sales increased 13.6 billion cubic feet, or 11.4 percent, in 1966, representing an unusually high growth rate, Davis said.

Such Columbus industries as Belmont Casket Co., Bonney-Floyd Co., Timken Roller Bearing Corp., E. I. duPont de-Nemours and Co., Diebel Heat Treating Co. and Kimble Products - Owens - Illinois increased their gas requirements substantially in various manufacturing processes using gas as a fuel, a tool and a raw material.

Gas sales to public and commercial establishments increased almost nine percent, primarily because of the widely accepted use of gas for space heating in new schools, churches and county and state owned buildings. Gas heating was installed in 107 new schools or school additions in Columbia Gas of Ohio territory during the year, he pointed out.

The use of natural gas as prime mover fuel — where a natural gas engine or turbine is used for shaft horsepower applications — is growing at an exciting pace, Davis said. More than 30,000 horsepower of this type was added by firms in Columbia Gas of Ohio territory in 1966. Several Ohio industries now are generating electricity on-site using gas engine generator units which have proven to be highly reliable and economical, Davis said. Heat is recovered from these units for space heating, air conditioning and processing work.

Gas air conditioning installations for large buildings, increased 70 percent over 1965, with noticeable preference in modern, multi-million dollar factories such as General Mills, Lancaster, and McBee Systems, Inc., division of Litton Industries, Inc., Athens, Davis said.

Hospitals also are finding gas absorption air conditioning to be extremely economical, and typical installations of this type took place in 1966 at Hocking County Hospital, Logan; St. Ann's Hospital, Columbus; Bethesda Hospital, Zanesville; Mansfield General Hospital, Mansfield, and Pomerene Hospital, Millersburg.

Floor Covering Business Began In Owner's Home

What began in 1942 as a floor installation service operating out of a home has grown into quite a business for the Charles Yoakam family.

It was in that year that Yoakam and his son Robert began the family business. Now, the family business is located in a building at 143 E. Main-st. Parsons Floor Covering is in the process of being remodeled so that soon four complete floors of floor coverings will be on display.

Robert Yoakam, who began helping his father when he was 13, is now the president of the corporation. Paul Manns is the company's vice-president and Ed Roberts is the store manager. Paul Berendt, who has been with the firm for twenty years and was one of the first employes, is the sales supervisor.

As the list of customers grew, so grew the quarters for the company. In January of 1947, the Yoakams opened their first store on Parsons Avenue. In January of 1951, they moved from Parsons to 169 E. Main-st, and in 1961 they moved into their present location.

In efforts to lower prices by eliminating the middleman they have completed their new manufacturing plant at 1641 Harmon-av, where cabinets, sink tops, office and commercial custom work are made.

This building also serves as a warehouse for a vast supply of carpeting.

Charles Yoakam is now retired but he can look back with pride at the progress of the The Parsons Floor Covering—a firm born only 25 years ago.

Lake Shore Expands Service

The Lake Shore System has reported another fine year of expansion as the year 1966 has been reviewed by management and reported by Board Chairman Richard S. Thomasson.

The year 1966 saw the acquisition of a fleet of new General Motors "tri-level" air conditioned buses as well as new 46 passenger luxury buses to further insure the traveler the very latest advances in comfort, convenience and satisfaction.

In addition to its expanded service throughout Ohio as well as West Virginia and Pennsylvania, the Lake Shore System offers connecting service to all points in the United States.

Thomasson reported a substantial increase in people using the charter service of the Lake Shore System in 1966.

"As we unveil to the public the latest and finest buses that money can buy, folks seem to be turning more and more to the comfort and convenience offered by chartering a Lake Shore bus," Thomasson added.

It has also been found that as the highways become more crowded and the accident rate continues to climb, people are once again "rediscovering" the advantages of traveling by bus, Thomasson said.

The Lake Shore System offers regularly scheduled service between Columbus and Lima, including all points in between such as Dublin, Plain City, Marysville, East Liberty, Bellefontaine, Russells Point, to name a few.

Lake Shore also offers regularly scheduled service between Columbus, Zanesville, Cambridge, Wheeling, Steubenville and Pittsburgh; Columbus, Pataskala and Newark; Columbus, Lancaster, Logan, Athens and Pomeroy; Columbus, Circleville, Chillicothe; Zanesville, McConnellsville, Marietta, Logan and Jackson, as well as local Columbus suburban service.

Parcel express service is offered on all lines, as well as charter bus service to anywhere at any time.

Denmead Co. Completes New Office Building

Completion of a new building to house two growing firms has been announced by R. G. Denmead and Co., Realtors at 57 E. Gay-st.

The location is on Harmon Avenue, midway between two highway interchanges of Interstate Route 71, and less than 10 minutes drive from the center of the city.

Newly located at 793 Harmon-av is the Rutan Sales Co., local distributor of Tupperware, a popular line of household containers and utensils. Mrs. Bernice Rutan is the principal owner of Rutan Sales Co.

Established at 795 Harmon-av is the Keleket X-Ray Division of Laboratory for Electronics, manufacturer and distributer of X-ray equipment, film and supplies. L. E. Dulin is branch manager of Keleket X-Ray.

The building, constructed for the General Housing Corp. by Charles R. Snyder, Inc., 1652 West Fifth-av, includes 2,000 square feet of air-conditioned office space and 4,500 square feet of warehouse area. Interior facilities were designed to the tenants' specifications. Land was provided, leases negotiated, and the building planned and financed by R. G. Denmead and Co.

This building is the latest in a long series of sales and leasing transactions completed in the Harmon Avenue area in recent years by R. G. Denmead and Co., who are active in commercial and industrial real estate brokerage throughout central Ohio.

CAPITAL, YOUTH, AND FREE ENTERPRISE

Each year the Capital Finance Corporation contributes a substantial sum to privately-supported colleges and universities throughout the United States. Grants range in amounts from $50 to $5,000.

Capital believes these contributions can help schools develop young men and women who will understand and support the philosophy of free enterprise. Capital also reasons that if private enterprise does not support colleges, they will gravitate toward government support. This, in turn, could instill in young minds the impression government support and control is the only answer to all economic problems.

The Capital Finance Corporation itself is an excellent example of progress through free enterprise. Founded in Columbus in 1920, in only 46 years it has grown from one office with $25,000 in receivables to 315 offices in 17 states, with receivables of more than a quarter billion dollars.

In Ohio, Capital's wholly-owned subsidiary is the Economy Savings and Loan Company, with these Columbus offices:

JANUARY 1967

1966 One Of Busiest Years For Columbus Area Growth

By M. E. SENSENBRENNER
Mayor of Columbus

Columbus experienced one of its busiest years in 1966. Citizens from all sections and interests in our community met together regularly to communicate and cooperate for progress and orderly growth.

Five hundred sixty thousand persons now live in the city, according to figures of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, strengthening our position as Ohio's second most populous city. Columbus is now the nation's 15th largest land area city with 111.6 square miles. The largest municipal land area in Ohio, Columbus, is also the dynamic hub of a marketing area which embraces two-thirds of the nation's population.

Here are some of the highlights of Columbus growth and development during 1966:

PORT COLUMBUS International Airport completed its first year of operation under international status with over 330,000 total aircraft operations placing it among the 10 busiest airports in the United States. The Port Columbus year saw a new $400,000 general aviation center and a $300,000 fire-rescue station.

Land acquisition for a planned $7.5 million secondary airport began in October in Southwest Franklin County. The site, approved by the Federal Aviation Agency to handle commercial, business and small plane traffic by late 1967 or early 1968, will contain a 4,000-foot runway and supporting air terminal building.

BY COUNCIL ORDINANCE Columbus established a Department of Development in mid-1966. This new cabinet-level responsibility brought together the development resources of the urban renewal, planning and zoning divisions. (The department's director, Mr. Crozier, a nationally recognized urban development authority joined our administration in January of this year.)

OHIO LEADS the nation in percentage of its interstate freeways completed, and Columbus leads our state with some 24 miles of these arteries. Opening of the new East Freeway improved accessibility between the East Side and other sectors of town this summer and fall. Columbus now has almost $200 million in freeways.

With the completion of the West Freeway by 1970 we will have $300 million worth of these roadways. Other major east-west, north-south and crosstown highways are under way or being planned. First section of the voter-approved Olentangy Freeway is now under contract. The city also received agreement that both the north and south legs of the West Freeway would be placed on the Interstate Highway System.

Local funds for these improvements came partly from a $14.7 million capital improvement bond issue in 1964, paid by income tax funds.

Traffic improvement on existing routes during 1966 included midnight-to-dawn flasher signal lighting and left-turn lane delineation to expedite safe vehicle flow along major arteries — plus installation of 66 new traffic signals and over 150 school zone flashers at 70 schools throughout the city.

The combination of engineering, enforcement and community education (through media and service groups) assisted in reducing Columbus traffic fatalities 21 percent below the '65 figure — and brought your city a National Safety Council award for this improvement.

COLUMBUS HIRED 80 new patrolmen and 29 new firefighters in 1966, bringing sworn personnel in each of these divisions to around 750 men. This is much greater strength than a few years ago, and continued emphasis will be put on acquiring the needed manpower for each division as city population and land-area increase. Adequate manpower and good training procedures help assure us of good law enforcement and continued low fire insurance rates.

A resource on developing improvement in education, hiring and housing opportunities in Columbus, the Community Relations staff, also cooperated with many neighboring groups in conducting public forums bringing together city officials and community residents. The staff also cooperated with the Police Division, Ohio State University and interested citizens in broadening avenues of understanding in police-community relationships.

COLUMBUS, which had already begun a Systematic Housing Code Enforcement Program in May of 1964, became in 1966 the first city in the entire midwest region of ten states to receive approval of federal participation in its code enforcement work.

A federal grant of $299,528 was approved in July for areas on the West and East Sides of the city totaling 854 acres, with a population of more than 25,000 persons. The West Side area is bounded by the Sandusky Freeway, West Broad Street, Central and Sullivant Avenues. The East Side area is bounded by East Broad Street, Wilson and Livingston Avenues and the Parsons Avenue Freeway.

Federal aid will be sought early in 1967 for three additional areas totaling 1044 acres with a population of more than 26,000. These areas include the Milo-Grogan on the near Northeast Side, the Garrison Park-Mt. Vernon Avenue Area on the East Side and the Hilltop area between Broad and Sullivant from Lechner Avenue on the east to Hague Avenue on the west.

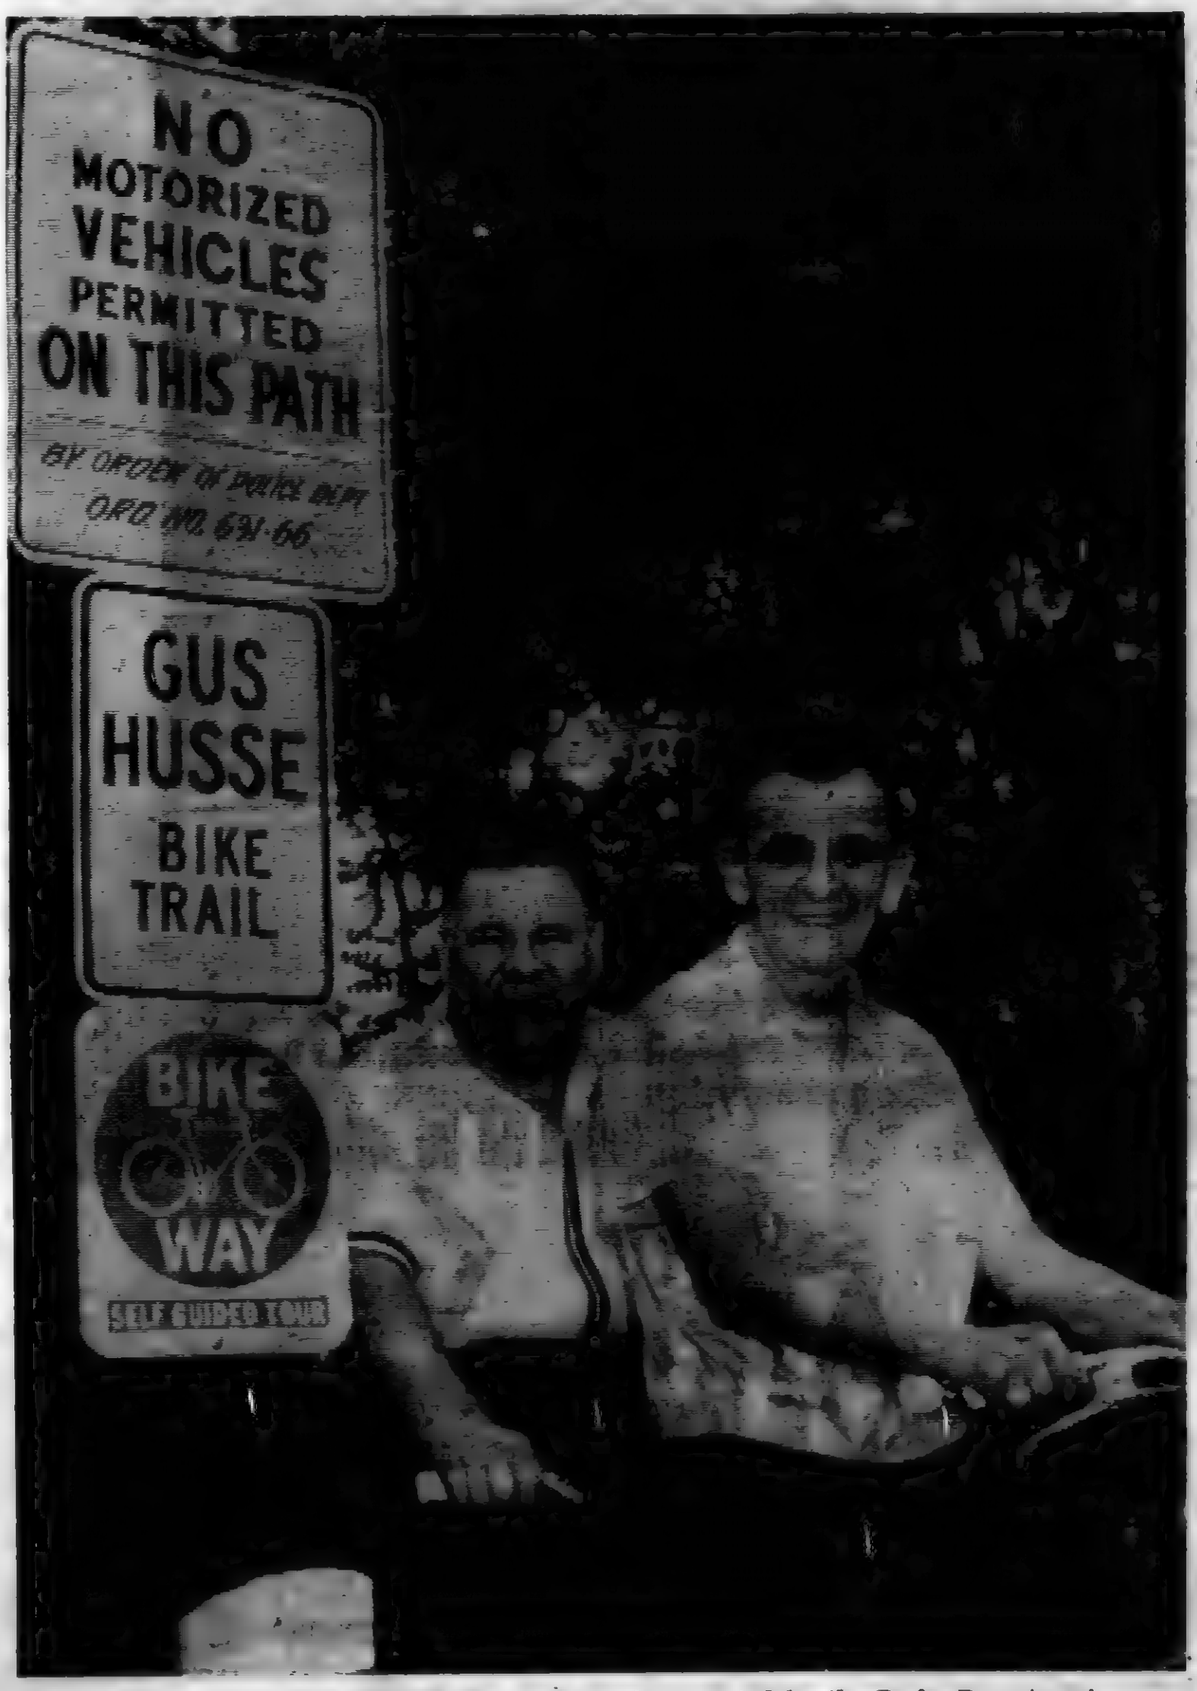
Extensive public improvements are planned for all of the code enforcement areas, including street improvements, street lighting and other facilities. These improvements in code enforcement areas are also eligible for federal aid.

Since the Systematic Housing Code Enforcement Program began, 8,972 dwelling units have been inspected, and reinspections have totaled 9,119 to assure compliance with orders issued.

As a result of these inspections, 3,368 orders have been issued, compliance has been achieved in 2,330 cases and work is in progress in most of the others. There have been 47 condemned dwellings rehabilitated, while 58 have been demolished.

CODE ENFORCEMENT is also part of the city's efforts in the Dennison Avenue Conservation Area. Residents in that area are also eligible for the federal financial aids. To date, more than $600,000 has been spent by property owners on more than 200 structures in the Dennison Avenue area.

New construction completed or under way in the urban-renewal areas now totals $36.3 million, of which $24.1 million represents new construction completed; $33.6 million of the new construction record has been achieved during the past three years.



Capital improvements completed by the city, in the various project areas to date, totals $3.7 million, with an additional $957,083 under way.

Nearly 3.5 million square feet of land has been sold for redevelopment and all land in the city's five clearance projects is sold, under contract for sale or committed to a specific redeveloper. So far as is known, no other major city matches this record.

MARION-FRANKLIN Swimming Pool was constructed and in operation during the 1966 season bringing the total of new public pools to four. A $700,000 indoor pool is under contract and is being constructed in the Dennison-Hunter Area at 1189 Dennison-av

THE GUS HUSSE bike trail was inaugurated by the Parks Department during 1966 and Gus, left, got the honor of taking the first ride. Driving the tandem bike is Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner.

Growth--

The new 18-hole Airport Public Championship Golf Course began operation on July 8, 1966. The Ohio Parks and Recreation Association awarded the City of Columbus the 1966 Award for Outstanding Achievement in the Wise Use of Land in Building the Airport Golf Course.

The two-mile paved bike trail was started on the west bank of the Scioto River.

Indian Village Camp was completely renovated and winterized with two independent lodges each with kitchen, rest rooms, dormitories and a large recreation hall to be used 52 weeks a year.

A second Senior Citizens' Center at Second and Summit is to be completed in May of 1967.

An architect has been hired to remodel the ground floor of 1100 East Broad-st for a third Senior Citizens' Recreation Center and it too is to be completed in May of 1967.

Bolivar Arms and Blackburn Recreation Center applications are in Washington awaiting federal approval of grants.

Property is now being purchased to double the size of Second Avenue playground for the summer use of 1967.

General renovation and repairs were given to Glenwood Recreation Center.

Nine permanent horseshoe courts were lighted for night play at Sunshine Recreation Center.

Beatty Recreation Center was remodeled including enlarging the gymnasium, new bleachers, new auditorium and stage, and a new kitchen.

The city's twenty-four recreation centers, 90 playgrounds, 41 Boys' Recreation Clubs, five swimming pools, two 18-hole golf courses, 43 tennis courts, 23 baseball and 92 softball diamonds served approximately 5.5 million event participants during 1966.

Columbus' new superintendent of parks, Harold Freiheidt, came to us in 1966 from Dayton where he developed an outstanding program for Montgomery County's comprehensive park system. In 1966, the Parks Division readied for construction the major camping area adjacent to Hoover Reservoir and expedited the complex of boat marina installations made at Griggs and O'Shaughnessy Reservoirs.

COLUMBUS' FUTURE also depends upon our planning and meeting the needs for water and sewerage services. An $18 million southerly sewerage and treatment plan and trunkline system (first part of a three-phase long-range $50 million sewer program) approached completion during 1966. The new facility, with some 30 miles of trunklines following Alum and Big Walnut Creeks, funnels into the Big Walnut Outfall Sanitary Sewer to serve the east and south sides of the city. Processing 40 to 60 million gallons of raw sewage daily, this new system will handle up to 180 million gallons daily upon completion of the third stage of development.

Columbus, in cooperation with a number of public and private agencies, concentrated action during 1966 on the long-standing problem of the variety of unpleasant odors assailing this area of the Scioto River Valley. During 1966 the city of Columbus expended $1,750,000 and appropriated an additional $5 million to isolate odor sources, providing temporary relief; wherever feasible, but more importantly, to expedite programs for permanent correction by major revamping of the 30-year-old Jackson Road Treatment Plant.

More than $3 million of new water development facilities became a reality in 1966. At year's end contract award was made for a new 10 million gallon water storage tank to serve the growing east side. Contracts for new clear wells at the Morse Road Water Treatment Plant for 12 million gallons of water storage were well along in construction, and a new one million gallon capacity tank was built to serve the southeast side.

Numerous water lines were laid throughout the city to serve, in many cases, newly annexed areas. Engineering and design specifications were readied to renovate the nearly 60-year-old Scioto River Pumping Station and to double the size of the Morse Road Treatment Plant.

ALSO HELPING spur the city's 1966 growth tempo were effects of installing over 3,000 new street lights during these past three years. Adequate lighting makes a more attractive city, assists in curbing islands of crime and delinquency, and helps reduce the possibility of pedestrian and vehicle accidents.

THE SAFETY DEPARTMENT of Columbus is charged with protecting the city through the police and fire departments. Here, Safety Director Fred Simon, right, swears in a group of new firemen, a scene often repeated in 1966.

A great part of the funds for street lights came from the $1.9 million capital improvement bond issue voters approved in 1964. Again, the money comes from the city income tax and not from property assessments.

PROGRESSIVE WATER, sewer and other public service programs helped make possible Columbus' growth in the private sector of its economy during 1966. Here are just a few examples:

• Beginning of the Anheuser Busch $50 million brewery on Schrock Road.

• Completion of an $8 million addition to the world-famous Battelle Memorial Institute.

• Construction of three king-sized warehouses valued at more than $3 million by the D. T. Overmyer Company, Inc., to join other facilities which will ring the Columbus Outerbelt.

• Major telephone service and equipment expansion and investment by Ohio Bell.

• Opening of $1.5 million worth of new cinema theatres by the General Cinema Corporation with the Don M. Casto Organization.

• Launching of a new professional ice hockey team (Columbus Checkers) and a new professional basketball team (Columbus Comets) to give the capital city a year-around sports menu, create new jobs and help bring added visitors to Columbus.

• Issuance of some 10,437 building permits with a total value of $149.1 million ($80.6 million of which was for residential construction).

• Continuation of two other public facility building programs of note—the new $14 million U.S. Post Office on Twin Rivers Drive, and The Ohio State University's $2 million building program which took major strides forward in 1966.

RECREATION IN COLUMBUS is typified by this scene at last summer's Central Ohio AAU Junior Olympic swim meet at the city's Sunshine Pool.

THAT'S NOT JACK Nicklaus, it's Mayor Sensenbrenner teeing off on the new Airport Golf Course at ceremonies marking the start of construction of the Hamilton Road links. City officials and cameramen gleefully look on.

Land Reclamation Pushed By American Aggregates

For American Aggregates, producing sand and gravel aggregates for modern construction is only a part of what it terms its "obligation to future generations."

To meet that obligation, American Aggregates has launched "Project Parklands," designed to return land it uses for industrial operations to the public for homesites, parks and recreation areas.

In Columbus, two examples of the success of the project are the Dublin Road business and industrial area, which now houses some of Franklin County's most attractive industries, and Scioto Lake, located on the south side of Frank Road.

Similar areas have been reclaimed by American Aggregates throughout Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

American Aggregates, a pioneer in the sand and gravel business, feels it has reached its present stature "mainly because of a desire to keep pace with the ever-increasing need for these products in our modern economy."

Accurately blended and washed aggregates are used in the construction of streets, highways, airports, schools, office buildings, hospitals and homes.

Firms like American Aggregates must be able to take a limited supply of such items where they are needed and produce sufficient aggregates to support area construction.

American's "Project Parklands" programs is based on the theory that the producer "is only a tenant on the land and it behooves him, when he has finished, to leave the land usable for other worthwhile purposes."

First Federal Yet To File First Home Foreclosure

When it comes to the pointing with pride department, First Federal Savings and Loan Association points proudly to a record that is never reflected in its annual report.

That record shows that in 30 years of making mortgage loans, that total millions of dollars, First Federal has yet to file its first foreclosure.

"We're proud of that record because it shows we know how to help people become homeowners through the type of mortgage loan that fits easily into a family budget," said Richard I. Eidson, president.

Eidson pointed out that in addition to maintaining low interest rates, First Federal provides other mortgage loan services that have helped it grow to one of the largest saving and loan associations in Ohio.

These services include holding closing costs to a minimum, reducing the red tape of closing and permitting prepayment of all or part of a mortgage loan without penalty. Then if a homeowner earns extra money or receives a bonus, he can reduce his indebtedness and save on interest.

Eidson also commented that First Federal has an historic right to use of First in its name. He said First Federal was the first savings and loan association in Columbus to be granted a Federal charter, to have insurance of savings accounts and to open a branch office.

First Federal has three offices, downtown at 65 E. State-st, 2680 W. Broad-st and 2450 E. Main-st. Total assets are now in excess of $80 million.

Kinnear Steel Rolling Doors Provide Convenience, Safety

More than a mile of steel rolling doors stands like a gigantic accordion, but that's just what Kinnear Manufacturing Co., 1131 Fields-av, just finished installing at the New York City Terminal Market in The Bronx, N.Y.

The installation, one of Kinnear's largest, provided many bays protected by strong, reliable, fast-opening and closing steel doors to provide all-weather service to market users.

Kinnear's slat-type door principal, designed by its engineers, is now in wide use on all types of commercial, industrial aand institutional buildings.

Kinnear overhead doors roll out of the way, eliminating wasted floor and wall space and releasing near-door areas for storage, traffic or production activities.

Providing extra safety in case of fire are Kinnear "Akbar" fire doors, which automatically close in case of fire, providing a barrier against the spread of fire to other parts of a building or to adjacent or nearby structures.

Kinnear officials say the fire doors "have saved many lives and millions of dollars worth of real estate and equipment and have been instrumental, in many cases, in bringing about a reduction of fire insurance premium rates."

Kinnear operates manufacturing plants in San Francisco; Centralia, Wash., and Toronto and branch sales offices in Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit and New York.

Ohio Employment Reaches 4 Million Average Level

For the first time in Ohio history, overall employment reached and average of four million during 1966, an increase of nearly 400,000 jobs from the 1961 recession average of 3.6 million.

Sharing in the growth were nearly all of Ohio's non-agricultural industries with factory employment leading the way.

Between 1961 and 1966, factory employment in Ohio rose by 198,000. Of this figure, the 165,000-job gain in manufacturing employes was the highest. However, since these industries are vulnerable to the ups and downs of the consumer cycle, the increase is only reflective of the 1966 "boom year" in respect to consumer goods.

An all-time high of 216,000 workers in nonelectrical machinery was reached in 1966 when 51,000 new workers were added to this field.

Transportation equipment producers and electrical machinery makers each added about 23,000 new workers in 1966.

Primary metal manufacturers trailed metal fabricators by about 3,000 new workers in 1966. Manufacturers added about 25,000 new employes; fabricators employed 28,000 additional workmen.

Since 1963, each new year has seen a new all-time peak in employment growth for non-manufacturing industries. The 1966 high averaged 2,111,000 workers, an increase of nearly one-quarter million since the last recession.

Gains in government employment has been striking. Government on all levels added 71,000 jobs.

Wholesale and retail trade has also shown a marked increase. Retailers surpassed the one-half million mark for the first time as the combined gains totaled in excess of 69,000 workers.

The Ohio labor market was particularly tight in 1966 with widespread shortages occuring in professional, technical and executive personnel such as scientists, engineers, teachers and draftsmen.

Medicare created a new demand for trained medical personnel without adding to doctors available. Dentists, nurses and laboratory technicians were also scarce.

Skilled electricians, machine operators, tool and die makers and automobile mechanics were scarcities in the blue-collar work pool.

These shortages were reflected in the average workweek of 42.6 hours, boosting overtime to the highest figure on record. This increase in the average workweek has been evidenced since 1961, and an all-time high

Urban renewal need not mean displaced families or "vast wastelands." In Columbus' Dennison Avenue Rehabilitation Area, it means taking old homes like these and turning them into modern, comfortable residences. Similar projects are taking place in other areas of the city. German Village is probably the finest example.

Western Electric Grows With Area

New production milestones, high employment, and a continuing involvement in community affairs were among the highlights of 1966 at Western Electric's Columbus Works.

The efforts of nearly 7,000 Central Ohio people who are employed at the 6200 E. Broad-st facility are directed toward the manufacture of Telephone Switching equipment, the equipment which enables the telephone user's call to be connected with any one of the 86 million other telephones in the United States.

This equipment is manufactured for the Bell Telephone Companies — including Ohio Bell. The two major products of the Works are the Crossbar Switching System, which is electromechanical in nature and is in general use throughout the nation's Bell Telephone Central Offices, and the new Electronic Switching System (ESS). The latter system utilizes much solid state technology to perform the task of telephone switching.

Production milestones of 1966 included the manufacture of Columbus' 100,000th Crossbar frame, which is telephone central office switching equipment. Also, the Works produced its 50 millionth Wire Spring Relay, a vital component of telephone switching equipment. Production of the communications industry's relatively new ESS equipment spiralled to new highs at the Columbus Works.

A spokesman for the firm indicated that this form of switching will be in general use throughout the nationwide Bell System by the year 2000. Manufacture of the ferreed switch, the heart of the Electronic Switching System, was at the quarter-million mark by mid-year. The Columbus Works also stepped up its production of the newly introduced Traffic Service Position System (TSPS) which was designed to open the door to many new direct distance dialing services for telephone users.

The Columbus Works employs over 700 engineering personnel, making it the largest facility in the area devoted to research and development of new and improved products. The impact of engineering cost reduction was felt in the form of increased productivity and reduced production costs, through improved manufacturing processes, materials and facilities. This cost reduction program resulted in accrued savings of nearly $3 million during 1966.

The efforts of Western Electric people were evident in numerous community projects, including the county-wide vehicle safety check campaign, increased participation in the Red Cross Bloodmobile program in which over 2,300 pints were donated by WE people, Employe United Appeal contributions totaling over $155,500 and a newly introduced activity which resulted in the employes contributing and shipping 250 pounds of Christmas gifts to servicemen in Vietnam.

The past year also saw WE once again active in the local Junior Achievement program. Because of its efforts in the sponsorship of JA companies and the sales of their products, the Columbus Works received a national award, a top sales trophy and a leadership award.

Other significant awards bestowed upon the people of the Columbus Works during 1966 included a National Safety Award of Honor for nearly 13 million man-hours worked without a lost-time accident and a plaque from the Treasury Department recognizing greatly increased employe investment in U. S. Savings Bonds.

As an interested corporate citizen, Western strives to increase equal employment opportunities through its support, at the leadership level, of the Plans for Progress.

During the year, the Columbus Works facilities were opened to several civic oriented groups, one of the most notable being the Ohio Law Enforcement Conference, in which 150 local, state and federal law enforcement people met to study law enforcement problems. Representatives of management groups, schools, churches and civic organizations from both Columbus and surrounding communities requested 114 tours which afforded nearly 3,900 people the opportunity of visting this plant.

During the year, Western Electric's 6200 E. Broad-st location spent nearly $12 million with 850 Ohio suppliers for goods and services. It paid out almost $48 million in wages and recorded sales in excess of $100 million.

September saw the opening of two new offices of the Columbus Works, in the heart of our inner-city, as over 300 engineering personnel and supervisory people moved to the LeVeque-Lincoln Tower and the Columbus Center building.

Western Electric's sponsorship of community service programs was highlighted when it joined with WBNS-TV to present the triple award-winning program, "Tale of a Tornado," which took top honors at New York City's International Film and TV Festival.

The Columbus Works inaugurated a series of art exhibits, held at the plant, which featured the endeavors of Columbus and Central Ohio talent. Included in this series was a special art exhibit which was made up of the art and craft work of our own talented employes. The over-all program was instituted to lend encouragement to local artists and to advance the arts in the Columbus community.

Looking forward to the New Year, General Manager Paul Zweier remarked that 1967 promises to be another year of high employment and production.

Electric Co. Commits Additional $18 Million

J. L. McNealey, president of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company, announced today that "$18 million has been committed for new construction projects in 1967, in addition to the $14 million in projects under construction and not completed at the end of 1966."

Included in this figure are expenditures for the construction of generating and transmission facilities as a point venture with Dayton Power & Light Company and Cincinnati Gas and Electric Company.

"We are confident the area in which we serve will continue to grow and expenditures of this order will continue to be required to keep pace with such growth," McNealey said.

"Three additional generating units with a total peaking capacity of 47,500 kilowatts were added to the system in 1966 at a cost of $4½ million. This addition increases the company's generating capacity to 937,500 kilowatts.

Two additional 13,750 kilowatt diesel-powered peaking units have been ordered for installation during 1967 at the Company's Poston and Conesville generating plants. These units will be used for short-time high load requirements, load area protection and to assist in generating station start-ups," he said.

McNealey concluded, "This highly progressive marketing area is one of the fastest growing major metropolitan centers in the entire Great Lakes and U.S Industrial Heartland Region."

McNealey said the utility is expecting 1966 sales to exceed those of 1965 by 11 percent Sales for the next decade are forecasted to increase at an average annual rate of about seven percent.

Does A Growing Area NEED A Modern Gravel Producer?

Some feel sand and gravel should only be produced in a remote spot but sand and gravel can only be mined where nature placed deposits. American Aggregates Corporation gives you Project Parklands.

The growth of the sand and gravel industry as a whole directly parallels the growth of our society and its demands for conveniences; . . . "conveniences" such as paved highways, streets and sidewalks, . . . airport runways, dams and bridges, ballast for railroad beds, foundations and materials for building homes, schools, churches, hospitals and public buildings.

Sand and gravel actually is the most basic of all building materials — used in concrete, concrete blocks, asphalt paving, stucco and plaster. Because of the widespread need, actual tonnage figures reveal that it is the number one mining crop in the U.S.A.

Would it be possible that "someone" may blight the landscape with the rugged desolate scene often associated with the term "gravel pit"? Or will it be a modern responsible operation pledged to the simultaneous creation of beautiful parklands as an important by-product?

This, although grossly simplified, is American Aggregates' message. In an effort to prove its "case", the company extends a blanket invitation to visit its sand and gravel operations in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan to observe the latest developments in

Blue Plan Studies Improvements

A report has been released on the Blue Plan Study of "Capital Improvements Activity" of governmental agencies in Franklin County.

"This report includes costs, maps and an analysis of the most significant capital improvement programs for the past 10 years and the next 10 years to reflect existing attitudes and policies," Blue Plan Director Harmon Merwin stated. This study was made by Citizens Research, Inc. as a work contribution to the Blue Plan cooperative effort, and covered the 1954-1964 period.

Only a few agencies are involved in formalized capital planning programs and each one, the report stated, while doing an adequate job, needs to improve its methods and increase the time spent on its capital planning process.

The largest agencies involved are the City of Columbus, State of Ohio, Columbus Public Schools, and Franklin County. Less formal capital planning has been done by Upper Arlington, Westerville, the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority, the Columbus Metropolitan Park Board and a number of larger expanding school districts.

The greatest effect on development from 1954 to 1964 has resulted from expenditures of $40 million for water and sewer utilities, $219 million for transportation, $190 million for schools and libraries, including a $90 million Ohio State University expenditure.

The City of Columbus, aided by its sewer-water freeze, has dominated the utility field. In building new and improved highway and airport facilities, the general policy has been a high dependence on federal funds. Mass public transit has not been given any emphasis in actual capital improvement programs.

A $16 million total has been spent for parks and recreation, with land acquisition stressed, the last ten years. Park development will be accelerated in the years ahead. The total spent on other facilities from 1954-64 was $89 million. Improvements which only indirectly affect the voter, such as city and county buildings and other civic center improvements have taken a back seat priority-wise to facilities like fire stations, hospitals, schools, highways and flood control.

From 1965 to 1975, the City of Columbus has scheduled $109 million for utilities, more than twice the amount spent from 1954 to 1964. A larger transportation program of $297 million is also scheduled. The programs scheduled for schools and libraries, including $64 million for OSU, is two-thirds the expenditure for the past 10 years—only $127 million.

The same amount spent in the past 10 years is programmed for parks and recreation —$16 million. Other facilities, programmed for $129 million, nearly doubles the amount spent in the past ten years; Columbus' program calls for $44 million; Franklin County has included almost $27 million, including the incinerator plants, and Juvenile Center addition; the State of Ohio has programmed almost $20 million, not including the OSU figure above; Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority lists over $19 million, and the new Federal Post Office is scheduled for $14,500,000.

Maps locating all of these 1954-64 and 1965-75 Capital Improvements are included with this report. Highlights of the study and maps are available on request from the Blue Plan, 514 S. High-st.

Extension Service Had Busy 1966

During 1966 the Franklin County Cooperative Extension Service developed a comprehensive long time plan and five year goals for the major areas of: Agricultural industry, marketing and utilization program, home economics, 4-H and older youth and community and public affairs. The long time plan and goals were the results of hard work by many people.

Local men, women and youth through representative committees studied local problems, decided priorities for Extension programs, helped develop and carry out programs, determined and made arrangements for budget, counseled with supervisor or agent personnel, counseled with agents to develop a coordinated program best suited to the county.

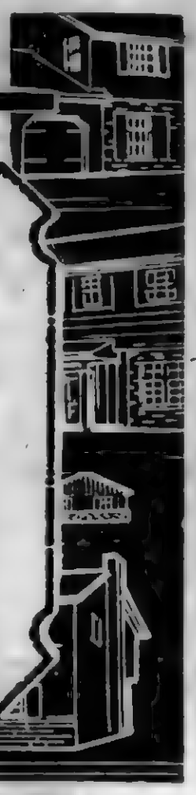
Meetings, clinics, tours, news stories, radio and TV programs and spots, bulletins, circular letters, leaflets prepared by agents and personal contact in the office, on the farms or in the home or by telephone — all of these were means used to instruct, inform, promote discussion and stimulate thinking as a basis for informed opinion and intelligent action.

Two thousand and forty leaders were trained and involved in one or more phases of the county program this year. Five thousand two hundred and one consultations providing information, advice and guidance on problems of individuals, families and farm operators were conducted by extension agents during 1966. The agents were also involved in 530 consultations with organizations and agencies, providing information guidance and advice.

Regular timely information went to consumers to keep them abreast of developments in food marketing: Food merchandising studies with a retailer to discover methods that will increase convenience both for him and his customers; work with wholesalers and producers to help the movement of food from producer to consumer in the quantity and with the quality that will increase consumer preferences to producer groups and information of supplies available to consumer — these were done to expedite the marketing process.

Major emphasis has been given to low-income families, young homemakers, employed homemakers and youth other than 4-H. Assistance of specialists at Ohio State University, and a capable group of trained lay and professional leaders, make possible a broad program in Home Economics.

A leaflet suggesting good food buys and tips for use has been prepared and distributed monthly to 5,600 families on the Food Stamp program. Public health nurses and welfare case workers use the leaflets for counseling families.



Welfare case workers were instructed in basic food needs and estimated cost of a minimum adequate diet. One hundred fifty case workers have contact with some 11,000 low income families. Nutrition and money management bulletins were placed in the Welfare Department library as references for case workers.

Head Start mothers' groups and an Urban League mothers' group were reached directly by programs on meal and money management, time management, and housekeeping skills.

In cooperation with Jewish Family Service and the Welfare Department, six ADC mothers in training for Homemaker Service were trained in meal and money management. Health Department Nursing Assistants for the Medicare program were instructed in basic housekeeping skills.

Church women and 4-H advisors were directed in teaching programs for low-income women and girls in inner-city church programs. Many agencies, including Columbus Metropolitan Community Action Organization, ECCO, Health and Welfare Departments, were counseled on various homemaking problems.

Employment—

gross average earning for factory production workers of $132.50 was recorded in 1966.

Averaging hourly wages also reached a new high of $3.11 an hour. Since the recession low in 1961, the average factory worker added 2.6 hours pay to his gross weekly earnings which have increased $25 in the last five years.

Unemployment moved steadily downward in 1966. An average of 127,000 is 160,000 below the 1961 recession figures. While the rate of unemployment was 7.3 per cent in 1961 (.6 per cent above the national average), by the end of 1966 the Ohio average was 3.1 per cent compared to a national average of 3.9.

Normal seasonal decreases in employment can be expected in the next few months, but the outlook for 1967, although not as bright as last year, is considered to be quite good. There is little reason to expect any sufficient decrease in Ohio labor market.

As a whole, 1967 should continue the booming pace set in 1966 and baring a complete reversal in the demands of the national military effort, the labor market should continue to be relatively tight.

General Electric, duPont and Anheuser-Busch are three of the corporations of world-wide reputation which expressed their confidence in Columbus last year as they moved to establish new plants in the area.

Most publicized were the plans of the Anheuser-Busch which began construction for a $50 million brewery near Worthington.

ACCORDING to Kline Roberts, president of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, total construction investment by 665 companies in the area jumped 40 percent over that of 1965 to reach $49,125,425.

In addition to duPont, companies whose new buildings are capitalized between $150,000 and $2 million included Coca Cola Bottling Co. of Columbus, Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co., American Aggregates, United Sheet Metal Co., Central Ohio Paper Co., and Ross Laboratories.

Roberts also stressed the prosperity of Metropolitan Columbus with the report of 332 new wholesale, retail and service enterprises and 29 manufacturing facilities.

HE STRESSED the diversification of the new operations with a total of over $25 million invested in such fields as electronics, dental appliances, chemical and plastic products, machinery and heating equipment.

In his report, optimistic although conceding that business has faced periodic uncertainties, Roberts quoted bank statistics, always considered reliable reflection on business conditions.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland stated that individual and charitable institutional savings are ahead of those of 1965 and that bank debits and bank clearings were up 38 and 13 percent respectively.

EMPLOYMENT remained stable with almost 25 percent of the 292,000 jobs held in the manufacturing field.

Utilities Earnings To Climb, Burnham Co. Report Says

In the face of an uncertain economic climate in which average industrial earnings may decline, a solid majority of electric utilities should sustain earnings increases in 1967, according to a report on the utilities industry just released by Burnham and Company, members of the New York Stock Exchange.

"While we recognize that some of the earnings improvement recorded by the 99 companies studied in this report during the past few years was due to the favorable industrial cycle," the Burnham report states, "We believe that the industry will continue to record significant gains from present levels in the years ahead.

"It is our belief that the current price to earnings ratio of 16.6 times, combined with the yield and growth prospects for the utilities industry, make its investment position more favorable than for many years in the past."

Last year, 32 companies recorded reductions in consumer rates amounting to $66 million as compared with $114 million in 1965. Burnham utility analysts Norman Greenberg and Carl H. Seligson, who prepared the industry study, believe the smaller amount of rate reductions made during 1966 can be directly attributed to the fact that in 1965 many companies were required to pass on to consumers the effect of the corporate tax reduction.

"The fact that reductions were still made," says the report, "serves to demonstrate an improvement in operating ratios and to confirm the vigor of the industry. While we look for a continued improvement in operating ratios in 1967, the industry is faced with higher cost of senior capital, wages and materials, and there is at least a reasonable possibility of increased corporate income tax rates. In such circumstances, operating economies might well be used to maintain adequate rates of return rather than to be passed on to the consumer."

In 1966, the Burnham study estimates, privately owned electric utilities had gross revenues of about $14.3 billion, an increase of nearly seven percent over the previous year. This larger increase than in 1965, the study says, reflects the diminution on the amount of rate reductions effective during the period and substantially greater residential and commercial sales growth.

In the year ahead, the Burnham report anticipates that "revenue gains will be tempered by less favorable summer weather comparisons and by the sharp decline in housing starts which has been taking place. At the same time, a smaller amount of rate reductions is likely."

On the other hand, capital expenditures by the electric industry should continue to increase as they did in 1966. In 1967, this should amount to $6.8 billion, of which approximately $5.1 billion will be accounted for by the privately owned segment. According to the Burnham report, capital expenditures are expected to grow through 1970.

Based upon its analysis of the utilities industry, the Burnham report believes an overall revenue gain of 5.5 to 6 percent can be achieved.

"We are assuming a two point increase in the corporate tax rate for 1967 and therefore anticipate an increase in net income of from 4 to 4.5 percent for the year. Under these same tax assumptions, we believe that the net income of many industrial companies may decline in 1967."

An examination of the earnings history of Standard and Poor's 31 electric utilities companies compared with Standard and Poor's 425 industrials, showed that the utilities had a significantly superior earnings per share growth "from peak to peak and from trough to trough of the economy. We continue to be constructively inclined and favorably impressed by the utilities companies," the Burnham report concludes.

It isn't. But we are. In its newness, it should be unfamiliar to you, but we do not want to be.

Let's start the new year out right and come into your home to acquaint you with the big "J" and what it stands for in our community and throughout the free world.

This distinctive "J" is the new trademark of The Jeffrey Manufacturing Company, the world's largest producer of mining, conveying, processing, sanitation, foundry and power transmission equipment.

From its small beginning in 1877, the Columbus headquarters plant has grown into a manufacturing complex that covers approximately 50 acres. Jeffrey products are shipped by truck and rail for use throughout the free world.

Jeffrey is international. With our associated companies, we operate 11 plants in the U.S.A. and four foreign countries.

One of our favorite expressions is: "If it's conveyed, processed or mined, it's a job for Jeffrey."

That covers a great deal, and it does not completely describe the scope of Jeffrey products and capabilities . . . because, sooner or later, in one way or another . . . Jeffrey products are used in the manufacture of just about everything.

What do we make? Would you believe, 1000 standard types of chain. (We originally developed and standardized many chains now used by industries everywhere.) Sprocket wheels. Clutches. Bearings. Mechanical and Electrical Vibrating Feeders and Conveyors. Vibrating Screens. Magnetic Separaters. Coolers and Dryers. Pulverizers. Crushers. Bin Valves. Washeries. Bucket Elevators. Sand Handling and Conditioning Systems. Traveling Water Screens. Bar Screens. Screening Shredders. Garbage Grinders. Grit Collectors and Washers. Settling Tank Equipment. Process Mixers. Continuous Miners. Longwall Equipment. Ratio Feeders. Mine Locomotives, Loaders, Shuttle Cars, Ramcars and Coal Cutters. Ventilating Equipment. Conveyors of all kinds. Famous Permaseal Idlers.

Jeffrey has been a good neighbor in this community all these years — a quiet, but busy neighbor, as you can see. President Chester G. Hawley has said that "there are no unimportant people at Jeffrey . . . and no unimportant jobs . . . because there's a little bit of each one of them in everything we make . . ."

The 6000 Jeffrey employees work here in Columbus; Morristown, Tenn.; Belton and Woodruff, S.C.; Delaware, O.; and in associated companies in Montreal, Canada; Guadalajara, Mexico; Wakefield, England, and Wadeville, South Africa.

Jeffrey's success comes from more than its plants, its tools, its experienced personnel and management. It comes, too, from ideas, carefully cultivated and probed in our engineering, research and development operations.

Jeffrey has big ideas for a future that's part of this community, and of many worldwide industries. The first 90 years were great, the next 90 are expected to be even greater!

Columbus Lures Conventions

The number of conventions that were held in Columbus during 1966 hit an all-time record.

Over 291,000 persons attended the 906 conventions held in the city during last year and Columbus was left with $22 million of the delegates' spending money.

There were a number of organizations that met in Columbus during 1966 that did not meet here in 1965.

Among this group were The Shrine Directors, Chemical Engineers, American Legion, AMVETS National Convention, Ladies Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Ohio State Dental Society, National Water Well Convention, Grand Commandry of Knights Templar and the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Columbus is lucky to have a number of organizations that choose the Capital City for their convention site every year.

Next year even promises to be better in the convention department. Many new groups are planning to meet in Columbus for the first time.

In October, several thousand delegates will come to the city for the Evangelical United Brethren Men's National organization's convention.

The Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges will bring about 1000 delegates from all over the nation to the city Nov. 12-15. Novice G. Fawcett, President of Ohio State University, is chairman of the executive committee and past president of the organization.

The spring promises to bring over 2000 teams of women bowlers over a period of 10 weekends as they compete

RC Cola Plant To Open In June

By KEN HAMMOND
Spectator Staff Writer

The new machinery now being moved into the recently completed R. C. Cola bottling plant of Schott Enterprises Inc., signals its upcoming opening.

Located at 950 Stelzer-rd near Port Columbus Airport, the plant is expected to begin operations around June 1, according to Harold Schottenstein, president of Schott Enterprises.

It will employ about 150 people, and will bottle and can some 30,000 containers of soft drinks per day.

These wil linclude: R. C. Cola, Diet Rite Cola, Suncrest Beverages, Cinch, Diet Cinch, Dad's Root Beer, and Hoffman Beverages.

Schottenstein said the plant will contain almost all new equpiment for increased "efficiency and economy." These

These will include: R. C. will be three main bottling other two for bottles.

Construction of the plant started last May, when the city's urban renewal plans required Schott Enterprises present plant at 446 E. Livingston- av, be torn down.

Schottenstein said the move from the old plant to the new one will take place as soon as it is ready for operations. He said the move is not expected to slow down production.

This is the first plant to locate in the new 70-acre A. H. Airport Industrial Park, owned by Harold and Alvin Schottenstein.

Defense Center Upholds Shipment Speed-Up

The Defense Construction Supply Center, in accord with the stepped-up supply effort by the armed forces, sent out its last shipment of the year 1966 on Dec. 7, 35 days ahead of last year's Jan. 12 end-of-the-year shipment.

The record pace set by DCSC indicates the big push the military is giving the supply effort and the extent the local agency is fulfilling its integral part in the effort.

For example, DCSC has been shipping orders to Southeast Asia within 48 hours after order forms are received. These shipments have been tagged "Red Ball" after their counterparts in World War II.

A typical "Red Ball" shipment has been concertina wire, high-carbon steel wire with razor-sharp barbs used to stop or delay enemy advances in Vietnam. Concertina and other types of barbed wire purchases by DCSC amounted to $62 million and were among the ten most active items on the market.

Total purchases among these top ten totaled $200,487,981 during 1966. On the top-ten list were plastic runway sheeting, soil conditioners, fence posts and landing mats in addition to the wire.

Employment also reflected the stepped-up production rate in 1966.

Civilian employment reached 6572 on Nov. 30. This is an increase from 5286 in December of 1965.

Other measures of increased activities are tonnage shipped, tonnage received and procurement items managed.

DCSC procurement contracts reached $697,377,519 in 1966 as compared to $167,014,500 in 1965.

In 1966 the Center shipped 138,429 tons and received 162,703 tons. In 1965, 107,383 tons were shipped and 95,931 tons were received.

DCSC purchased over $5 million worth of local goods in 1966. This is an increase of over $2 million from 1965.

Retail Sales Rise In '66

The rise in retail sales from the beginning of 1965 was not exactly spectacular but by all normal standards, it was a warm and healthy increase.

This rise from five to seven percent made last year a fine one for Columbus merchants according to the Retail Merchants Association.

The same signs point to 1967 as being another good year for the city's businessmen. The consumer today has more money for spending than he has ever had. Employment is at its greatest height while unemployment is at its lowest point in years.

Government spending has helped those segments of our home in volume.
economy that are suffering

An increase in the number of young people who are establishing their own homes will also greatly aid the Columbus economy.

Ohio Bankers Expect Growth And Change

Commercial banking in Ohio can anticipate major changes in three areas according to O. E. Anderson, executive manager of Ohio Bankers Association.

One important area will be in the growth of deposits and in facilities for public service. Resources, predominately deposits of corporations and individuals as well as the state and political subdivisions, will top the $20-billion mark.

Legislation will be the second area in which banking may make some important changes.

The Legislative Service Commission, at the state level, has just completed a six-month study of six major factors in the banking system and will report its findings and recommendations for possible legislative action for the Ohio General Assembly this year.

Another study has been made by the Ohio Bankers Association on Ohio's banking laws and it is expected to propose a completely revised Banking Code.

The third major area will be with the structure of banking dealing mainly with the expansion of branches. At this time, Ohio banks have been limited to the establishment of branches within the county lines in which the home office is located.

It is quite probable that the General Assembly will consider new proposals for expanding branch banking powers. Some could suggest that branching be permitted on a statewide basis.

And, there will be more — many more.

Groups that did not meet here last year such as the Ohio Hospital Association, Ohio Credit Union League, Buckeye Square Dancers, Ohio State Medical Association, Ohio Congress of Parents and Teachers, Ohio Grand Lodge of Masons and the Ohio Tobacco Distributors are just a few of those organizations that will meet here in 1967.

Ruff Company Completes Expansion

Columbus is a proudly growing city and its growth is reflected in many changes which can be seen each day.

One of these is the new facility of the Thomas W. Ruff and Company at 1114 Dublin-rd. In its striving to keep abreast of the city's tremendous growth, progress and change this company has given the greater metropolitan area one of the finest displays of business and contract furniture in the country.

Just completed is 12,000 square feet of additional display, office and warehouse areas.

"Service is the desire and goal of everyone at Thomas Ruff," President Jack Gannon emphasized. "Our new facilities are the beginning of this service."

Then he explained in factual terms how the word "service" is interpreted by this company.

For instance, training at manufacturers' schools in product application is sent for all sales personnel. Interior designers, in addition to making attractive layouts and suggestions, also attend trade shows to keep abreast of new developments in fabric, furnishing and carpeting for wear and durability. These are important elements for fine service by a conscientious company.

There are other important elements of the term "fine service."

With their own warehouse and delivery facilities, all goods are checked at Ruff's for freight damage before delivery to a customer. The large warehouse also permits accumulation storage for customers while awaiting building completion.

Large inventories are maintained by Ruff's for the many rush requirements demanded by today's business.

Their service department installs partitioning and other special custom requirements. They also repair and refinish files, desks, chairs and other items.

Ruff's service — their complete "package" from design to sales to installation to repair—is enhanced by financing or leasing plans that can be tailored to individual requirements. These services are offered to clients furnishing offices, lounges, hotels and motels, dormitories and other users of commercial furnishings.

Industrial Nucleonics Plans Systems Controls

"Controlling raw materials utilization offers America her new competitive edge and presents management with its greatest single economic opportunity.

"To provide industry with the tools and techniques to take full advantage of this great economic opportunity is the dedication of Industrial Nucleonics — for industry's opportunity is also ours."

With this statement of corporate dedication, W. E. Cheape, president of Industrial Nucleonics Corporation, sums up his long-term goals for company growth.

For 16 years, Industrial Nucleonics, manufacturers of AccuRay measurement and control systems, has pioneered electronic control concepts to achieve higher quality products and manufacturing economies in the production of a wide range of materials — plastics, paper, steel, and rubber. Information from sophisticated on-line analytical measurement is not only used for feedback control of the process, but is now made available to management for decisions that can multiply previously secured benefits many times.

In the paper industry, for instance, measurement and control of basis weight with AccuRay systems more than justifies the investment required in terms of increased quality and economic return. Economic return can be trebled, however, by producing adequate software programs — systems and people — permitting management teams to make decisions that optimize the paper manufacturing process.

A parallel corporate activity, providing research and systems to national space and defense programs, resulted in systems to measure cryogenic densities, helicopter formation-keeping, and fuel quantity in space vehicle tanks.

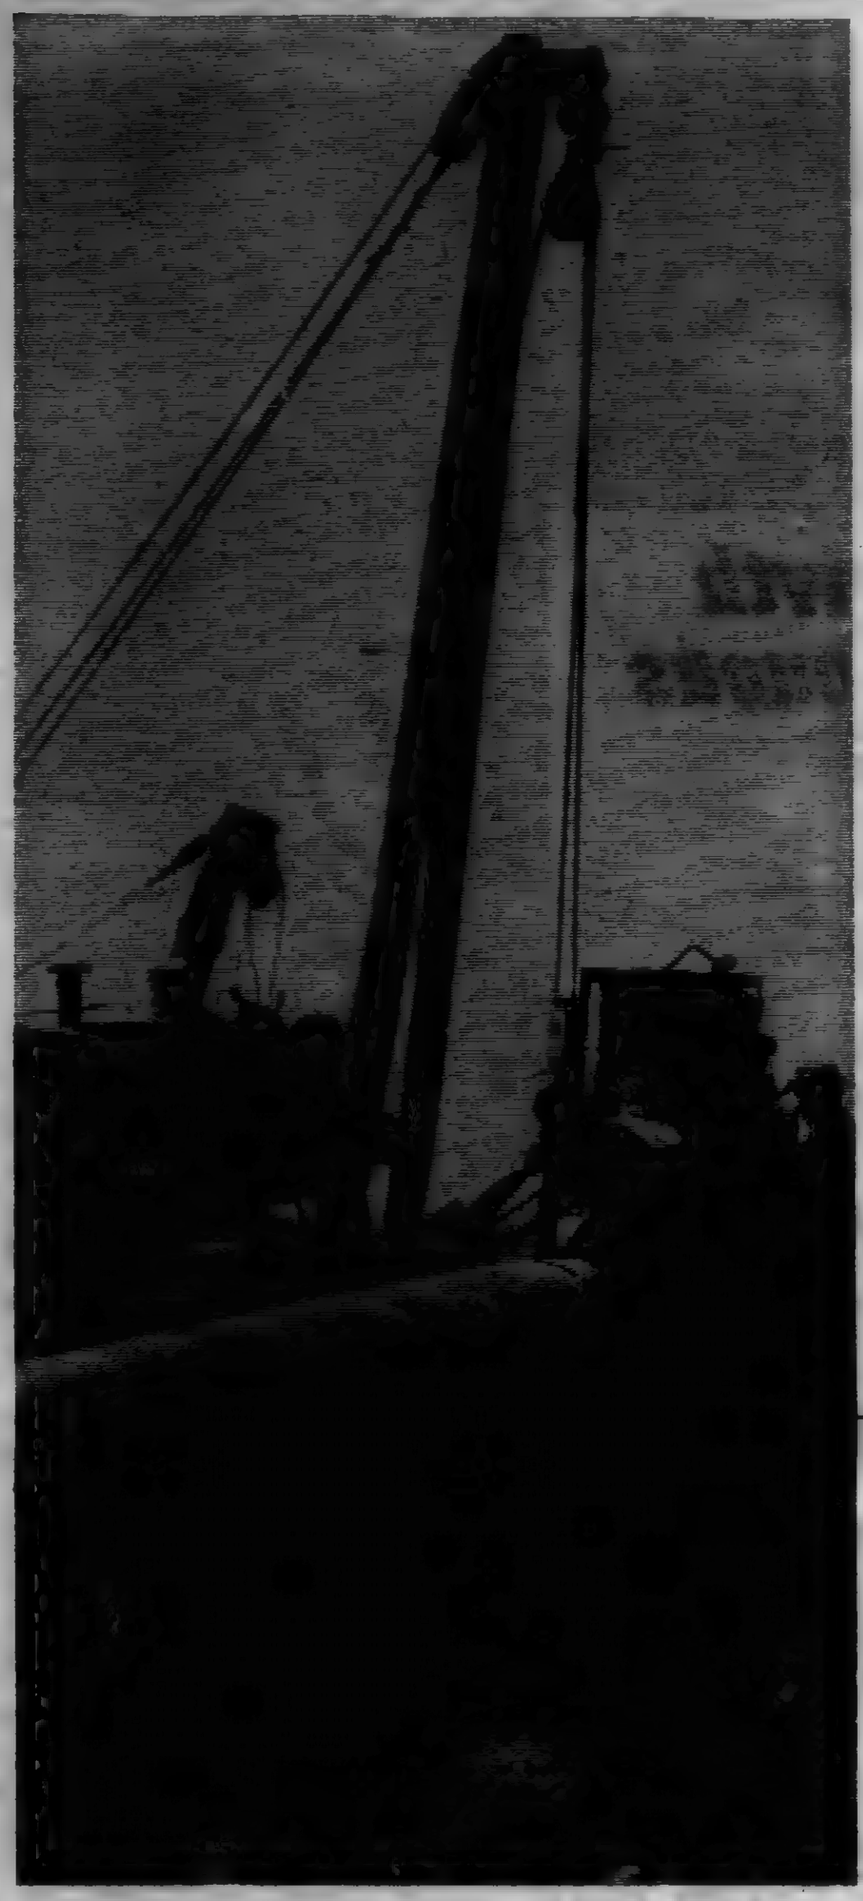
Lockbourne Air Force Base Adds To Columbus Economy

Name a Columbus suburb with a capital value of more than $400 million, a population of 19,000 and a 1966 payroll of more than $34 million.

Whitehall? Bexley? Upper Arlington?



Wrong. Try Lockbourne Air Force Base, which, although not really a suburb, is a major contributor to the economic success of Franklin County and Central Ohio.

The 4,400-acre Air Force Base, located southeast of Columbus, poured an estimated $22 million into the Columbus economy last year, in just services and products purchased by its military residents. In addition, about $4 million of the $8 million spent by the base for materials was spent in Columbus.

Some 6,750 military men and dependents live on the base itself. The rest make their homes in houses and apartments in the Greater Columbus area.

Lockbourne also has its own 100-bed hospital, worth an estimated $5 million, to serve the needs of military personnel and dependents in the area.

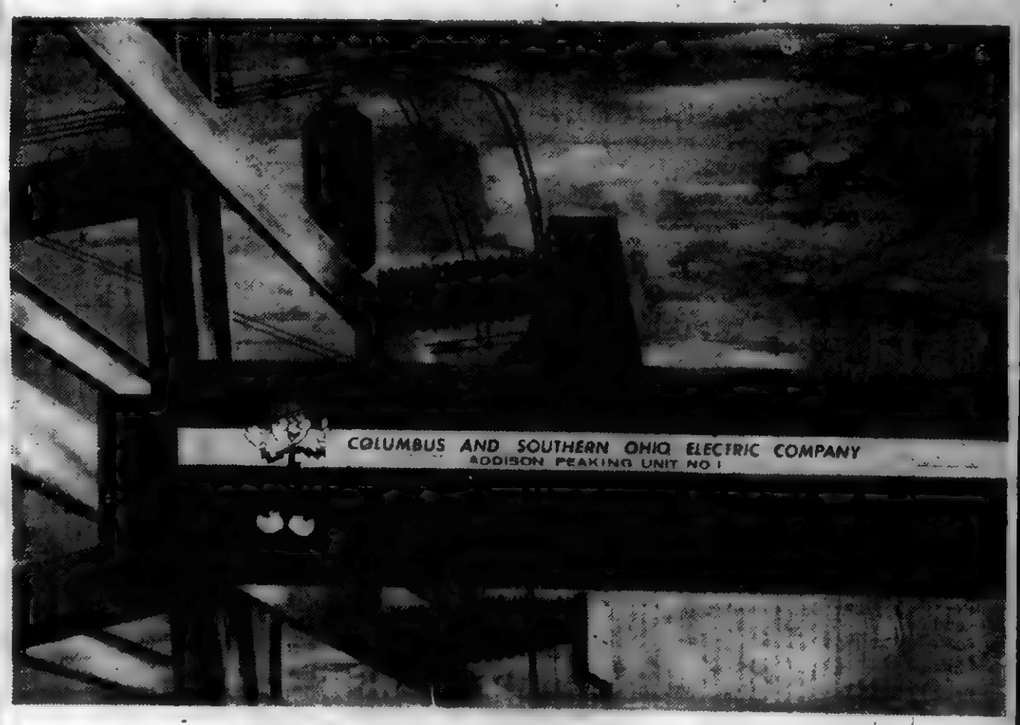
Rapid Area Growth Demands Continuous Future Planning



A noticeable increase in customers served by Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company calls for a 1967 budget totaling $31,927,219. $14 million is carry-over from 1966. This includes both the Columbus District and Southern Area comprising all or parts of 25 counties.

Overall total includes $4 million for a new jet-engine and 2 diesel-powered generating units. All are designed to help meet peak loads.

New substation construction slated for completion in 1967 include Gay Street, Anheuser-Busch, Inc., Groves Road, Green (West of Xenia) and Beatty near the new Beckjord Generating Station at New Richmond.

Operational date is June 1, 1968 for a new 434,000 kilowatt unit also at the Beckjord Station.

The huge James M. Stuart generating station presently under construction between Manchester and Aberdeen, and the Beckjord Station are owned jointly by Columbus and Southern Ohio, Cincinnati Gas and Electric and Dayton Power and Light Company.

'SOMEBODY MUST DO SOMETHING'

Mothers Join In Welfare Fight

SPECTATOR
OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER
Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday, February 1, 1967 274-1155 10 Cents

"Somebody will have to do something today to help us mothers; today, not some time in the future."

The speaker was Mrs. Connie Zeigler, 200 Hinkle-av, the mother of three children receiving Aid to Families of Dependent Children Funds, who is convinced that 73 cents a day is simply not enough to feed and clothe her youngsters.

Mrs. Zeigler, Mrs. Monta Tabor, 2065 Winslow-dr, and Mrs. Barbara Leach, 238 S. Grant-av, three of Columbus' thousands of "welfare mothers," gave up their shield of anonymity to join the United Community Council's full-scale fight to raise payments to Columbus' 6,000 AFDC families.

What does poverty mean to these mothers?

"We live fairly well for three weeks of the month," says Mrs. Tabor, an attractive, red-haired divorced mother of five.

"By the last week of the month, there is no money left," she says. "That happens month after month. We depend on church and charitable groups for clothes. I'd be glad to work to make a better living for my children, but who would look after them and keep them from running the streets and becoming juvenile delinquents? They have a father somewhere, but he gives them nothing."

All the money Mrs. Leach gets goes for rent and food. Her younger children wear hand-me-downs and the older ones get emergency clothing from the Charity Newsies.

"But you can't depend on constant emergency help," she says.

Mrs. Robert Lazarus, 2094 Park Hill-dr, chairman of UCC's Public Welfare Education Committee, claims the Ohio Department of Welfare admits its 73-cent payments are inadequate by setting minimum standards at $1.18 per day per person for food, clothing and school expenses.

But AFDC payments are not made on the basis of minimum standards — at least not yet.

UCC's immediate goal is to raise the daily AFDC payment to $1.18 per person — the Welfare Department's minimum standard.

The public education campaign is just getting off the ground, but endorsements are already being received. Among groups already endorsing the "100 per cent of minimum requirements" theory are the Catholic Men's Luncheon Club, Central Ohio League for Nursing, Goodwill Industries, Florence Crittenton Services, Home of Hope for Alcoholics, West Side and Ohio Avenue Day Care Centers, the YWCA and numerous churches and church groups.

The drive has not been without opposition. Following the announcement of the drive, UCC was contacted by numerous area residents charging that a "substantial number" of AFDC families have additional income resources.

Mrs. Lazarus, however, claimed that of the six sources mentioned, all are so qualified that only a few families can take advantage of them.

"More than 91 per cent of the 36,000 Columbus and Franklin County people receiving public assistance grants are unemployable," she said.

"Fifty-four per cent are children, 15 per cent are single parents who must care for young children, 14 per cent are elderly retired persons and eight per cent are blind and disabled."

And, she indicated, most of the remaining 9 per cent are "unemployable because of low skills and educational backgrounds."

In the meantime, welfare mothers will continue to struggle through on 73 cents per day per child and all the emergency help they can muster.

As they put it:

"We are frozen into the 'poverty groups' and each month we sink further and further into hopelessness and confusion."

EASTERN KIWANIS SPONSORS VISIT

Project Concern Head To Speak

Dr. James W. Turpin, the 39-year-old physician who took his wife, four children and $6,000 and started out on a mission to cure disease in the world's developing area, will be the featured speaker Feb. 8 at an Eastern Kiwanis dinner at the Desert Inn.

Eastern President Ralph Legg indicated that Kiwanis will attempt to make Dr. Turpin's appearance a joint venture with other area service clubs interested in his "Project Concern."

A native of Ashland, Ky., Dr. Turpin gave up a private practice in California in 1961 to found "Project Concern," which now concentrates its activity in Hong Kong and Vietnam.

This will be Dr. Turpin's second visit to Columbus in four months. Last fall, he received a "Chris" award from the Columbus Film Council for his part in the production of the film, "Hong Kong Involved in Mankind."

Project Concern's first venture was establishment of a clinic inside the walled city of Kowloon on Hong Kong, in 1962. The work won for Dr. Turpin a citation from the U. S. Jaycees as one of the 10 outstanding young men of 1962.

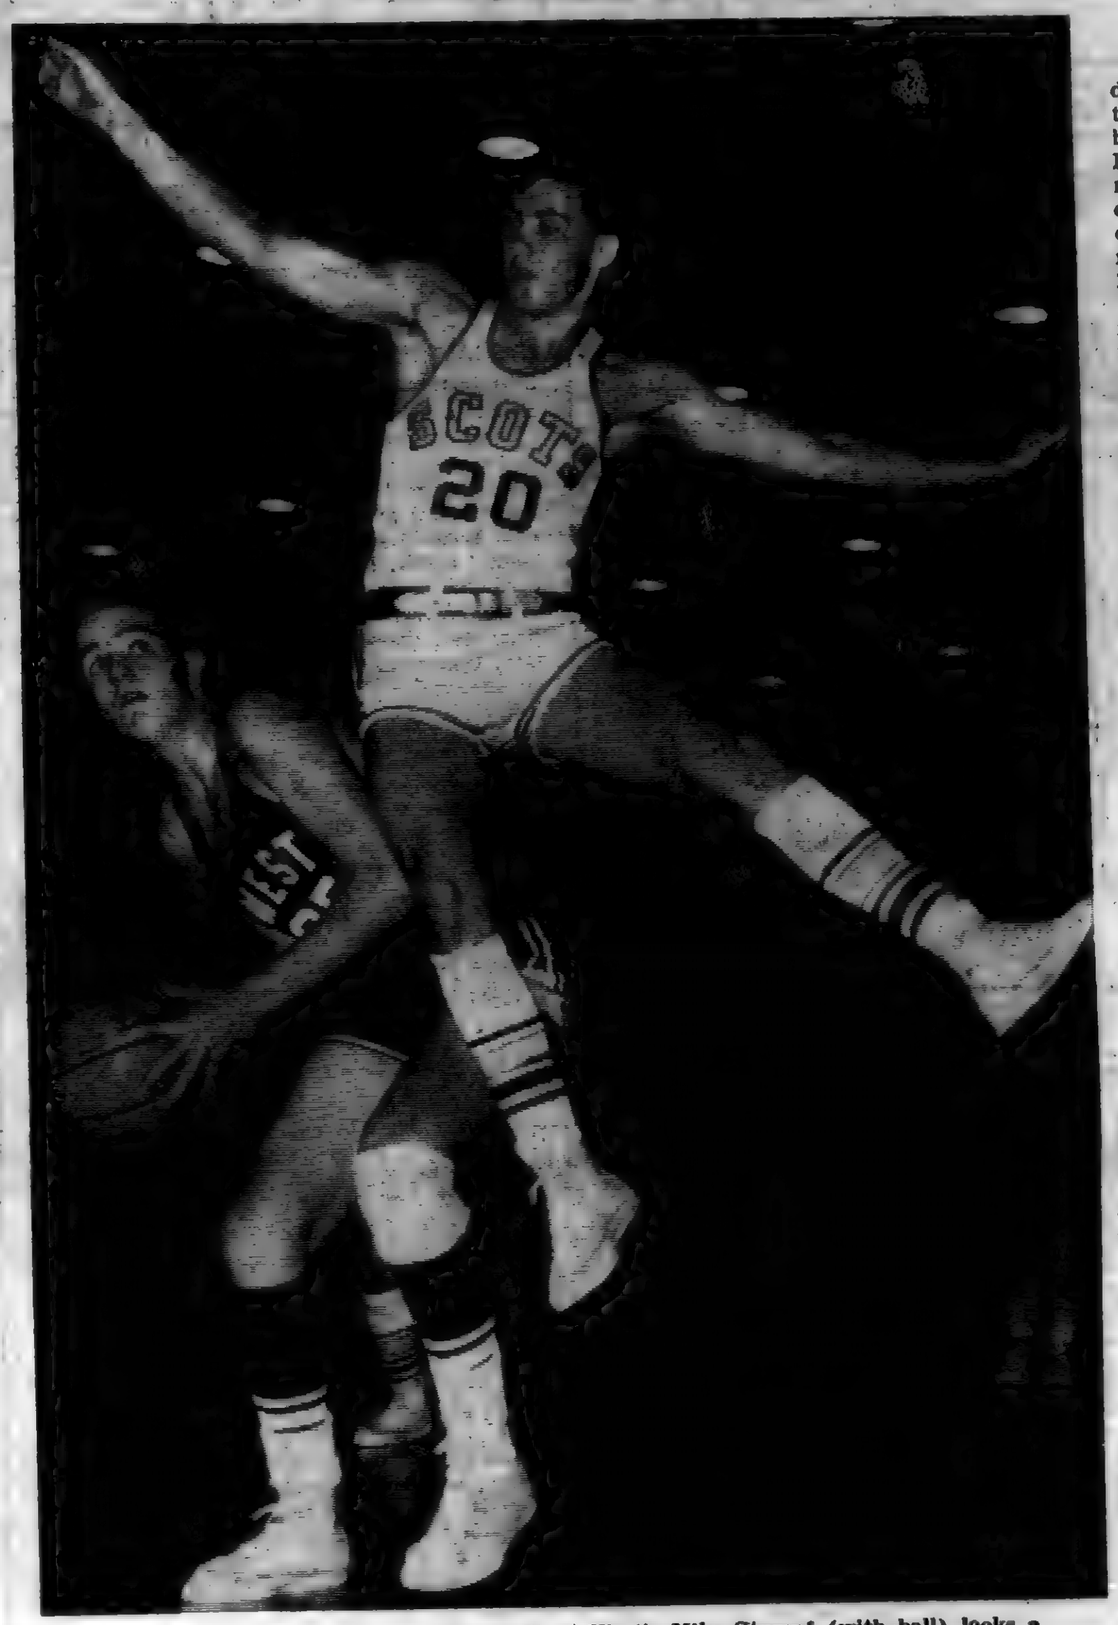
In 1963, the floating clinics "Yauh Oi" and "Ming Ling" were established in the Yammati Typhoon Shelter near Hong Kong, and the following year another clinic was established among the Hong Kong squatters.

Dr. Turpin first took his work to Vietnam in 1964 when he established a hospital at DaMpao, 150 miles northeast of Saigon in the Montagnard tribe country. The same year, the Village Medical Assistance program was started, using young Vietnamese and Montagnards trained in basic medical skills.

Last year, Project Concern founded its fourth clinic in the Hong Kong area, and Dr. Turpin was honored with a Freedom Leadership Medal from the Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge.

To aid in the work of Project Concern, local service clubs are forming a committee in time for Dr. Turpin's appearance.

The committee is headed by Mrs. Charles Brubaker, 2645 Powell-av.



HOUSE CALL — Dr. James Turpin examines a Montagnard tribeswoman as other Montagnard women and children look on at Project Concern's clinic in DaMpao, South Vietnam.

E-M, Linden Vie In City Feature

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Tradition has it that Linden-McKinley isn't supposed to have a rough time winning basketball games in the City League or anywhere for that matter, and in the past seven years the Panthers of Vincent Chickerella haven't had much trouble in compiling a 127-25 overall record.

But Chick's record and nerves might be a little better if East and Eastmoor weren't on his schedule. The Panthers have already played and lost to East (79-75 a few weeks back) and Friday the Warriors come to visit with a team and a record that would cause any coach to worry.

"WE HAVE always played it tough with them the past several years," Warrior coach Red Courtney said after his Eastmoor team shook off a North rally to win 77-67 last Thursday.

The Warriors hosted Linden last season with a 6-6 record against the Panthers impressive 10-2 mark and lost a 74-73 overtime thriller. It was against the Panthers in the Central District final round two years ago that Eastmoor won 73-71 in a triple overtime nail-biter capped by a pair of foul shots by cool Jerry Groves.

SO IF that pattern continues through Friday night when Eastmoor (11-2) travels to Linden (11-2) another story book ending may be in the offing.

Courtney looks for Linden to try their pressuring press that they have used so well in the past.

SAID BILL: "East hurt us with a press in one of the few times that a press has been used against us, so I figure on them pressing the whole way."

Another troublesome problem for Courtney is the stopping of Linden's super shots Jim Cleamons and Ed Young, a couple of capable all-City performers that own more than half of Linden's points thus far this year.

CLEAMONS, a 6-3 senior forward, has scored 223 points in 12 games while Young, a 6-2 dribbling ace, has connected for 242 points in the 13 Linden games.

The schedule maker wasn't considerate to Eastmoor at all this season as three of the Warriors top four loop games have been on the road. "I felt before the season that Marion-Franklin, South, Linden and East would be the toughest," Red said, "of those three are on the road (Linden, East and South)."

A QUICK check of one comparative school namely East's 101-64 destruction of Eastmoor compared with the Tigers' tight 79-75 tussle with Linden would give a considerable edge to the Panthers. But Eastmoor and Linden have never been teams to worry about what happened before, nor for that matter what will happen later.

They will play Friday night and worry about things like statistics, comparative scores and records at another time.

A Bexley win Friday night could have championship written on it. The Lions of Gene Millard currently 3-1 and a co-leader in the Buckeye Athletic Conference meet the co-leader Urbana in Urbana, with the Hillclimber lone loop loss coming at the hands of Bexley, 62-56 earlier in the year.

Gene outlines Urbana as mostly a run and shoot team with good shooters and rebounders. "Dfensively they play a match up zone and we were getting shots off it last time," said Millard.

Leading Urbana troublemaker is John Hartzler, a 24 point per game scorer who Millard feels will have to get some special attention.

In the weekend just past, the Lions won a pair of close ones with the same twist. Both times their opponents . . . Grandview and Whitehall . . . were ahead or tied and stalling when the alert guard play resulted in an interception and lay-up for the Bexley win.

Steve Callif was the hero Saturday in the 60-58 win over Whitehall while Steve Berlin was the star Friday in the 56-55 win over Grandview.

Other weekend games: East (13-0) at South (6-7) where the Bengals of Bob Hart can get at least a piece of the City League Championship, DeSales (9-7) at Hartley (12-3) where the Hawks of Dick Geyer can win CCL title outright, Brookhaven (3-10) at Walnut Ridge (1-13), Hilliard (4-10) at Gahanna (11-4), Academy (4-9) at West Jefferson (9-4), Hartley (12-3) at Hillsboro, Marysville at Gahanna (11-4), Teays Valley (9-4) at Whitehall (7-9), and Circleville at Bexley (7-7).

CAGE NOTES: Hartley rallied behind some nifty foul shooting of Tom Brewer and remarkable Parkers to turn off an Eagle uprising and capture a third straight Central Catholic League crown 55-52 on the Hawks' court Friday night.

Pat Mannion's Eagles marched back from a 39-31 deficit mostly on the derringdo of guard Rocky Amicon to take the lead 43-41 with a little under five minutes left.

THE HAWKS, then came on like spirited gangbusters to regain the upper hand that they held the whole evening with Denny Parker and Tom Brewer putting together a 12-2 run in the next three minutes. Denny Parker had two goals with Brewer getting a keyhole jumper plus four-for-four from the foul line to put Hartley in charge 53-45.

Steady Mike Irwin dropped a pair of free throws following another Watterson attack that brought the score within three 53-50 with 1:10 remaining. Amicon led the frantic fourth period with eight points. Phil Knall bucketed a short jumper with 41 seconds left canceling Irwin's foul shots, making it 55-52.

AMICON PACED the Eagles with 18 points, hitting seven of 13 from the field and four

Fearless Predictions

The "Fearless One" came up with another fairly successful week, picking 27 right and eight wrong to give him an over-all 228-55 record for 80 per cent.

The cage season is getting down the stretch, before tourney dueling going into week 11.

Who Are The Chiselers?

In the minds of too many upright, hard-working tax-paying citizens there lingers the suspicion that most of those on welfare rolls are chiselers who lie around all day drinking beer and watching television.

The truth of the matter is that best efforts to undercover relief fraud can turn up only about two percent.

On the other hand:

—Internal revenue studies show that five percent of wages and salaries in the United States goes unreported.

—13 percent of individual income goes unreported.

—30 percent of self-employed income goes unreported.

—And 61 percent of interest on savings is not reported.

Just who are these people who must live on the degrading and pitifully low public handout?

—54 percent are children under working age.

—14 percent are retired elderly persons.

—8 percent are blind, disabled or mental incompetent.

—9 percent are employable men with low skills and education.

—15 percent are single parents who must care for children and many of whom would work if child care were available.

No one wants to be poor. Maybe that's why so many of us cheat on our income taxes?

What's The Hurry?

The Rhodes administration and the Republican-dominated legislature, it seems to us, are in an awfully big hurry to get their pet legislative reapportionment amendment on the ballot by the May primary.

It appears likely that the plan approved will be the one now in effect—devised by the GOP-controlled Apportionment Board late in 1965.

That plan is currently being challenged in court, and it makes little sense to call for a statewide referendum on a plan that could well be ruled unconstitutional.

The legislature will certainly be in session well past the May primary. The Spectator feels a little patience would be in order. If the current plan is upheld, there's still plenty of time to get the amendment on the November ballot.

Enough, Already

Governor Rhodes went to New Orleans last week, met with Republican big-wigs and again gave his friends in the newspaper business a chance to speculate on his future.

Rhodes has said time and again he won't seek national office in 1968 and "God willing, I will serve out my term."

Yet every time he says it, most of Ohio's press adds a sentence. "Despite the governor's denials, however, political experts believe . . . "

How about us believing the governor until he tells us different. Those "political experts" are only quoting themselves.

Register, Please

Nearly 73,000 Franklin County voters haven't gone to the polls in the last two years and thus must re-register to be eligible to vote in the May primary.

Those figures speak for themselves. It's bad enough that that many voters haven't bothered to vote in the past two years.

It would be worse if they don't make themselves eligible to vote immediately.

One-Hand War

This war is being fought with one hand tied behind our back. The enemy is being given a sanctuary and enough political advantage to make it worth his while to keep the fighting going, perhaps indefinitely.

We have the means and the men to win a convincing military victory here if — and this is one of history's big "ifs"—we have the will to win it.

Those are some of the strongest impressions that a visit here reinforces. In the week ahead, after my return to the United States, I intend to do my best to bring these matters to the attention of all who will listen, particularly, to all who can do something to speed us to the victory which would end this cruel and wasteful war.

Our pilots are still being subjected to the closest possible political control from Washington rather than being permitted to exploit tactical targets of opportunity which, in a war one intends to win, should be open to their attack when they become apparent — not after first checking from Washington, which usually means a refusal or that it is too late even if approval is given.

The enemy exploits this weakness for all it is worth. Knowing, for instance, that Washington has become hypersensitive to civilian casualties, the enemy now couples military and civilian emplacements wherever possible.

But they keep up their assaults against South Vietnamese and American civilians, sheltered by the fact that no matter how many civilians they kill there will not be the reaction in such influential papers as the New York Times as there is to any civilian loss in an American air raid.

The tactical targeting of our air operations should be freed from the red tape which now restricts it. This would not be escalation but an act of good practical sense. It would, not take strategic control away from the proper civilian authority.

The political control of our tactical air strikes is just one example of sanctuary we are giving the enemy. Sparing his major supply routes, such as the port of Haiphong, creates another.

The military effort we have mounted here is not only one of the most technically and physically superb in history, but one of the most wisely commanded. It can be trusted to wage and win the war in the shortest possible time at the least possible cost and to the best permanent end.

And it should be trusted to do exactly that.

Dislikes Javits

To The Editor:

William S. White on Sen. Javits (R., N.Y.) Jan. 11: It would require extra sensory perception to read conservative leanings in a politician who has consistently championed massive mob intimidation, wholesale civil disobedience and racial anarchy throughout the United States.

Mr. Javits recently reversed himself from active opposition toward the admittance of Red China in the faking, parasitical, spy ridden U.N. In addition he was roundly repudiated by the New York City electorate in the "civilian review board" affair. His voting record is scarcely indistinguishable from that of Bobby Kennedy's.

However, in the same issue Mr. Burdock of your staff penned a very accurate summary of Gov. Rhodes' ability in relation to national office. He only omitted the potent influence of the international money lenders in Mr. Rhodes' behalf.

Says Thanks

To The Editor:

As the public relations director for the League of Women Voters of Metropolitan Columbus, I would like to express my appreciation for the cooperation and help you have given the League in the past few months.

We have been able to promote our voter registration and "get out the vote" drives.

I hope that the enlarged voter registration this year may have resulted from our joint efforts in encouraging the public to assume responsibility for good government.

I look forward to working with you in the coming months previous to the May primary. Thank you again.

Add another voice to the chorus bemoaning the demise of The Commentator.

With The Commentator gone, it seems The Spectator is the only voice of dissent left in this city.

Consider this a plea to pick up the torch left by The Commentator and use it to illuminate Columbus. It needs it.

robert burdock ★ Do-It-Yourself Debt ★

During the last four years the administration of Governor Rhodes has, with the consent of the voters, put the state into one billion dollars of bonded debt.

Now Rhodes has come up with a "do-it-yourself" bond program designed to spend unstated millions for dozens of unnamed projects through a proposed Ohio Building Authority (OBA).

To accomplish his latest scheme, Rhodes proposes to strip from the Ohio constitution the provision that the state can't go beyond a stated debt limit without the express vote of the people.

Rhodes feels this authority to issue bonds, instead of resting with the people, should be conferred upon a three member board which he would name for unprecedented 20 year terms.

First, Rhodes has to twist the arms of three-fifths of the members of both houses of the legislature until they approve his scheme. He wants it rushed through the legislature so it can get on the May primary ballot when only the party faithful will turn out to approve it.

Rhodes won't have too much trouble with the legislature. He has vowed to "roll over" anyone who opposes him. Even his own party leaders in both houses express doubts about the proposal.

The legislature is expected to Lux out some of the more onerous sections of Rhodes' proposal, but it will still be the same dirty pair of skivvies.

The concentration of so much power in a three-member board is dangerous.

Even if Rhodes has three saints in mind to name to the board it is doubtful they could remain saints for long. They would, in effect, be Potentates of the Pork Barrel, dispensing state financed structures including "stadiums" to whichever portion of the state exerted the most pressure or to whichever city it was politically expedient.

If Rhodes' original, poorly conceived plan has any merit at all the legislature should at least be given proper time to study it and realistically amend it.

And such an important constitutional amendment should not be placed on the primary ballot when only a small portion of a poorly informed electorate will pass on it.

It's common knowledge throughout the state the things Rhodes promised to build if he were re-elected. Now he's asking for a blank check and a hand-picked board to carry out his promises.

The legislature will not only be abdicating its own building authority but its responsibility to the people as well if it accepts the main thesis of Rhodes' proposal.

There's an old saw in capitol circles to the effect that the people might be better protected if the cannons on the statehouse lawn were turned around in the opposite direction.

Rhodes' OBA scheme ought to be enough to turn them.

william s. white ★ Wheels Turning ★

WHITE

The great game of Presidential politics against the oncoming 1968 election showdown engages, enmares and enraptures the Republican party in Congress to a degree not seen in many a decade. There are more wheels within wheels than within memory spinning madly 18 months ahead of the Republican National Convention in the hot, climactic summer of 1968.

Any man entering the thicket from the outside and seeking to emerge confidently announcing just where every faction stands and will later stand should have his head examined. Fluid, indeed, is the word here.

Still, careful inquiry makes possible some estimates of the several present positions of an extraordinarily large field of GOP Presidential possibilities.

Among an effective majority of Republicans in both houses, the front-runner today is beyond little doubt Gov. Romney of Michigan.

Within an equally effective majority again in both houses, the favorite in sentiment and fellow-feeling is Richard Nixon.

Newly-elected Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, while not yet heavily backed, is gaining in favor. He is now not so much an absolutely outside possibility as a possibility moving from the near edge of outside to the far edge of inside.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, who only months ago was thought to be finished as a Presidential available, is an increasingly lightish dark horse and can no longer be considered as in any sense out of it.

From the Republicans of Congress, if they considered only their own wishes, convention support for Nixon would surely be massive. This is not solely because Nixon made by far the most important campaign contribution to the party generally last November, but also because he is both a former Congressman and a former Senator, and has, therefore, a great deal of inherent credit with the Congressional club.

But because the Republicans generally believe their party has in 1968 the best opportunity to regain the Presidency since Dwight D. Eisenhower laid it down in 1960, the disposition is to consider not merely who would be an able President but also who would be most likely to win.

This consideration had made Romney the front-runner thus far, but it is also a consideration that is tending to promote both Percy and Rockefeller. For Romney's lack of experience in national affairs, and notably in foreign policy, is unquestionably eroding some of his strength in Congress. Rockefeller, mainly because of a long and useful preoccupation with international affairs, is not similarly inhibited. Percy has at the moment Romney's disability, but as a Senator in a national forum he has greater opportunity to remedy this defect.

But down beneath it all is Rockefeller, who is traveling upward fastest. His foreign policy views, and notably on Vietnam, have long been within the mainstream of Republicanism, and this cannot be said of either Percy or Romney.

In a word, the Republican National Convention of 1968 simply could not nominate Romney or Percy on their present positions on Vietnam without repudiating a host of powerful Republicans, beginning with Eisenhower and going down through all the roster of every Republican leader in Congress.

marquis childs ★ Fulbright Backing Treaty ★

CHILDS

As chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee Sen. J. William Fulbright is showing that he is a good soldier. He is cooperating with the Johnson Administration in helping to put through a proposal on which the whole future of America's policy turns.

That is the consular treaty with the Soviet Union. If it fails of approval the determined effort of the President to build a bridge to the East and prevent another and perhaps catastrophic spiral in the nuclear arms race goes down with it. Giving the treaty first priority, Fulbright has put aside his planned hearings into the uses and abuses of American power and the deeper and deeper involvement in Vietnam.

Fulbright has done this despite attacks on him that have at times sounded as shrill as the diatribes put up by the Red Guards on the wall posters in Peking. And these attacks have come occasionally from sources seeming to be an echo of the White House.

Fulbright's own role as the chief critic of Vietnam policy says a great deal about the difficult problem the Administration faces in the bridge-building goal. He has championed the right of dissent and in his new book, "The Arrogance of Power," he opens up new avenues of criticism that can properly be called constructive in that they suggest possible ways out of Vietnam.

But he is undeniably a rallying point for a large segment of opinion that increasingly, as escalation continues, has become inflamed not only against the war but against the Administration and all its works. It is from this segment that support might have come for the series of proposals to ease tensions with the Soviet Union. Whether it will develop in a sufficient and positive form is doubtful, since in every aspect of policy and indeed in the life of the nation the undeclared war is the obstacle.

The treaty, proposing to open one and perhaps two consulates in each country, is of itself of no real importance. The same step could be taken by executive action. But the White House has chosen with Fulbright's full cooperation, to make the treaty. Secretary of State Dean Rusk testified it would mean the addition of, at most, 15 Soviet consular employes in this country and a similar number of Americans at a consulate in Leningrad. This is surely, as Rusk said, a number controllable by the FBI against the threat of espionage. And in the Soviet Union a consulate or consulates could mean added protection for the 18,000 Americans who go there annually.

Moscow puts the nuclear treaty at the top of the list. If a draft can be agreed to, then the following and far more vital step is at least possible. That is for both sides to cease and desist in installing nuclear anti-ballistic missile (ABM) defensive systems.

How tough this will be is indicated by a report out of Moscow of growing resistance of Soviet commanders to any de-escalation of the weapons race. The United States has a three or four to one superiority in offensive missiles. It takes no imagination to appreciate the howls that would go up if the reverse were true. Traditionally, Russia has been defense-minded.

The opening for demagoguery on this question is boundless—why those Godless Marxists who have no regard for human life are preparing to defend their people and we're not? The fact that there is no real protection will not deter the demagogues.

In this perilous moment, when so much turns on decisions in the Senate, Fulbright can perform a service of inestimable value. He can help to lead the way out of the trap of the arms race.

RADIO and TV NOTES

Friday brought the passing of an era for WLW Radio and Television. Ruth Lyons announced her retirement.

The audience at the "50-50 Club" sat in hushed silence as Bob Braun read a message from Miss Lyons which said that because of her personal health she could no longer continue her program.

With this announcement, a career which started in 1929 came to an end. Long will her memory and her Christmas Fund be a legend in the annals of broadcasting.

Ruth was born and raised in Cincinnati. Her real name, Ruth Evelyn Reeves, was changed to Ruth Lyons in 1929.

In 1949 Ruth was an instant hit on TV and in the ensuing years her fantastic apeal led to the "50-50 Club" being expanded to 90 minutes.

Only this past October did Ruth return to her program after the death of her daughter, Candy, and a light stroke.

At that time she was unsure how long she would be able to continue. he said she would have to take the program one day at a time.

RUTH LYONS

There will be no more "one day at a time" as of last Friday.

Bob Braun, Miss Lyons' right arm for many years, has her blessings as she said, "I know you will give Bobby the same kind of reception you have given me."

AVCO Broadcasting has set aside Oct. 4, Miss Lyons' birthday, as "Ruth Lyons Day" on WLW radio and television.

Kallman Bright, Charming In Hartman's 'Half A Sixpence'

Now playing the Hartman Theatre is the hit musical "Half A Sixpence." Pleasingly delightful, this musical is heartwarming and keeps the heart thumping with enjoyment.

The star, Dick Kallman is without a doubt an audience charmer. He is not only young and good looking, but so full of show business it is sheer joy to watch him perform.

Kallman portrays an English commoner, shyly in love with his childhood playmate. He asks her to share a token, which is "Half A Sixpence." Marriage seems to be on the way when he receives 12,000 pounds of money to be given him yearly.

Needless to say, he becomes wrapped up in society and a society family which includes an elegant society girl. He succeeds in becoming engaged to her and in accomplishing the finer qualities of high society only to find that this is not happiness.

Ann Pornick, the childhood sweetheart, as portrayed by Anne Wakefield, is appealingly fresh with talent aplenty. The society girl, portrayed by Barbette Tweed, is in character, but her singing voice is weak leaving the audience wondering what is going on.

As usual of musicals, this one is elaborate in set design and costumes. Also true would be large casts. So, too numerous to mention, many names go unwritten—yet to those in the audience the names will long be written in the file of excellent performances.

There are no real scene changes as a "skirn" and revolving stage are used. This is quite an undertaking, but is done as well as the acting, singing and dancing . . . super'b.

Due to these unusual scene changes, the star, Dick Kallman, is really never off the stage. As for the few fleeting seconds he is you will find yourself anticipating his return.

This should be a sellout by Friday and Saturday so phone reservations in at the Hartman.

Entertainment Notes

Benny Klein's is one of Columbus' most talked about "in" places on the entertainment circuit.

Curiosity is the main factor as many area residents have never made the trip to this well-known night spot.

The trip is as worthy as the entertainment, decor and food is of first-rate quality.

Belly-dancing is the featured entertainment. As for the performance it is not shocking—it's something like a hula dancer, only it isn't. The dance routine is of fast tempo and quite enjoyable. It would have to be seen to be understood. Benny Klein's' policy is to change dancers every two or three weeks.

This policy is certainly not used when it comes to the musicians. Joe Dunlap, leader of the combo, has been at Benny's for seven years. Joe is the pianist, Red Stamet on trumpet has chalked up four years while Dave Butler, bass player, has one and one-half years credit. Charlie Brown on drums has one year of loyalty.

Decor at Benny Klein's includes stairways that lead to a balcony for dining, a cocktail lounge and dining area on the first floor with a kitchen in full-view. Clever arrangement.

Now that my curiosity trip is over, I hope to return soon to really enjoy the "knights of music."

A note for those who meet Benny Klein, beware the handshake. Not only do you know you've shook hands, you also know it better not happen again.

Theater Notes

By CLAUDIA ELKINS

The science-fiction drama "Fahrenheit 451" is now being featured at University City Cinema.

This movie concerns the destruction of books—all forms. Why? In this ultra-modern society, books and intellects are banned because they are poison to the mind.

This theme is never forgotten as the story unfolds through the eyes of the camera which focuses on fires set by the fire department.

Thusly, the fireman is not as we know him, but just the opposite. His job is to set fire, not fight fire.

Male lead, Oskar Werner, as a fireman becomes caught in the web of literature and tries to fight this ultra-modern society he is existing in but finally runs away to the "book country."

"Book Country is the surrounding countryside where other book enthusiasts have fled to memorize a book—each being is a book.

Believeability, needed for science-fiction, is created by good acting, superb direction and excellent photography. Oskar Werner's performance is the key to understanding the movie as he is natural and in character.

The portrayal of the wife is weak and unpolished as Julie Christie portrays her. Yet, Miss Christie portrays a teacher, dual role, with depth and again believability.

The opening scene of TV antennae is a bit much as the camera shots are too rapid with little recognition of the story being represented.

For those seeking entertainment with intellect involved, the University City Cinema has it.

"The Blue Max" is a stirring drama of a German fighter pilot portrayed by George Peppard.

Relentlessly seeking the coveted Blue Max medal, Peppard goes to great lengths to capture the honor that means more than life itself.

To be awarded the Blue Max, 20 airplanes must be shot down, destroyed and confirmed. This last word, confirmed, presents an excellent opportunity for Peppard to establish his acting ability early in the film as his confirmation for plane number one cannot be established.

Early in the film, Ursula Andress appears as the wife of a German General, James Mason.

Through a nightly trip she accidentally opens the wrong door. Whom should be there but our hero, George Peppard.

Apology accepted, she continues her nightly trip to the right room where her nephew-by-marriage awaits.

Thus another challenge for the striving pilot who only exists to challenge, then conquer.

This nephew-by-marriage is the human barrier to success for Peppard. He is not only an excellent lover, but has the Blue Max and is highly regarded by his fellow pilots. This role is excellent as portrayed by Jeremy Kemp for one is never sure whether to like him or dislike him.

James Mason's portrayal of the broad-minded husband and the militant general is as usual, effective.

A reminder for parents — although this is a classic war story there are two scenes which are for adults only. "The Blue Max" is now showing at Town and Country Cinema, Great Western Cinema and Morse Road Cinema.

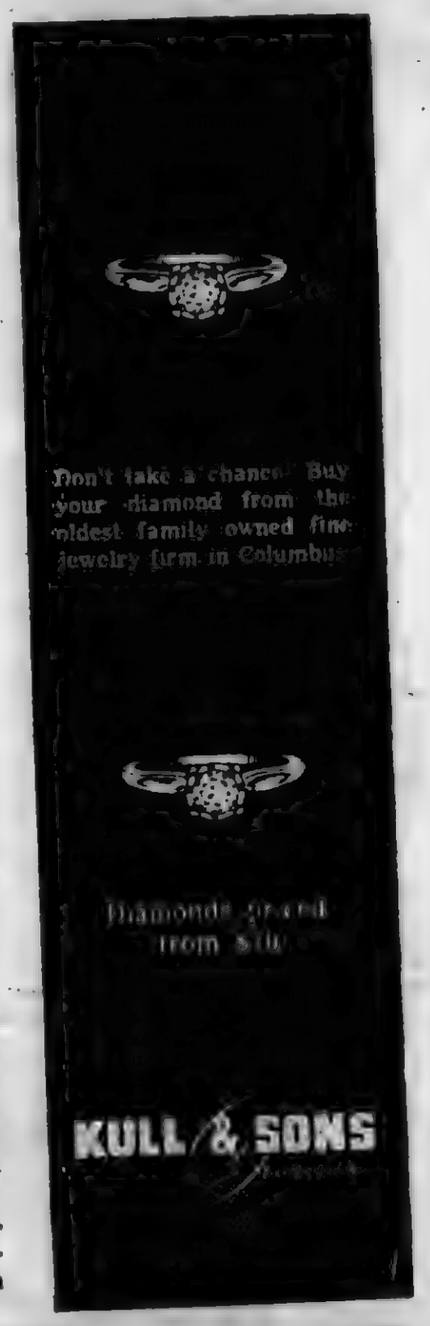
166th Fighter Squadron Will Hold 20th Reunion

The 121st Tactical Fighter Group of the Air National Guard is engaged in trying to locate former members of the 121st and of the 166th Tactical Fighter Squadron in time for the celebration of the 166th's 20th anniversary. An open house for former members of the two organizations will be held Feb. 18 to mark the passing of their 20th year.



Lt. Col. David Q. Griffith, commander of the 121st TFG, announced today that more than 950 members of the 166th and its support elements will be contacted by mail this week to invite them to attend the ceremonies. Efforts to locate other former members will continue throughout the first two weeks of February.

The 166th and its supportive elements have been based in Columbus during their entire history, except for tours of active duty in Korea and, during the Berlin Crisis, in France. Most of its members and former members live in central Ohio.

Former members are asked to contact the 20th-Year Reunion Committee, 166th Tactical Fighter Squadron, Ohio Air National Guard, Lockbourne.

YOUR WEEKLY KNIT CLINIC

Dear Miss duBois: I knitted buttonholes into my garment, but no matter how I try, I am unable to give the buttonholes a nice finished look. What can I do about this? I do not like to have grosgrain showing on the left side. Please help.

Dear Knitter: Weave your buttonholes back together again, using the same yarn as your garment. Then baste to the left side of the garment, where your buttons are to be placed, strips of grosgrain. Have your buttonholes made by machine. Then trim all excess grosgrain away. In this way the grosgrain only reinforces the buttonholes.

Many of my knitting friends are still a bit confused as to what a gauge is. Maybe the following will help them:

We all know that an inch is a measure of a certain width which measures length or width. A gauge is also of a certain length or width. When we talk of a gauge in knitting, we mean the number of stitches required to cover a given number of inches. Preceding your knitting instructions is a gauge given; let us assume "three stitches per one inch." This means that for every one inch you must have three stitches. This is extremely important and a fact that I cannot stress often enough. You must get the exact gauge given in your instructions regardless of the size needles you need to use in order to obtain given gauge. Only then will you get a garment that will fit your specified size. If this important issue is ignored the finished garment may look lovely on your best girlfriend — but looks rather sad when you are "showing it off."

Miss duBois welcomes mail from readers but cannot give a personal answer. She will discuss and pass on the most interesting questions and hints.

An asset to any woman's wardrobe is this easy to fashion pullover modeled by Carol Merrill, television actress. This garment may be worn with equal success for daytime or evening wear, with carpris or a skirt. Knit it in a simple stockinette stitch which is knit one row, purl one row — or try your hand at knitting the decorative popcorn stitch to bottom, cuffs, and V-neck as given in the pattern. Step by step instructions are so simple that any beginning knitter can follow them. Cost of this sweater is extremely low. Illustrated instructions are written for size 8 through 18. All sizes are included on one pattern. If you wish to make a complete outfit, we have skirt pattern 90 available. Instructions come in sizes 10 through 22, all on one pattern. Also available are pants pattern 135. Instructions include hand knitting as well as machine knitting. Sizes are from eight through 18, all on one pattern. To obtain pattern 51, 90 or 135, send 75 cents for each pattern in coin, check or money order to: Ursula duBois, Spectator Newspapers, Box 3307, Van Nuys, Calif. 91407.

And So It Grows

Whether it's a window shelf, weather vane, onion sack, hopper feeder, or a suet cage . . . ,birds don't care what kind of feeder you provide. They just care about the bacon fat, peanut butter, suet, cracked corn, sunflower seeds, or bread and cracker crumbs you leave for them.

If you'd like a built-in feeder, plant a flowering dogwood. The scarlet berries produced by these plants attract more than 100 different kinds of birds. Other berry producing shrubs will attract birds, too. Mocking birds are a bit choosy forthe firethorn. And the hawthorn is a favorite of grosbeaks, thrashers and grouse.

According to Ohio State University Extension floriculturists, proper watering is one of the most troublesome parts of taking care of foliage plants. Remember this: Water the soil when it becomes dry to the touch, and when it's time to water — water well. But never let the plants stand in water.

If you have a planter without drainage holes, you can put coarse gravel in the bottom of the pot. Then when you water the soil, let the water soak in for a few minutes and then lay the container on its side and let the excess moisture run off.

Large containers dry out more slowly because of the greater volume of soil. Some of these only need watering once every two or three weeks.

A planter, room-divider size or larger, should be placed where the temperature is about 75 degrees during the day and 65 degrees at night. Avoid locations near heating ducts, exhaust fans or doorways to the outside. Hot air from heating ducts heats and dries the plants. Cold air and drafts from exhaust fans and outside doors may chill the plants.

Also avoid areas of heavy traffic in the home. Not only is the planter often in the way where traffic is heavy, but plants in the garden are likely to be damaged by passing traffic.

Seed catalogs and special bargain offers for the home gardener have already begun their annual stream. Probably the idea that "you get what you pay for" follows through, say horticulturists at Ohio State. Simply beware of the spectacular offers. Possibly you'll be sacrificing quality for price. Your best bet is to buy locally-grown stock. This way you can see what you're getting before you put the money down.

Most foliage plants grow better in rooms where the relative humidity is comparatively high. That includes putting these plants in the kitchen where cooking foods add moisture to the air.

You can easily dust foliage plants by moistening a soft cloth with water and gently wiping the foliage. If some stubborn spots remain, add a little soap to the water.

January Sale Is Extended At Carlile's

Carlile's at 445 N. High-st, has extended its January sale into February to accommodate the customers inconvenienced when the store was closed for several days.

Although the loss caused by a fire entirely contained in a basement shipping room last Monday, was minimal, the damage to wiring resulting in power failure made "business as usual" impossible last week.

Rosemary Adams, a Carlile spokesman, expressed regrets to the customers inconvenienced during this period and gave her assurance that the substantial savings of the semi-annual sale are still available.

A STRONG CASE was made for the Neighborhood Youth Corps when Elbert Mills, South High junior, spoke at the Save CAP program at the Shiloh Baptist Church Sunday. Elbert, 312 Columbus-st, told of his being able to continue high school in spite of serious financial difficulties after being placed in the photo lab of the City Police Department and of his subsequent decision to make photography his life work.

Poor Give Convincing Reports At Save CAP

Approximately 350 persons gathered at the Shiloh Baptist Church Sunday afternoon to hear officials discuss what Community Action Programs mean to the community and those being assisted by them.

What was more convincing than the official remarks were those of the persons, themselves in poverty, as they described the benefits they have received as the war on poverty is waged.

MODERATED by the Rev. N. H. Vanderwerf, executive director of the Inter Church Board for Metropolitan Affairs and Columbus Area Council of Churches, the meeting was called an open plea to Washington to forego any cutbacks in the local program which is considered one of the more successful in the nation.

In different phrases speakers such as Mayor Sensenbrenner, L. B. Lacour, president of the Columbus Urban League and Will Hellerman, president of the Columbus Metropolitan Board of Trustees, emphasized that poverty is a luxury Franklin County cannot afford, and that the efforts to save Community Action is also a move to save the neighborhoods, the city, the nation and ourselves.

Dr. Donald Beatty, deputy director of the office of Economic Opportunity for the State of Ohio, stated that he was bothered by the inferences that taxes could be materially reduced if the anti-poverty program were to be abolished or cut-back.

He refuted this argument with the remark that while $58 billion is requested for the Vietnam conflict, Congress is being asked for less than $2 billion for the entire poverty war.

Persons attending were urged to write their elected officials in Washington in support of the federally supported programs. The staffs of the various settlement houses through the city are prepared to give anyone assistance in this task.

John McDonald Nominated For Teen Council Chairman

There was wheeling and dealing last week when teenagers from Barack, Kent, Schiller, Barnett and Watkins Recreation Centers met at Barack to nominate candidates to represent them on the Inter-Center Teen Council for which elections will be held tomorrow.

When the smoke cleared, John McDonald representing Barack had won the nomination for chairman over Joe Hand from Schiller and Larry Chatman of Watkins.

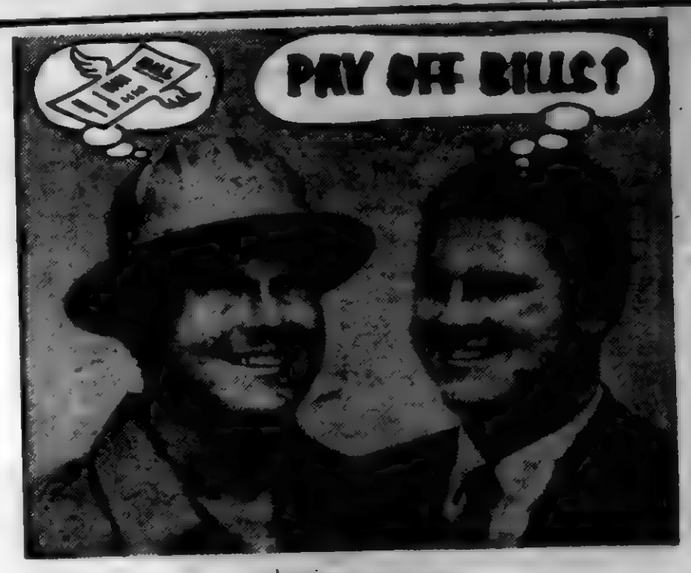
JOHN, WHO is a varsity track star at South, member of the Varsity S Club and a junior assistant Scoutmaster, stated that, if elected, "my heart will be in my job."

He feels it particularly important that teenagers be allowed to make decisions for themselves without excess adult guidance. John believes such freedom is necessary to best prepare themselves for the citizenship roles they must eventually assume.

Others from the South Section who will be competing with teenagers from 20 other recreation centers in the city include Jo Traphagan, Johnson Park Junior High student representing Barnett Recreation Center who is running for vice-chairman, and two juniors from Marion-Franklin High School representing Watkins Center, Sharon Mahlungulu, candidate for recording secretary, and Betty Harris, candidate for corresponding secretary. Bruno Sestito of Simpson Drive from Walnut Ridge will represent Barnett in the race for sergeant-at-arms. (He was unopposed in the primary).

Before campaign speeches and caucusing began, a "real live" politican, Robert Foreman, an attorney, who is a candidate for city council spoke on the importance of "politicking."

He stated that seeing that right triumphs over wrong is a vital political function, and the job of the concerned politician is to fight injustice with justice.



Conceding that difference of opinion as to what is right and what is wrong must be resolved, he categorized political thought today as the struggle of the rights of the majority against those of the individual.

Kiwanians Recognize Gerling

Named "Man of the Year, 1966" Gerling received the plaque which annually goes to the member who is believed to have done the most to further Kiwanis ideals and his club.

GERLING was selected for the honor by a committee of men who have previously received the award in recognition of his leadership as membership chairman. During the past year, 15 new members were gained for the Club, showing a net gain of 10.

How was your scattergun average during the past hunting season? Did you hit what you shot at? If not, here are some fine excuses you might post on the wall for next fall.

PAUGH

Although very erratic in flight, the woodcock still travels 25 miles an hour. With the soul of a test pilot, a grouse flies 30 miles an hour. Quail peak out at 40 miles per hour while pheasants carry the mail at 50 miles an hour.

GEESE and mallards have a top speed of 55 miles an hour but the pintail duck passes them at a rate of 60 miles an hour. The canvasback duck holds the record at a proud 65 miles an hour.

It should be noted that the waterfowl not only fly faster and higher but they maintain their speed for long periods of time whereas the upland game birds hit top speeds only in times of emergency.

With last week's St. Louis tornados still fresh in our minds, we are reminded of the Ohio tornados on Palm Sunday two years ago. A little known tragedy of that disaster was the demise of dozens of turkey buzzards.

The twister passed over a buzzard roost near Marengo, in Delaware County and the great heaps of feathers were not discovered until a month later.

MOST OF us are inflicted these days with cabin fever and itchy feet. Outdoor activities are at an all-year lull. Although the grouse season runs until Feb. 25 most of us are either waiting for a good snowfall or are tired of missing those unguided missiles.

The ice is gone but the creeks are muddy. Actually, there are about three months of waiting left before we can expect to put in long hours outdoors. This is a prime time however, to get out the tackle and make sure all is ready for spring.

As inexpensive as good fishing line is these days, no one should leave last year's line on the reel. The reels should be taken apart, cleaned and greased.

YOUR LURES should be touched up with good paint and the hooks should be honed. If you have a hollow glass rod that has broken, don't throw it away, repair it.

Here's how. Cut each section back to solid fiber with a coping saw. Whittle a wooden dowl about three inches long to fit into both sections snugly. Glue together with a good epoxy cement. Make sure your weld is going to hold before you go further by tugging and lightly twisting the sections.

When you have a weld that will hold, scrape the varnish off the rod for about two inches each side of the seam. Buy regular rod-winding thread to match the rest of the wraps.

WIND TIGHTLY and snugly n double layer for an inch each side of the steam. When your wrap suits you (it won't be as pretty as a factory wrap) go ahead and paint the wrapping with thread preservative.

Let the job sit over night, then give the whole four-inch section several coats of rod varnish.

Where the mend is, there will be a slight stiffness. The closer to the handle the bread has occurred, the more successful the mend. If the rod has become too stiff to suit you, save it for an emergency rod or gvie it to a young boy to use as his first rod.

YOU'VE GAINED a buddy and fishing has gained a new initiate.

League-Less Area Schools Plan Feb. 20 'Sumit' At Hamilton Twp.

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

There are times when the great American pastime of speculation elevates itself from idle conversation to gnawing necessity with undertones of urgency.

Such a time has come upon several schools in the local area which appear to be rapidly zeroing in on that twilight zone for the athletic league-less tagged "independent."

ADDING TO the urgency of three of the schools — Franklin Heights, Teays Valley and Hamilton Township — was the hop to greener pastures (Ohio Capital Conference) by Pleasant View recently, thus disbanding the original South Suburban quartet.

Indications from a meeting of the schools two weeks ago point up a fact of life for the trio — namely "going it alone" in the search for league mates.

This method is still not the most desirable since, as one athletic director put it, "sticking together and having other schools join us would save a lot of time and effort.

"WE ALREADY have a good league constitution and we've become a known league in the past several years."

But the decision to stick together as a unit has apparently already been a stumbling block in efforts for the trio to find a home in either the new OCC or the newly-aligned Mid-Eight circuit — both recently achieving full strength.

Reluctance to remain together may also be gaining ground via outside pressure.

TEAYS VALLEY, for example, has been wooed for some time by fellow Pickaway County schools and the opportunity to align with the South Central Ohio League appears to be more than just a remote possibility.

Natural rivalries — always a favorable factor in attracting top gates — are readily available in the latter setup (e.g. nearby Circleville).

In a situation no more benevolent than that cast on the Metro trio are West Jefferson and Dublin who will find the old Franklin County League football forces reduced to only themselves next fall.

A SOLUTION to everybody's problem could come at a meeting tentatively set for Hamilton Township on Monday, Feb. 20.

Dublin athletic director Glenn Hill, engineer of the effort to bring together the league-less schools, admits that "nothing is concrete at this point. It's still just a talking situation."

But Hill and representatives of West Jefferson, Hamilton Township, Teays Valley, Franklin Heights and Canal Winchester will be in attendance to discuss whether speculation can be transformed into reality and the league-less can decide on a place to roost.

TOUGHEST obstacle to clear, it would appear, is the time-worn reluctance of "A" schools (C-W, W-J and Dublin) to link up with "AA" schools (H-T, F-H and T-V) and vice versa.

Saturday 'Boys' Club Day' At 44 Recreation Centers

The Columbus Recreation Department invites all area boys to compete in its new Boys' Recreation Club program currently in progress at 44 City centers.

The program, which will teach skills in basketball, volleyball, wrestling, tumbling, group games and physical fitness, will continue each Saturday through Mar. 11.

Boys in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades who are interested should report to the Recreation Center closest to them at 9 a.m. on Saturdays.

Boys in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades should report at 11 a.m.

TURNING POINT — East's Dan Young (right) attempts getaway from Brookhaven foe Bob LeGault in 133-lb. semi-final match at City League Meet Saturday. Young eventually gained overtime decision, supplying Tigers with third finals berth. Young and two teammates took finals wins to push East to fourth CL mat title in six years.

East, Whitehall Collect Loop Wrestling Titles

A near sweep by DeSales and East's "mileage economy run" earned respective Central Catholic and City League wrestling titles for the pair last weekend.

Groveport survived a late rally to nab the Mid-Eight mat title while Whitehall relied on a heady comeback to cop honors in the Metro League.

CITY MEET

CHUCK DEYO'S Tigers scrapped their way to a fourth City mat title in six seasons Saturday by getting the best mileage out of four finals berths (won three) in a well-balanced CL field.

Finals victories by Keith Stevens (103), Ralph Cox (112) and Dan Young (133) — coupled by a second by Dick Brown (138), a third by heavyweight Harold Truss and fourths by Howard Barkstall and Benny Slide—piled up 67 markers for the Bengals, enough to outdo runnerup Whetstone's 59.

Host Eastmoor was third with 57 and Walnut Ridge fourth with 54.

WALNUT RIDGE gained a pair of champs in Dave Carr at 138 and Dave Saffle at 154. Terry Roberts took a second and Bruno Sestito and Bob McFarland thirds for the Scotties.

E-M's Steve Flowers, Joe Veneida and Rick Newpoff earned seconds while Dom Caminiti, Dan Callinan, Pete Prendergast and Larry Mixon supplied thirds.

METRO MEET

Back-to-back finals victories by Ken Schmitt (165), Dave Graff (175) and heavyweight Ken Flowers inched Whitehall past Metro favorite Franklin Heights, 32-31, Saturday.

STEVE BEERY (127) and Spike Ludwig (133) also earned finals wins for the Rams who got seconds from Bruce Upperman, Dave Nichols, Mark King and Mike Case.

CCL MEET

A pair of finals wins by Watterson prevented a sweep for defending champion DeSales but the Stallions won going away anyway, 119-67, over the runnerup Eagles.

Watterson's 175-pounder Mike Hilliard was named the meet's "outstanding wrestler" — his trophy presented by OSU mat coach Casey Fredricks.

HOST HARTLEY, which finished fourth with 48 points, got second-place efforts from Jack McNamara, Bruce Livingston and Bill Connor.

NOW HEAR THIS!—Walnut Ridge 103-pounder Terry Roberts (on mat) gets the full treatment at Saturday's City League wrestling meet while awaiting overtime period in semi-final match with Eastmoor's Dom Caminiti. At left, coach Rick Cermelj provides strategy while Scottie manager at right keeps Roberts limber. Twin effort apparently paid off as Roberts gained 6-4 verdict and ticket to finals. IN ROCHESTER, N. Y., Millie Ignizio slammed a 256, 257 and 279 for the 572 series which tied the WIBC standing record set by Janet Harman in 1963. Millie is averaging 211 in league play and recently also bowled a 754.

Charles (Casey) Jones of Plymouth, Wis., is on his way to a new state record for 700 series in a season. He has 34 and needs 16 to top the mark of 49 he set last year.

Spectator Cage Spotlight

SHADE

MILLER

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

A pair of two year varsity vets who have been scoring partners since junior high have paced the fortunes of the Reynoldsburg Raiders during the 1966-67 cage season.

Terry Miller and Gary Shade, a couple of six-foot sparklers, impress their first year coach Bill Borland with their knack of playing together.

"I don't think it is anything that either Dick Fishbaugh (last year's Raider coach who moved to instruct baseball at Otterbein) or I have taught them," Bill said, "playing together just comes naturally to them."

Miller leads in the Reynoldsburg scorebook with 279 points compared to Shade's 210 tallies and despite their size both are among the team's leading rebounders.

"They hustle well," Borland added, "and both jump as well as our 'big' men."

Both Miller and Shade were all-Franklin County League selections last season and are instrumental in putting Reynoldsburg on the top of the Metro League thus far this year. The Raiders are currently riding along with an 11-4 record.

Gahanna: Blending Old And New

Reprinted From
COLUMBUS BUSINESS FORUM

To the casual observer, downtown Gahanna has changed very little in the past 30 years.

Yet the population of this Columbus suburb has mushroomed from fewer than 600 persons in 1950 to 2700 in the 1960 census, to about 10,500 today. Talk to many of Gahanna's residents and you'll learn that this unchanged look, reminiscent of the hundreds of semi-rural Ohio villages that existed in years gone by, is one of its principal charms.

Perhaps a person trained to understand the delicate nuances of human emotions would say that so many Gahanna residents appreciate the charm of the past simply because their daily work takes them into occupations that border on the futuristic.
— work associated with the aviation and space programs in the U.S. Air Force, and other fields of scientific research and development.

Gahanna mayor Paul Van Auken could be considered typical. Each day, Mayor Van Auken reports in his office at North American Aviation, Inc., where he serves as a resident sales manager for The Ohio Bell Telephone Company. North American's communications system in so complex and so frequently in need of changes and additions that it provides a full-time occupation for him in one of the most "future-minded" businesses in existence.

Yet Mayor Van Auken frankly enjoys the "small-town" atmosphere of Gahanna.

"It doesn't take long to get acquainted with nearly everyone who lives in the area. Even if you don't know them by name, you recognize them when you see them at the grocery or the gas station. And they know who you are and feel free to tell you how good or how bad a job you're doing for the town," he commented.

Mayor Van Auken is completing the unexpired term of the previous mayor who resigned last summer. He had been elected president of the Gahanna Council upon taking office last January 1, and was automatically moved into the mayor's office when it became vacant. He is finding that he has two "full-time" jobs now, since the responsibilities of heading a thriving community are not as simple as they might seem. With the help of a fulltime service director, Charles Leavitt, the mayor manages to keep ahead of things.

Gahanna has a newly adopted Master Plan which will be of considerable value in the future development of the area. The plan suggests that Gahanna should limit its eventual size to about 50,000 persons.

Proposed future boundaries for the community are Port Columbus International Airport on the south, Morse Road on the north, the Outerbelt on the west and Reynoldsburg-New Albany Road on the east.

The planned development includes a careful zoning program which will eliminate any future areas of high-density residential construction. Instead, new areas to be developed will call for the estate-type lots of at least one acre in size. A determined effort to bring more industry into Gahanna will be made to help balance the tax duplicate. The present $23 million-plus valuation is primarily on residential real estate.

Presently, Gahanna is a bedroom community, with perhaps as many as 95 percent of its employed persons working outside the village. But with the completion of the Outerbelt and the major cloverleaf interchange that will make Gahanna easily accessible, it is expected that industry will look favorably upon the town as an appropriate site. Then more jobs will be available in Gahanna for Gahanna residents.

Even now, there is an effort being made to change the already-journalized route of the Outerbelt to maintain a strip of Gahanna land immediately adjoining the airport as an area for aviation-associated industrial expansion.

Gahanna's present real estate tax rate is $38.10 per thousand, with $27.70 going for schools, $1.90 for the village operating fund and $.30 for the police pension fund. The Mifflin Township Fire Department provides fire protection for Gahanna on a contract basis.

The village maintains its own police department with a chief, ten officers and four radio operators. Water is provided under contract by the City of Columbus. Water service is available in some of the proposed areas to be annexed, but in other parts of this territory, future negotiations will have to be made for this service.

The average home in Gahanna now is relatively new and is valued at about $20,000. The school system has expanded rapidly, to keep pace with the increasing number of school-age children. A new elementary school and a new junior high school were completed not long ago, bringing the number of classrooms to a total expected to be adequate for some time. The school board has ample operating funds—voters recently renewed a school levy with a comfortable margin.

Possibly the only real educational need felt at present is for a public library. Gahanna does not now have one. Overtures have been made to the Columbus Public Library system, but at present funds are not available to provide a library for Gahanna.

According to Mayor Van Auken, Gahanna people stick together on community issues such as schools, but may fight right down to the wire on political issues.

One important area of community life that has not yet been adequately provided for is recreation. Voters are not yet ready to pay the price for a community program including parks and other facilities. Bond issues for the purpose have been defeated regularly, but will be tried again. Arrangements have been made with school authorities to use school playground facilities for a summer recreation program for Gahanna children next year. The village will provide paid supervisors and the school board will permit free use of the facilities.

A proposed municipal building to replace the present cramped quarters will be built eventually on Hamilton Road. Downtown Gahanna has undergone a sort of "do-it-yourself" urban renewal program in recent years, with the merchants themselves keeping their premises up-to-date and attractive. While there are two small shopping centers in the village the older stores on the main business district streets appear to be thriving, too.

Easy access to downtown Columbus has been one of the keys to Gahanna's growth. This will become even better when the Outerbelt is completed. In time, the bend in Route 62 will be removed so that the familiar entrance to Gahanna from the southwest via Johnstown Road will be changed. Johnstown Road will become a service road with the Outerbelt carrying the heavy traffic in and out of town.

By 1970, the village is expected to achieve city status autmaticaly because it will then have the necessary 5,000 registered voters. But if results of past growth can be considered any indication, Gahanna has already attained the proportions and the problems of a city.

The spirit of community pride, shown in many ways such as the first Christmas Parade, planned for this year, and the community beautification program sponsored by the Gahanna Historical Society, will undoubtedly carry Gahanna forward into a future as pleasant as its past.

SRF: The Sacrificial Altar?

By JANE WOLLERMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

(LAST IN A SERIES)

Is the Selected Reserve Force the altar on which the nation's traditional "home forces" were sacrificed? Have we, by making great cuts in our Reserve units, reduced the active military's backup to a dangerously low level? Or have we, through the SRF, acquired an elite group of citizen soldiers who are more combat ready than any reserve force since the Minute Men at Concord?

These are the questions over which the battle of McNamara's Army is being fought. Military and civilian officials alike are unwilling to admit to any dissension over the reorganized reserve force, just as Guard and Army Reserve commanders alike refuse to admit to a rivalry between the two forces. Nevertheless the controversy is there and so is the rivalry.

When the SRF plan was disclosed, it called for an elite group of 145,000 troops to make up three Army Guard divisions, six battalions and their supporting forces. Of that number 130,000 troops were to be Guardsmen and 15,000 would be Reservists.

At the same time, the Pentagon eliminated 751 Army Reserve units including all of the Reserve's combat divisions. A total of 55,000 Reservists were put out of military slots, 8,000 of them from Ohio's 83rd Division.

The Pentagon's expectation was that Reservists left without a unit would fill up the Guard SRF units. When the dust settled, only 783 Reservists went into the Guard, 91 into Guard SRF units.

Active duty military personnel do not engage in criticism of the civilian defense department. As one Ft. Hayes official put it, "The Defense Department's official position is our official position."

Brig. Gen. Raymond Mason, whose civilian position is president of the Columbus Truck and Equipment Company, is more outspoken in his criticism of the defense department's policy. He was deputy commander of the 83rd Division before its demise.

"It seemed a little drastic to me to cut down the whole tree to be rid of a few dead limbs. Of course we had some inefficiency in the 83rd Division, but we also had some outstanding units and some really fine commanders. None of those units were designated SRF, and all the trained personnel were lost to the defense establishment," the General said.

In the summer of 1966, SRF units were tested at battalion level supposedly according to Active Army readiness standards. Official reports indicate 88.3 percent of the units tested passed. The report does not emphasize that a few units could not be tested due to lack of facilities and time and that some of the units were tested at a reduced standard for the same reason.

On the theory of a super-ready selected Reserve, the active Army has been mobilized and garrisons left denuded of experienced personnel. Other reserve components have been reduced in size and number and have suffered a loss in personnel and equipment. Does the SRF provide an adequate backup under these circumstances?

One military publication says that present indications are that the SRF will remain in force for "at least another year." One wonders what will happen when that year is up. Where will the concentration of equipment and personnel go if the SRF is eliminated?

These and many other questions remain to be answered by the Defense Department.

The Third Brigade of the 28th Infantry Division with its headquarters at 2940 Sullivant-av passed its readiness test and is proceeding on a "modified, intensified" training schedule. There is no doubt in the mind of the executive officer of the unit, Lt. Col. John Spain, that the unit is now at its highest degree of readiness. "We are deployable within eight weeks," he has said.

Ft. Hayes, which now faces a new closing date of December, 1968, will lose the 20th Corps headquarters which now supervises Reserve units in Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Sector commanders will now receive their orders directly from First Army at Ft. Meade, Md., but no one at Ft. Hayes is packing yet. A picture hanging in the outer office of Maj. General Henry Benson, Corps Commanding General, shows the Fort being put up for sale in 1909. It wasn't sold then and has been under repeated threats of closure ever since. Will 1968 be any different?

of five from the charity stripe.

Hartley's Parkers, Rod and Denny, combined for 35 of 55 Hawk points. Rodney, a 6-3 junior, connected on six of 13 from the field and five of six from the foul line for 17 points while Denny, a 6-2 senior, rimmed nine of 12 from the field for 18 points.

HAWK FORWARD Tom Brewer scored 15 points with a four of 10 field goal range and a seven for nine free throw mark. Watterson's Ben Melancon, the Eagles newcomer with a 16 point per game average, managed only eight second half points.

The Hawk defense pressured 17 Eagle throwaways. Hartley had nine. Watterson's shooters bagged 52 percent (21 of 40) while Hartley posted 46 percent (20 of 43).

EASTMOOR'S Thursday night win was a shade more hectic than the 77-67 margin might indicate. North closed a consistent Warrior gap ranging from eight to 14 points in the last two minutes 65-63 before Eastmoor turned to full throttle in the next minute to go ahead 71-63.

Eric Walz was the Warrior hot shot with 25 points while North's Dave Leatherman had 27 and slippery guard Dwight LaMar canned 23 points.

WALZ ADDED a little excitement with a half court goal at first half buzzer to give Eastmoor at 34-26 lead.

The top point performers Friday night were headed by the 33 point effort of Northland's Kris Wehe who teamed up with the 29 point scoring of mate Jim Frazier to down University 104-69.

A trio of slick shooters posted 28 points with Gary Wolf of DeSales and Tommy Jackson of Ready matching baskets evenly in the Central Catholic. The Stallions had more to go with Wolf's total in winning 90-74. Teays Valley's Rod Teets rimmed 28 in the Vikings' 68-53 win over Franklin Heights.

Harlow Road Resident Wins Buckeye Contest

William S. Guthrie, president of Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association, announced today that Robert A. Nolan has won the "Buckeye Holiday" weekend vacation awarded by the Eastern Office of Buckeye Federal.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan, 1326 Harlow-rd, will spend an exciting weekend this summer at a beautiful Ohio lodge. They will choose from Atwood Lake Lodge, Burr Oak Lodge, Hueston Woods Lodge or Punderson Manor House.

Their Buckeye holiday will start with dinner on Friday evening of the weekend of their choice, and end with a festive farewell luncheon in their honor. They will stay in the finest rooms available at the lodge they select.

"It was shocking," Mrs. Nolan said. "We've never won anything before in our lives. It's wonderful."

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan have been regular customers of the Eastern Office of Buckeye Federal ever since it opened. Mrs. Nolan remarked, "We just live a block from Buckeye Federal, so it's very convenient. And the people there are just lovely." Mr. Nolan has been employed by the IBM Corporation for 27 years.

Guthrie stated that Buckeye Federal held this promotion because of the company's "deep interest in the state of Ohio." He felt that this was a vote of confidence in Ohio's future as a resort state for people from all over the nation.

Breakfast Bell Rings This Week

Three-hundred youngsters were expected in the chow line when three Columbus Public Schools rang the breakfast bell Wednesday morning.

The menu wasn't elaborate (organe juice, frosted corn flakes and milk) but for some children at Felton, Garfield and Douglas elementaries where the experimental nutritional program is being established, it will mean the difference between a full and an empty stomach.

Served a half hour before classes begin at 9 a.m., the breakfastpro grim is federally subsidized under the Child Nutrition Act of 1966.

Although for those without extra change, it's "on the house" youngsters with 20 cents to spend are welcome.

School spokesmen explained the meal which will be prepared at Monroe Junior High will include protein foods such as eggs, cheese and poultry as often as possible.

SOCIETY TO MEET

St. Philip the Apostle Altar and Rosary Society will meet Feb. 9 in the school at 8:15 p.m. following a recitation of the Rosary. The program will feature a spring hat showing and sale.

CLUB TO MEET

The Eastmoor South Garden Club will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Barnett Recreation Center. Mrs. James McClain will demonstrate the use of the color wheel. Hostesses will be Mrs. McClain and Mrs. Roger McAllister.

Man And Woman Of Year Announced By Jaycees

By CLYDA NAPIER
Spectator Staff Writer

John Irvine of 6720 Red Fox-rd, received the Reynoldsburg Jaycees' award for the "Outstanding Young Man of the Year" for 1966, at the distinguished-service-award banquet last week at Hart's Restaurant.

Mrs. Vivian Hickman of 1900 Graham-rd received the Jaycee Wives' Club award for "Outstanding Woman of the Year" at the banquet also. Both winners were presented plaques inscribed with their honors.

The Industrial Appreciation Award was received by Mr. Earle Fisher, Sr., of Fisher Plastics Co.

Miss Mary Lou Middlesworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Middlesworth 1130 Carrousel-dr, was presented the Essay Award for her essay "What My American Patriotism Means to Me." Mary Lou is an eighth grade student at St. Pius School. Her essay will be submitted to the state Jaycee essay contest.

Irvin was selected from the several nominations for his many accomplishments in service to the community. He is a distributive education teacher at Hamilton Township in the Franklin County School system.

He is a member of the local school board, of Civitan, and is on the planning committee for the new Eastland Vocational School.

Irvine is active in Reynoldsburg Methodist Church as a member of the official board and commission on education. His work as church school superintendent keeps a school of over a thousand enrollment in operation every week. He has served as an officer in the local Republican Club.

Mrs. Hickman, a woman of diversified interests, was nominated for "Woman of the Year" by both the Civic Club and the Reynoldsburg Methodist Church and was chosen from among ten entries.

Much of her activity in the community has been with youth groups — Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and church youth. Some of the offices Mrs. Hickman has held in local organizations are president of Civic Club, the Brice Community Garden Club and WSCS of the Methodist Church.

She has also been secretary of the official board of the Reynoldsburg Methodist Church and of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs. Her work as a naturalist for Columbus Metropolitan Parks and church work fill any vacancy in her busy schedule. Mrs. Hickman has recently become a world traveler with trips to Europe, Asia, Australia, Hawaii and throughout the United States.

Receives Building Plans For Center

Building plans for the proposed teen canteen were submitted to the Reynoldsburg Recreation Commission by Joe Ogg, member of the Planning committee, Jan. 25.

William Harrison, chairman of the city's Recreation Commission, said the project is not contingent upon the application for matching federal funds for a civil defense center which was announced last week. Although the funds would be a windfall, he said, a building costing $22,000 to $25,000 can be built as originally planned.

High school students attending the meeting made plans to form a coordinating body of teens which will develop into an administrative body for the center.

AT THE RECREATION CENTER

BARNETT

Barnett Center recently participated in the Inter-Center Teen Council's sectional convention, held at Barack Center, by electing this year's officers.

Jo Traphagan ran for vice-chairman, Nancy Nicholson for recording secretary, Jody Reisdorf for corresponding secretary and Bruno Sestito for chaplain.

Jo Traphagan and Bruno Sestito were victorious and will run this week in the city-wide election. Nancy Nicholson will also run independently for recording secretary.

Barnett Center is now taking names of boys and girls who are interested in taking part in the Center's Table Tennis Tournament. Classifications are for both boys and girls, singles and doubles: Juniors, ages 9-12; intermediate, 13-15 and seniors, 16-18. Winners will compete in the City-wide Table Tennis Tournament.

EAST COLUMBUS

East Columbus Recreation Center defeated Pilgrim Recreation Center, 58-41, in a basketball game Saturday. Larry Holloway had 22 points to lead East Columbus scorers. He was followed by Greg Vinson with 13 and Ed Swan with 11.

Weightlifting classes are offered each Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. See Mrs. Resley.

With two weeks of play in the senior intermediate basketball league completed, the 76ers and Knickerbockers are tied with 2-0 records. The Ravens and Celtics are 1-1 while the Falcons and UCLA are 0-2. Calvin Johnson is the league's leading scorer with a 32-point-per-game average. Kreg Kurtz is second at 27 points and Gary Mixon third at 25.

'HOORAY FOR HARTLEY, HOORAY FOR HARTLEY'

Hawks Press Way To CCL Title

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

"Hooray for Hartley, we put you down, Hooray for Hartley, we won the crown," echoed once again throughout the Hawk cage chambers last Friday night.

Hartley had just ridden some nifty foul shooting to its third straight Central Catholic basketball championship—adding another collector's item to its already bulging trophy case.

The 57-53 win minutes before over pre-season favorite DeSales had the rich championship flavor of the age-old classic battle between size and speed.

The Stallions of Jerry Connor captured all the glances of pre-season title lookers on the basis of their awesome size, outside shooting ability and overall experience, but that equation needed a little more to be the right formula.

Missing from it was Hartley's stamina, its willingness to gamble, its tremendous desire and its steel-like nerve. The Hawks of Dick Geyer, now in his second year at Hartley's helm, had in a great degree what Hemingway called "grace under pressure" and if there was a big difference between the two combatants for the CCL flag, it was the East Side power's poise.

The Stallions had the ball and a 47-42 advantage with 4:48 remaining in the game when Hartley's defensive scramblers swarmed them, needling them with intense pressure, daring them to be a champion or a pretender. That's when DeSales lost its "cool."

Connor's big Purple watched their lead melt within the next three minutes as their composure slipped away, having five throwaways and missing numerous "bunny" shots which Hartley was too small to contest.

But pressure has been the story for Geyer's second CCL champion. They apply it at will, causing opponents to change attacks and make countless turnovers while trying to combat it.

The Hawks have literally pressed they way to the CCL crown with a full court man-to-man or zone press that has faithfully retrieved for them an average of 20 free balls a game. No team, since they have started with the press (third game of the year) has escaped turnovers with Hillsboro having the most with 34 and well-trained teams like Watterson being clipped for 18.

Hartley, currently 14-3 on the season with a lone date against Ready remaining Friday, had to risk the press to make up for size.

"We have trouble with teams on the boards so we had to come up with something to fight them," Geyer said.

The size left Hartley last year with the graduation of 6-5, 225 pound center Doug Parker and 6-5, 220 pound Dave Rogers, leaving only Rod Parker, a 6-3 jumping-jack junior, to handle the rough board work.

Rodney gets help from 6-2 Tom Brewer, 6-2 Jim Trapp, who has been on the sick list with an injury sustained in the first DeSales-Hartley encounter, and 6-0 Tim Griffin.

Scrappy Mike Irwin (6-0) and Denny Parker (6-2) spearheaded the press, forcing foes to throw high.

"When they get you to throw high they have got you," commented Reynoldsburg's Bill Borland after his Metro League

Final Battles - Then On To Tourneys

By BOB WHITMAN

With the last big schoolboy cage weekend getting under way Friday night, only Bishop Hartley and Reynoldsburg are assured of outright loop championships.

East and Urbana are safe for at least a share of the City and Buckeye Athletic Conference respectively while the rest must go all out one more time to settle things by Sunday morning.

HARTLEY CAN add its 12th straight Central Catholic League win and its 21st in 22 CCL games with a win against Ready (0-5, 6-10). The Hawks own a 14-3 mark and earned their "full" crown with a 57-53 win over DeSales last Friday.

Bill Borland's Raiders won the first Metro cage crown with Whitehall's helping hand. The Rams clipped contender Teays Valley while Reynoldsburg was disposing of Hamilton Township.

WHITEHALL, for want of four points, would have been Metro winner. Phil Allen's group lost to the Raiders, twice by one point.

Reynoldsburg (9-0, 12-4) travels to play Teays Valley (6-2, 9-5) in a game that was supposed to be for all the marbles.

EAST'S TALL talent, ranked number one in both the UPI and AP polls all season, can win the City prize outright for the second straight time with a win over visiting West (7-2, 10-5) Friday night. The Tigers of Bob Hart have won the City cage title four out of the last five years.

The BAC could wind up in a three-way knot with Urbana (4-1) playing Grandview (3-2) and Bexley (3-2) meeting last place Delaware (0-5) Friday.

WINS FOR both Grandview and Bexley would do it.

Grandview's Dick Hopkins labels foe Urbana an "aggressive, good shooting outfit with a better team than its overall record shows."

HOPKINS FEELS that his entire starting line-up has picked up in the course of the year with 6-0 Mark Todd, pacing the Bobcat scorers, followed by 6-2 Jim Burchfield. The Hillclimbers won the first meeting 82-79 in Urbana.

Both the County and the Mid-Eight Leagues are filled with teams with a statistical chance for laurels.

IN THE rugged FCL, Canal Winchester is assured of its first championship under Bob Miller if it can beat St. Mary (9-6) Friday and Academy (5-9) Saturday.

The Indians (12-4) were riding in the clouds toward a sole crown until New Albany edged them 79-78 last weekend. To keep the first spot for a tie with Winchester, New Albany must stop West Jefferson, Dave Holland's surprise package.

THE ROUGHRIDERS who travel to New Albany on Friday, have to win—plus hope for a C-W stumble to get a share.

"But as long as we have a statistical chance," said Boss Holland, "we will keep playing."

THE RIDERS handled New

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

A bowling establishment operator in Buffalo, N.Y., was successfully operating a 12-lane house but had room for one more lane. He thought a long time before making the decision to add No. 13. To beat the jinx he renumbered lane No. 3 to 2½ and continued on through 12.

It is interesting to note that no Columbus establishment has exclusive claims to the current rush of 700's; witness: Roy Buckley's 715 at Amos, Gary Slyh with 706 and 707 at Winko, Don Graves with 704 at Olentangy Village and Ron Stromfield with 715 at Lockbourne.

THE GALS have been going, as Blanche Ottney hit 632 in Western Doubles, Carolyn Culver rolled 256 in Piketon Invitational, Elder and Epler boasted a 1048-2753 in Riverview Buckeye, Judy Miller 253-653 at Northern Lights, Betty Chafin with 685 at Main Lanes and on and on.

The Riverview Palace girls slammed five 600 sets, paced by Ruth Ziegler's 630. Sue Hutchens had a 253-628, leading the way to a 2822 for Lakeshore Charter Busses.

The phrase "from eight to 80" is common terminology in speaking of the appeal of bowling.

IT POINTS up that the ten-pin game is played by everyone from boys and girls to grandmothers and grandfathers. The phrase could now go a bit further. It's not uncommon today to find men and women over 90 bowling in organized league play.

Allen Smith, 94, retired tailor in Ann Arbor, Mich., is testimony to that. He bowls regularly in two leagues each week and this spring competed in the ABC National Seniors tournament in Skokie, Ill. Smith didn't touch a bowling ball until he was 64.

Mrs. Sarah Kuchler, 90, of New Orleans, La., was introduced to bowling at 84. She now is a member of two leagues and this spring competed in the Woman's International Bowling Congress tournament in New Orleans.

EXTREMES? Not by any means. Fred Holmes of Glencoe, Ill., was 99 when he bowled in the 1964 ABC Seniors tournament. He has been a league bowler for 50 years.

Whitehall Hosts District Field; State Mat Berths Put On Line

By Jack Wittenmeier
Spectator Sports Editor

Bob Barnett's Eastmoor Warriors, apparently proving that lightning can strike quite a few times in the same spot, once again vaulted themselves into an enviable spot at last weekend's wrestling sectionals.

The Warriors, who have just about made strong District finishes a trademark, lead the parade of District hopefuls into Whitehall Friday and Saturday with seven qualifiers.

BUT E-M DOESN'T have any stranglehold on the number of berths with defending District champ East, DeSales, Worthington and Franklin Heights arriving with six contestants themselves.

Also very much in contention are Upper Arlington and the host Rams with five qualifiers each.

Conjecture will rapidly fade into reality with the opening of prelims and semi-finals Friday evening at 7 on the Whitehall mats.

AND WHEN consolations and finals get underway at 1 p.m. Saturday, 11 individual District titles and the Central District team championship will be on the line with all 22 finals combatants earning tickets to the state meet the following weekend at OSU.

Six of this year's 88 District qualifiers advanced to state competition last year.

Admission for each session (Friday and Saturday) at Whitehall will be $1 for adults and students and 50 cents for children under 12.

Here are the 88 qualifiers for the District Meet:

103—Keith Stevens (East), Dick Donovan (Worthington), Terry Roberts (Walnut Ridge), Dennis Fetherolf (Grove City), Jerry Branham (Franklin Hgts.), Dom Caminiti (Eastmoor), Bob Mowery (Arlington) and Rex Needham (Newark).

112—Ralph Cox (East)*, Terry Arnold (DeSales), Ed

For $22 A Month?

There are those who would have you believe welfare departments pay a bounty for illegitimate children. And that women on relief are eager to collect it.

They want you to believe that an unwed mother on welfare purposely conceives a child out of wedlock, carries it for nine months and brings it into the desolate world of chronic poverty for the additional $22 a month she can get in her welfare check.

Of course it happens. But it is difficult to believe that any woman who knew what she was doing would do it on purpose.

Society can damn such a woman as it sees fit for immorality or plain stupidity. But it takes a very low estimate of motherhood to believe such women are greedy bounty hunters.

Need For Action

The Franklin County Board of Elections made a mockery of the state's election laws Monday when it refused, by a 2-1 vote, to do anything about Chairman Thomas H. Williams' report of illegal and shady campaign practices in last November's election.

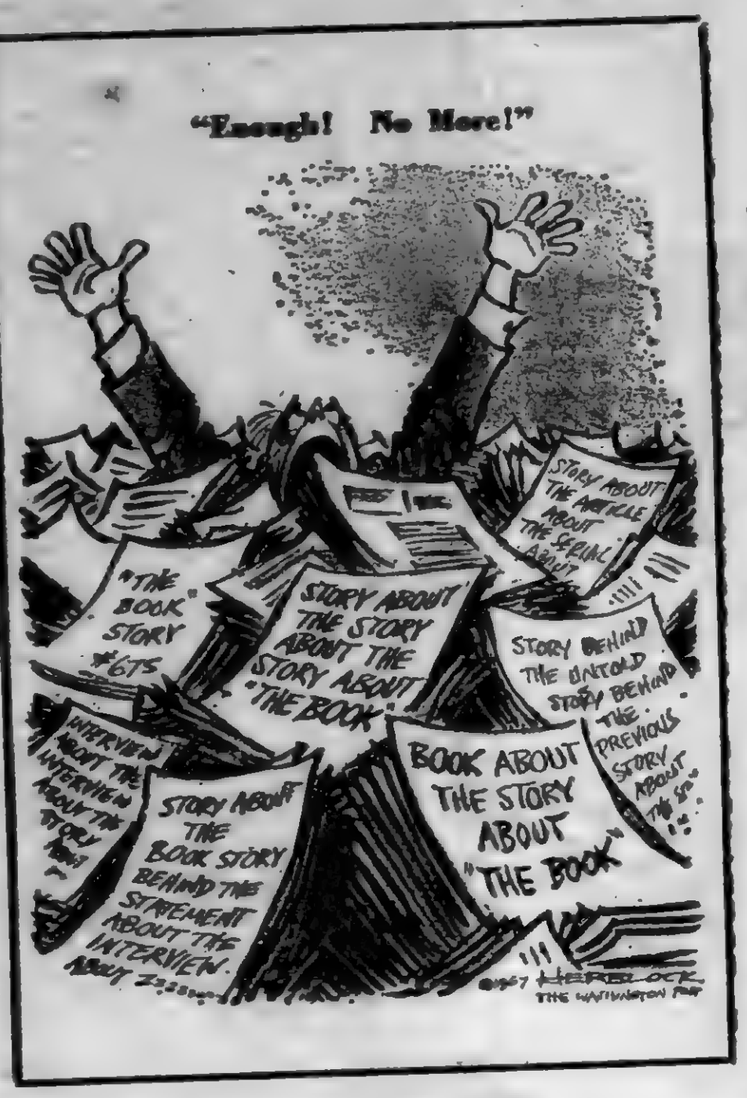
Williams' report followed what he termed a "cursory examination" of expense accounts filed by candidates and committees working for issues and candidates.

The report underscores what appear to be flagrant violations of state election laws — in most cases failure of committees to file expense reports. In some cases, these groups apparently attempted to work under the guise of civic or non-partisan groups to evade the filing requirements.

Most disturbing was Williams' charge that the Columbus Education Association, through a group known as its Legislative and Legal Rights Committee, apparently worked directly for the election of A. Mack Pemberton to the House of Representatives. The report filed by Teachers for Pemberton listed the committee as a source of funds.

It is appalling that the CEA, which purports to represent teachers of all political persuasions, should work for a candidate and yet avoid filing a campaign report.

Also appalling was a leaflet attached to the report by Williams and issued by the "Whitehall Committee for an Informed Electorate." While it purported to be merely an informational flyer, it shows pictures of Rep. Keith McNamara, who is white, and his opponent, John L. Francis, a Negro.



Williams said the leaflet's "tenor and area of distribution leads me to believe that it was nothing more than a blatant appeal to racial prejudice." We cannot help but agree. McNamara, incidentally, has made it clear he had absolutely no knowledge of the leaflet.

Williams indicated after his setback Monday that he would pursue the matter on his own with county law enforcement officials and the secretary of state's office.

The Spectator strongly urges Williams to ignore the laxity of his fellow board members and act swiftly and strongly to bring action against anyone he feels violated the law during the 1966 election.

And we urge Secretary of State Ted W. Brown to consider Williams' report in spite of the Franklin County Board of Elections' refusal to put its power behind Williams.

Williams' report is proof positive that a major overhaul of the state's election machinery is in order.

What's The Hurry?

Why the big rush to get Governor Rhodes' pet bid to change Ohio's bonding authority before the voters?

Why a special election to ask voters to give up their rights to pass on each bond issue by a popular vote?

Why the rush, especially when the Rhodes administration already has voter-approved authority to issue a billion dollars in bonds in which hardly a dent has been made?

Here's a clue.

In spite of Rhodes' election promise of "no new taxes" as long as he is governor, a healthy tax increase appears inevitable during the current session of the state legislature.

The bonding authority, in order to be workable, will have to be backed up by additional tax revenues in the state's general fund.

Rhodes must first gain public approval of the bonding authority change in the constitution before it will be known how much additional general revenue will be needed for operating, plus amortization of future bonds.

The chances of getting voter approval of the bonding authority after state taxes have been increased are a lot less than gaining approval of another of those "without new taxes" issues before a tax hike.

This will be Rhodes' last trip to the well and the draught will be deep.

To sell the bonding authority proposal to Ohio voters before the pending tax hike, the Rhodes administration will again tap out those usual sources of campaign funds —trade associations with stakes before the legislature and state regulated industries with more cash than courage.

Voters will be subjected to a massive overkill of publicity and advertising and will wake up at some later date to wonder just where it was they lost their constitutional right to limit their own public debt.

Those same people who bemoan loudly the loss of states' rights to federal authority will flip the voting machine switch to give up their own rights to an ill-contrived state commission responsible to no one but a lame duck governor.

Thanks From UCC

To The Editor:

Mrs. Robert Lazarus, Jr., chairman of the public welfare education committee of the United Community Council, has asked me to express her appreciation and that of her committee for the support you are giving the effort to raise welfare payments.

The editorial was wonderful and the issues for the week of Jan. 31 gave other excellent space to this project, not only in the Reynoldsburg and Metropolitan issues, but in many of the other sections.

We are grateful for your interest and hope we can count on your continued support.

Poor Start

To The Editor:

If the village of New Rome feels it necessary to hire a three-man police force to clean up an area this small I think a little more consideration should be given to the type of people that the taxpayers of this community are going to be paying for this service.

It seems a shame that you classify all State Highway Patrolmen, County Sheriffs and other professional law enforcement men in the same class as the so called professional policeman mentioned in the article in The Spectator on Jan. 18, 1967.

If New Rome wants to "clean up" the village as is stated in The Spectator, it is certainly getting off to a very poor start, in my opinion.

Clean The Snow

To The Editor:

I was very disappointed in the performance of Columbus' snow-cleaning crews after Sunday night's snowstorm.

There was only a little over an inch of snow and yet even some of the main streets in town, particularly West Broad Street, were not even plowed by the rush hour Monday morning.

This wouldn't be so bad if the smaller suburbs and the county road crews, which have much less equipment, hadn't done such a fine job cleaning their roads in the same period of time.

I hate to think what would happen if this city ever got a really big snowstorm such as Chicago is having. This is something for the service department people to think about.

william s. white ★ House In Moral Bind ★

WHITE

The House of Representatives is now gloomily trying to dig itself out of a pit lined with misplaced moralism and extremely poor judgment into which it so recently plunged in denying a reseating to Adam Clayton Powell pending an investigation of his conduct.

As a special House committee of nine unhappy members proceeds with this inquiry, there is now a belated general recognition of the central reality of it all. This is that all the House had accomplished here was to give Rep. Powell a loud martyrdom which will infallibly send him back to Congress from Harlem with a bigger vote than ever, even in the unlikely event that the investigating committee in fact finds him still ineligible.

In a word, the disciplinary action thus far taken against him, while entirely human, was also entirely unjustified. And it cannot be made to appear just simply because he is a bad and swaggering fellow.

The entire Republican membership of the House, plus most of the Southern Democrats, on Jan. 10 rushed in to refuse to seat him then and there while wiser heads were trying to seat him provisionally pending an inquiry. A majority of the committee, which has the thankless chore of investigating him, tried then to avoid the more abrupt of these actions and for its pains is now stuck with the job of getting the House off the hook.

The whole thing is an ironic and perfect illustration of the fact that, unlike the Senate, the House allows no "obstructive" debate at times of passion and emotionalism. Given the right to filibuster in the House, a right not present there, and this foolish and extreme business would never have occurred.

The true heart of the American representative process lies in the ability of a minority in one forum and one alone — the Senate — to insist upon long and sometimes even over-long debate as the last guarantee against unfair or heedless actions by momentary and inflamed majorities which might themselves — as now in the case of Powell — decide, on more mature reflection, that what they were about to do might be both wrong and self-defeating.

What the House forgot here in its howling haste to vote, and what any sort of unrestricted debate would at length have compelled it to remember, is that verdicts in this country are supposed to come after, and not before, the trial is held.

marquis childs ★ Sleight-of-Hand ★

CHILDS

WASHINGTON — For many of the spectators the President's presentation of the budget was like the act of a sleight-of-hand artist. Though the hand in this accomplished act is swifter than the eye, the onlookers leave the performance with troubling doubts unresolved.

On two principal points the doubters remain unconvinced by the budget figures. First and foremost are the spending estimates for defense and the Vietnam war.

Members of Congress with expert knowledge believe that the rate of spending on Vietnam has been for some time considerably above the $22 billion that the budget allocates for fiscal year 1968, beginning on July 1. Rep. Melvin Laird, ranking minority member of the House Appropriations Committee, is convinced that over-all defense spending in the last half of 1967 has been running at a rate well over the $73 billion that is the figure in the budget for the next fiscal year.

Along with Chairman George H. Mahon of the Appropriations Committee Laird knows as much as any member of Congress about the intricate involutions of the defense budget. He notes that with the need to replace 500 aircraft, a buildup in spare parts and, in the minds of most observers, a faster and larger growth in the American forces in Vietnam than the budget allows for the $73 billion is likely to be grossly underestimated.

The second point is on the optimistic estimates of Federal revenue for the next fiscal year. With receipts put at $126.9 billion the deficit in the administrative budget is $8.1 billion. That reflects the relatively optimistic outlook of the President's economic report for the calendar year 1967, with continued growth in the Gross National Product, although at a rate below that of 1966. But the report masks the private uncertainties of some of the President's principal advisers and the public doubts about which way the economy will turn.

As for the so-called Great Society programs, the President has tempered the political wind to the shorn lamb. Responsible Republicans say the proposed increase of $300,000,000 for the war on poverty would bring the money available for fiscal year '68 to less than what is being spent in the current year. It would actually be a reduction in the spending rate for the battle against poverty.

By almost any calculation from whatever source the amount proposed to try to stem the decay of the cities and break down the walls of the ghettos is pitfully small. By cutting back so far the President may have thought he would forestall Congress and keep at least a respectable front for his domestic program. If that was his expectation he is bound to be quickly disillusioned.

Nor does the Republican opposition have to get out in front when it comes to shaving the sums in the budget on the domestic side of the ledger. For the majority whip of the Senate, Russell Long of Louisiana, was sharpening his axe even before the budget went to Congress. He is opposed to virtually all the programs that would ease city tensions and begin to correct ancient abuses.

Long wants to show that by deeper cuts than Johnson has made there will be no need for even a temporary tax increase such as the White House proposed in the six percent surcharge. He is aided and abetted by other Southerners in powerful posts where a veto or simply long-drawn-out resistance can frustrate the Administration.

When the Democratic majority in the Senate voted to put Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia in the No. 3 leadership position they gave Long a lieutenant worthy of his chief. With a fanatical zeal Byrd has spent a good bit of his time salvaging the welfare programs, trying out on the defenseless District of Columbia varying punishments for victims of the welfare system. His election over the liberal, Sen. Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, was evidence of which way the Senate proposes to go.

Men around the President have been saying that in 1968 he will run for re-election as "another Truman" — an underdog campaigning against the roadblock of a defiant Congress. The Eighty-Worst Congress, President Truman called it in his fiery campaign. But between 1948 and 1968 there is a great difference. The 81st Congress had Republican majorities, the 90th Congress is in nominal control of large Democratic majorities. And surely next year the Republicans will not let the President campaign against his own leaders.

barry goldwater ★ Voting Age Amendments ★

GOLDWATER

This Congress is going to consider seriously the matter of lowering the national voting age to 18 years. As it does, there are two amendments to any such measure that I would earnestly hope would be reconsidered — and enacted.

That all members of the armed forces, wherever they might be stationed, be permitted to vote for the office of President.

That all transients or those having moved just before an election be permitted to vote for the office of President.

In every Presidential election millions of Americans are denied the right to vote for the national office of President because of geographic dislocation. In no case is this denial more ironic than for those who find themselves unable to vote because they are stationed abroad, or are being moved around at home, in order to defend the system for whose chief official other Americans, safely at home, are being permitted to vote.

Those two amendments, however, are not the only ones about which Americans should be concerned when they consider the matter of voting.

Voting, basically, is the fundamental civil right. Civil rights, after all, are the rights we have in relation to government. Popular usage has tried to distort the meaning to include purely private relationships, but a civil right is just that — civil, nothing more nor less.

That the importance and nature of voting, as a civil right, often is confused certainly was seen in the 1964 Presidential campaign and, as an aftermath, ever since. Civil rights were a key issue in that campaign. The Republican position was widely attacked as not being deeply enough concerned with civil rights.

This basic civil right to vote was a key plank in the 1964 Republican platform. The Democrat platform, by contrast, did not even get into the matter except to point with pride to what had already — with Republican leadership — been done.

The Republican platform flatly and explicitly said that the party pledged itself to take "such additional administrative or legislative actions as may be required to end the denial, for whatever unlawful reason, of the right to vote."

This, I suggest, is one of the most important civil rights positions ever taken by a political party. It puts to shame all those petty details that so often pass as important civil rights measures, but which are just bandages to cover surface scratches.

That Republican position certainly stands as a shining refutation of all the continuing civil rights sniping at the party's platform.

It is in the same spirit of deep concern for this most meaningful civil right that I now make the two suggestions regarding members of the armed forces and transients. Such issues are ones on which all men of good will and rational mind sincerely can join.

Grimms' Tale Featured At Cinemas This Week

"Rumpelstilskin" is the afternoon feature for Town and Country, University and Great Western Cinemas this weekend.

Ticket price for children and adults is 50 cents. Features on Saturday are at noon, 2 and 4 p.m. Sunday, two showings are scheduled for 1 and 3 p.m.

Children's films are now being featured more than ever—quite a reversal of the "adults only" sign you find at movie houses nowadays.

"Rumpelstilskin" is probably the most universally known of all the Grimms fairy tales. It's the story of the miller's daughter who was forced to spin gold from straw for the king.

When she was found crying, with a room full of straw in the king's palace, a little elf offered to help for a price.

This movie was filmed in Bavaria and the Rhineland, the setting the Grimms knew best and always wrote about. The castles are all authentic and are hundreds of years old.

Feb. 3rd was Channel 4 personality John Paris' birthday. Next year at this time his wife, Patricia, will have to bake two cakes. She gave birth to their third child, a son, John Paris II, at Riverside Hospital.

The proud father, 33-year-old Paris, has been at WLW-C TV for a year and a half. In this period he has been a staff announcer and is now holding down the news desk on weekends.

He is also the host for "Very Special," a filmed program which is varied daily. "Very Special" is seen at 4:30 p.m.

John and his family have lived in Columbus for two and one-half years. Before joining TV-4 he was with WCOL-Radio as a newscaster.

His first exposure to TV was ten years ago in Cincinnati as a prop man. He became fascinated with TV and enrolled in the Conservatory College in Cincinnati where he graduated from Radio and TV Communications School.

Since then he has worked in Indianapolis and Cincinnati. He has had a few "bit parts" in Hollywood for TV Series. From this experience John feels he's really found that newscasting is his field.

When time allows, John likes to read and bowl. Singing is one of his specialties and he has been heard on "The Spook Beckman Show." He is also an avid horseback rider.

Acting is one of John's pastimes. He has done several roles in past years and when time permits, he hopes to again participate in community theater.

John, like many personalities feels "Columbus typifies the real America." Columbus audiences are greatly aware of programming in this area and are great in participation.

GREAT JOY IN THE MORNING

Tourney—

Albany the first time around, but Dave feels that it was his group's best effort all year.

"We still need another such game to beat them again," Dave added.

IN MID-EIGHT, Gahanna rests on top with a 10-2 record, but Grove City, perennial Mid-Eight champion, is close behind with a 9-2 standing.

Grove City has two dates this weekend with Hilliard (Friday) and Marysville (Saturday) while Gahanna, under first-year man John Stanley plays one against Groveport.

If both are successful, the Mid-Eight crown will be divided two ways for the second straight year.

CAGE NOTES: Eastmoor's cage "jinx" over Linden held for the first half, but the slick shooting of Jim Cleamons and Eddie Young cracked the spell of Warrior Magic, leading the Panthers to a comfortable 79-62 win.

Young turned in a dandy defensive effort by shutting off E-M gunner Eric Walz, holding him to seven points. Linden shot 43 percent compared to Eastmoor's 30, a season low for them.

READY'S PAT PENN praised the effort of his 6-6 center for a 10 rebound, 10 point game against West last Tuesday. The big boy was instrumental along with John (35-point) John Bennett in Ready's 76-61 wni.

Hartley's Rodney Parker did a lion-sized job in the Hawks' 106-73 blitz of Hillsboro last Saturday night. Parker scored 37 points, breaking an eight-year school record set in 1959 by Steve Warren. Uarker also pulled down 22 rebounds.

Jim Walker was the top point producer of the area last Friday night with a 33 point effort that lifted Academy to its Franklin County League win of the season, a 82-64 jewel over West Jefferson.

Walker's output was followed by the 29 point firing of St. Mary star Ron Webb, who paced the Rams over Dublin 61-50, and the 28 point firing of Dan Brenning in New Albany's 79-78 win over Canal Winchester.

FEARLESS PREDICTIONS

The "Fearless One" had been pretty pleased with himself before last week's letdown, which was his worst performance this season. The great guesser finished last week with a 24-11 mark to dip his percentage just a shade below 80 based on his overall 252-66 record.

This week's action will be the last tuneup before the "win or else" tournaments.

KENT DON'T CARE — Linden's Rodney Kent (20) throws caution to the winds and the basketball toward the basket Friday on this scoring attempt against Eastmoor Warrior defenders include Jack Parry (left), Jerry Carson (right) and a tumbling Randy Yoakum (foreground). Panthers clung to dwindling City League hopes with 79-62 win over E-M. (Photo by Mike Yates).

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT — Hartley's ability to hit 15 of 18 free throw attempts in the final, nip-and-tuck period Friday contributed largely to the Hawks' 57-53 win over DeSales (a victory that assured Hartley the OCL title). Above, Hawk cager Tim Griffin (50) backhands the ball to referee Hi Harris and heads for the charity stripe as Harris orders a guilty plea from the Stallions' Gary Wolf (51).

YOUR WEEKLY KNIT CLINIC

FOR SKI ENTHUSIASTS and for everyone else who likes to be warm and cuddly, Edy Williams, television actress, is modeling this bulky, attractive, fast-to-knit sweater which is pattern 138. The body of the sweater features an easy to knit pattern stitch which gives the garment a material look. The unusual long ribbed cuff seems to disappear under the bell-type sleeve, yet is part of the sleeve which is knitted in one piece. The neck of the sweater features a mandarin collar. We went a step further and trimmed the sweater with not real fur, but a knitted pattern stitch which when completed looks like the real thing — well, almost! Sweater, hood and fur instructions are included on pattern 138. Cost is $1. Illustrated instructions are written in sizes 10 through 20. All sizes are included on one pattern. Pants pattern 135 will transform this lovely sweater into a stunning outfit. Instructions come in sizes eight through 18. Price is 75 cents. To obtain pattern 138 or pattern 135, send $1 for 138 and 75 cents for pattern 135 in coin, check or money order to: Ursula duBois, The Spectator Newspapers, Box 8307, Van Nuys, Calif. 91407.

Dear Miss duBois: One of my knit garments has the habit of curling up at the seam edges after I wash it. No matter how carefully I try to block it, it still keeps curling upwards instead of laying nice and flat. Mrs. L. Howard, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dear Mrs. Howard: I have a hunch that on this particular garment of yours the finishing does not comply with the natural elasticity of the garment. It was either sewn too tight, or if the garment has a crochet edge, the crochet was worked too tight.

Try the following: When the garment is dry, spray the edge with spraystarch on the outside of the garment at the problem spots. Then, using a lukewarm iron, dry the garment. Be sure to apply the iron on the inside of the garment.

Dear Miss duBois: I received a lovely long sleeved sweater as a gift. It has a ribbed cuff at the sleeves, otherwise the sleeves are knitted plain. Unfortunately my arms are much shorter than the length of the sleeves. Please tell me how I can shorten the sleeves. Mrs. F. Williams, Orlando, Fla.

Dear Mrs. Williams: Let's say your sleeves are too long by three inches. Therefore cut into the stitch three inches after the ribbing and carefully pull out this stitch across the row. This will leave you a row of open stitches. Now you have two choices of refinishing. One — Place the open stitches from the sleeves onto a knitting needle and reknit the cuff ribbing with the unraveled yarn or (two) unravel the excess of rows to the cuff ribbing and weave the cuff back onto the garment. This latter step is especially advisable if the garment is a bought sweater as on those garments the seam is sewn together by machine and therefore usually cut which means that you would have only short pieces of yarn to work with.

Miss duBois welcomes mail from readers but cannot give a personal answer. She will discuss and pass on the most interesting questions and hints.

'Church Before School' Lures Bexley Teenagers

Bexley teenagers began a unique Lenten program today —giving up their Wednesday morning sleep to attend a high school service at St. Alban's Episcopal Church.

Today's service was the first in a series of "Church Before School" programs sponsored by four Bexley area churches for students of five eastern area high schools.

Students from Eastmoor, Bexley, Walnut Ridge, Academy and Columbus School for Girls will participate in services at Christ Lutheran Church on Feb. 15, St. Alban's on Feb. 22, Brookwood Presbyterian Church on March 1 and March 8 and Bexley Methodist Church on March 15.

The 15-minute services will be performed by the high school students themselves. Rev. Eugene Fogt, chaplain of Capital University, was guest speaker today and will speak at the next two services. Jerry Glick, government instructor at Walnut Ridge and advisor to the youth group at Bexley Methodist, will speak at the final three sessions. Each service will begin at 7:15 a.m.

SupeRx Opens New Store At 3661 East Main Street

SupeRx Drugs, Inc., has opened its newest unit next to Zayre's department store at 3661 E. Main-st in Whitehall.

Edward Chevrier, manager of the new SupeRx Drug Store, indicated the store was designed "to build in the features and services most requested by shoppers."

"Surveys of women, who do most of the drug store shopping, show that they most desire friendly interested clerks, prompt and reliable prescription services, low prices, convenient location and plenty of nearby parking space," Chevrier said. "They also ask for clean-looking stores with wide, roomy aisles, and they especially want fast checkstand service."

Chevrier said SupeRx tries to meet customer needs by carefully choosing its employes "from people who are residents of the community in which the store is located and who enjoy working with their friends and neighbors."

He said customers are welcome to browse through the store to inspect its more than 22,000 items.

Chevrier is a licensed pharmacist, having graduated from Western Reserve in 1949. He has 17 years experience in retail pharmacy work. He is a member of the Central Ohio Pharmacists' Association and North Broadway Methodist Church. He is married and the father of three children and resides at 58 E. Longview-av.

On duty as pharmacist will be Stanley Dolinger, a 1963 graduate of Ohio State University.

Other features cited by Chevrier include "aggressively competitive prices," a full-time beauty consultant, color-keyed decor and fast checkout service.

The store will be open from 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, and 10 a.m.-7 p.m. Sunday.

CONTROVERSIAL TEXT

Although California education officials have accepted and ordered 450,000 copies of a controversial — and now heavily edited — American history textbook, right-wing extremists are continuing efforts to pressure local school boards to ban the book. Critics have claimed the book "promotes" the United Nations, is "pro-Communist" and overemphasizes negative aspects of history.

Bexley To Choose Outstanding Family

Look for a new feature of next year's Fourth of July celebration in Bexley—selection of Bexley's outstanding family.

Al Wing, president of the Bexley Celebrations Association, announced that each BCA-affiliated organization would be invited to nominate a family for the honor. The three finalists will ride in the BCA Independence Day parade, and the winner will be named at the evening program at Bexley High School Stadium.

Nominated families must live in Berley and include at least three persons, including one parent, all living at home or unmarried and serving in the Armed Forces

ATTEND SCHOOL

Some 160 noncollege-bound 12th graders from Cincinnati and Columbus may continue their education this fall through an Ohio State University project of counseling and guidance. The 160 will be chosen from over 2,500 seniors on the basis of motivation, intelligence, creativity and financial need.

ON GETTING YOUNGER
Wonderful things are happening in the world of beauty today. We used to hear a lot about Geriatrics (the science of slowing down the aging process). Today the talk is all about Gerontology which is the reversing of the aging of the human body. Enormous strides have been made. How wonderful it will be if the time comes when it is merely a confession of laziness for a woman to say "I'm not getting any younger."
FACE FACTS AND YOUR HAIR
The designing of a hairstyle is influenced in some respects by the shape of the outer frame of our patron's face, but the arrangement and size of the features within the outer frame also greatly affect the design. We always remember that each woman is an original and that no two faces can be typed with any cookie-cutter definiteness. Even in the matter of fashion dictum we believe it's better to enhance a person's individuality than to follow fashion slavishly.
DON'T BE A CRYBABY
After all tears won't do any good if you've messed up your hair AND your bathroom with do-it-yourselfer beauty products. If you have fallen for some persuasive advertising and are disgruntled to discover that professional beauty services don't come in a bottle just chalk it up to experience and give us a ring. We'll help you straighten your hair out but you'll have to do your bathroom yourself. And we promise not to be sarcastic or say "I told you so!"
CAN WRINKLES BE EXERCISED AWAY?
There has been so much to-do lately about facial exercises to correct wrinkles that I decided to try to track down the truth for you. It seems it all started with a book that was written on the subject of facial isometrics. I am sorry to say that I have been forced to conclude that the results are not apt to be encouraging. The fact is that wrinkling is not entirely the result of sagging muscles. As we grow older the skeletal framework of the face and the skin itself become thinner. Also the skin loses its youthful elasticity and no amount of exercising can restore it.
CHANGING FASHIONS
Take lips for instance. Remember the Clara Bow tiny rosebud mouth and then the wide, full bright mouth of the early Joan Crawford era, and finally the colorless Sophia Loren look.
HEARD UNDER THE DRYER
How about the label on a fish [illegible] in the Boston post office: "If not delivered in five days, never [illegible]."

Hawks—

champs lost to the Hawks 69-56.

The Hartley press works better under pressure than anything else as comebacks pulled them out of the fire a number of times. That five point one against DeSales was matched by a 10 point comeback (40-30) against the Stallions during the first meeting when Denny Parker bucketed a 15 foot jumper in the last second to win 51-50.

Watterson had the tempo and a 43-41 lead when Hartley started back on a 12-2 run to gain at least a title share two weeks ago.

"We just make up for desire what we lack in talent," Geyer said, "last year we won the league because of talent but this year we had the desire."

The desire and the uncrackable, remarkable Parkers — Rod and Denny who have accounted for 517 of Hartley's 1,037 points. The Parkers clearly make up the offensive unit with Rodney getting some second shots and Denney's uncanny passing that gives teammates easy lay-ins.

More than once has Denny, the Hawks captain, passed up a sure shot because a mate has been a step closer.

But the Parkers couldn't do the job alone. Irwin packs more punch into a six-foot frame than the CCL has had in a long time. He has a 117 point total and probably as many gained possessions.

Brewer at 6-2 has often been called on to handle chores (like bugging DeSales 6-7 Gary Wolf) that much taller men should be doing. Brewer, who managed five for six foul shots in the final quarter Friday night, along with Irwin, who netted six of eight, were instrumental in the comeback.

Griffin got the starting nod following Trapp's injury and has proven himself ever since. Tim has 60 points in 10 games, counting seven starting roles, including an important 10 in the DeSales win.

Trapp has 66 points and gave Hartley valuable help on the boards with his 6-2 frame. He has been seeing limited action as of late.

Against Ready Friday the Hawks go for their 12 straight Catholic loop win and 21st win in 22 games.

That's the CCL champion, a team that gets a kick out of pressing.

And next season an encore will be asked for three straight Central Catholic League crowns — they are already saying that Hartley (losing four of the starting six) won't be in the running.

But that is what they said after winning the second straight title a year ago.

Joyce Elected Head Of Bexley Association

John B. Joyce, 2525 Sherwood-rd, is the new president of the Bexley Civic Improvement Association.

Joyce was elected at the annual meeting of the BCIA to succeed the retiring William Birch, who was president for five years.

Also elected were Richard Bohl, Jr., 814 Francis-av, vice-president; Bradley Salt, 2600 Fair-av, secretary; John M. Zahn, 54 N. Ardmore, treasurer and Maxine Porter, 666 S. Remington, financial secretary.

The meeting also featured a report by James Click, manager of the Bexley Pool, who said that more than 100,000 swimmers passed through the turnstiles during the summer.

Click said the outstanding service provided by the pool was the offering of free swimming instruction to more than 700 Bexley youngsters.

He said plans are being made to open the pool on May 30 this year and to extend evening swimming hours.

Entertainment Notes

"My first piano lesson was on my sixth birthday and I have lived with it or it with me, ever since,"

That statement typifies the life of Charlie Pickens, now appearing at the Olentangy Inn.

At one time Pickens played piano with a 12-piece dixieland band, but is more familiar to his fans for appearing with the "Charlie Pickens Trio" for six years.

Although he has traveled quite extensively throughout the United States, Pickens has quite a lot to say of Columbus. "Couldn't buy the kind of acceptance I've gotten here." Wherever he plays in Columbus, familiar faces are frequent in the nightly audiences.

Charlie is now appearing at Olentangy Inn six evenings a week, with vocalist Ellie Russel.

Miss Russel has just returned from Florida where she sang at Key West for an extensive engagement. She has been singing professionally for 10 years and is one of the more sincere performers around town. She can really belt out a song.

Both entertainers are packing the cocktail lounge area of Olentangy Inn.

William Buckbinder is announcing the start of a new policy at Olentangy Inn this week.

Entitled "Dinner Of The Month Club," this plan will entitle members to a minimum charge for 12 dinners. Phone Buckbinder at 486-0323 or write him at 1676 Elmwood-av, Columbus 43212, for details.

And So It Grows

If you had to wrestle with some disease problems in your home garden last year, here are some recommendations by Extension plant pathologists to help you control the problem.

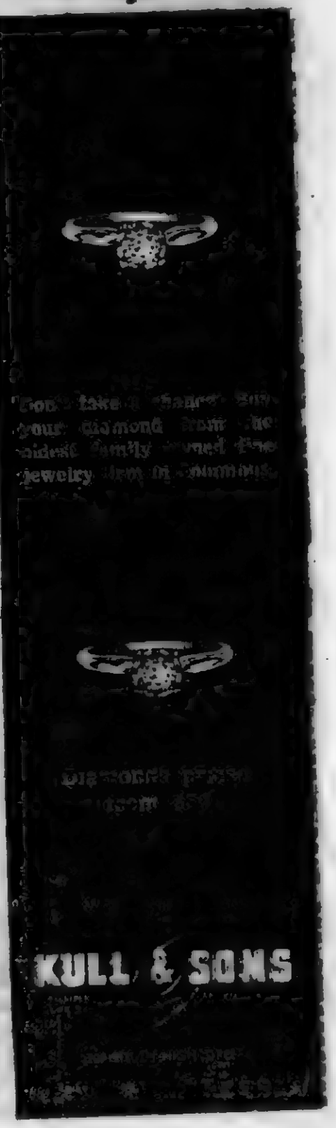
- Plant resistant varieties.
- Use certified seed or disease free transplant.
- Treat seed or buy it already treated.
- Rotate your garden area or the plants in it.
- Spray or dust with an effective fungicide.
- Control weeds since many harbor disease.
- Dispose of plant refuse.

Follow the manufacturers' directions for treating seed if you do it yourself. Use such chemicals as thiram (Arasan, Thiram, Tersan), chloranil (Spergon), or captan (Captan 50W, Orthocide 50W).

Nitrogen usually is the only fertilizer element needed by newly planted fruit trees. Wait until new growth begins and then apply two to three ounces of a 16 percent nitrogen carrier, or its equivalent, for each tree. Scatter the fertilizer in a ring about a foot away from the trunk.

In the latest Yearbook on Agriculture, Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman points out that our food abundance is one of the miracles of the age, but it didn't just happen. He says, "We have to fight 10,000 kinds of insects for our foods. We have to combat 1,500 plant diseases and 250 animal diseases. We have to fight spoilage and decay."

But he says the results are evident. In the U. S., food quality is high, abundance great, and the cost relatively low. Overseas the U.S. has supplied 98 percent of the food received by the less developed countries.



Porous or glazed clay flower pots can be re-used repeatedly for planting, transplanting, or decorating if they're kept clean and scale free. They need to be scrubbed thoroughly and often with hot suds—for good appearance, and also because dirt residue often contains disease-causing organisms that possibly destroyed the previous plant.

Use a stiff bristled or wire brush and lather the pots and saucers. Very dirty pots may need to be soaked for a few hours in a pail of hot suds to loosen the caked earth or white film which collects on porous clay surfaces. Rinse several times and set in the sun to dry.

Ever wonder why the new leaves on a splitleaf philodendron have fewer or no splits? O.S.U. Extension floriculturists say this condition results from the plant either getting too low light intensity or improper watering or both.

Raiders Seek 'Proof' Friday At T-V

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

With the 1966-'67 Metropolitan League basketball title already safely tucked away, Bill Borland's Raiders have only one thing left to prove—that they could have won that title all by themselves.

The proof of the pudding will come Friday night when Reynoldsburg journeys into the never-never land of Pickaway County from whence many a quintet has returned talking to itself.

A VICTORY over Teays Valley would have to be anticlimactic since Whitehall's Rams bumped the Vikings right out of the title picture last weekend with a 88-56 setback.

"We'd like to go home clean (10-0 in league play)," coach Borland confessed this week. "But it's awfully tough to win down there.

"We'll just have to run them out of it (the game)," the Raider mentor continued. "We'll need two real good opening quarters.

"YOU DON'T get behind a team like Teays Valley. They play best when they get up a few points and fore you to play their ball game. We can't let that happen."

The Raiders should have another good cause to stay "up" for the trip to Ashville.

A road win Friday plus a final game home victory Saturday over Mifflin (3-13) would close out the '66-'67 campaign to thetune of 14-4 or several levels up over last season's 13-6 mark.

BUT THE Vikings, who have now lost two straight games (first time this season) would like nothing better than to hand Reynoldsburg's its sole loop loss.

T-V (9-6) has the ammo to do just that in a well-balanced scoring attack which features 6-5 center Rod Teets (averaging just under 20 points per game).

Borland admitted the trip to Ashville would be a bit more comfortable with "the monkey off our backs."

The Raiders—arriving back from an 84-49 win over Hamilton Township Friday—received word of Whitehall's upset via scouts in the parking lot, jumping up and down with their glad tidings.

IT WAS ironic that Whitehall should provide the assist—no other Metro quintet seemingly more unlikely to do the Raiders a favor than the Rams.

In fact, a pair of single-point setbacks to Reynoldsburg (and another to Pleasant View) earlier this season actually cost Whitehall a clear-cut title of its own.

Reynoldsburg's loop win over H-T Friday turned out to be impressive—after the Raiders got some mighty chilly first period shooting.

THE RAIDERS outdid their hosts in every department but free throw percentage, pacing rebounding (96-42) and field shots (34 for 69, 50 percent to 19 for 65, 29 percent).

The Rangers' 32 turnovers exceeded Reynoldsburg's 29.

Gary Shade paced local scoring with 23 points but Borland also had big back-pats for John Grayem (hit eight of 16 field attempts for 17 points) and Glenn Turner (dropped through four of six attempts).

Sports Season Recalls Memories Of Mason Hall

By ISA BARRETT
Reynoldsburg Correspondent

Now that the basketball season is in full swing, and we watch Ohio State on TV as well as following the local high school team, we wonder how many people remember the first basketball team Reynoldsburg High School had.

Very few, perhaps, because it was about 1905. There was no gymnasium in the school so the boys played in Mason Hall, which was the floor above the Connell Hardware Store. It had no connection with the Masonic Order but was owned by a family by the name of Mason. The hall was the center of activity in Reynoldsburg.

On the north end was a stage with dressing rooms on either side. On the east side was the stairway and in the middle about six or eight huge posts, so the boys played ball around the posts. Considering all the handicaps, they had a fairly good team. There were just five players — Arthur Phaler, Murphy Deherty, Earl McClure, Joe Strane and Raymond Palmer.

Phaler is the only one still living in this community. Joe Strane is in Pennsylvania, Murphy Deherty is in Cincinnati and the other two have died.

The school had other activities in Mason Hall as well as basketball. The high school commencement was held there until the present junior high school building was built and with it an adequate gymnasium.

The hall accommodated a lot of people but had its bad points. If a spectator sat behind a post, he couldn't see, and if he sat behind the stairway he couldn't hear. There were never enough chairs so whenever the school had something going on, the students were dismissed, and each carried a chair down to the hall. The next day the chairs had to be carried back upstairs.

Mason Hall holds a lot of memories for a lot of people.

COMMUNITY LEADERS TAKE AN INSIDE LOOK

Visit To Welfare Home A Jolt

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

It is easy to point an accusing finger at those on welfare.

Personally struggling to "row their own boat," many Columbusites instinctively resent tax dollars spent to support those whom they suspect are taking "the easy way out."

LAST WEEK a handful of business leaders, legislators and members of the news media were jolted out of this type of thinking.

After accompanying a case worker on his or her rounds, few of them will any longer be able to comfortably ignore the problems created by Ohio's inadequate welfare.

The visitation program was sponsored by the United Community Council.

AND FROM the reactions of the guests, it was a success.

Almost without exception they returned to a dinner discussion meeting a little "shook."

No longer can they soothe their consciences by telling themselves "welfare is an easy, work-free way of life."

NEITHER CAN they kid themselves into believing 73 cents a day is enough to support the basic needs of an individual.

And, perhaps most important of all, they learned that a person "on welfare" doesn't live in a world apart.

Many of the problems encountered are no strangers on Country Club row.

One mother shows concern over her son's hearing difficulty and another worries because her 14-year-old daughter is "boy crazy."

A frail woman, confined to bed with a threatened miscarriage, tries to reconcile her physician's counsel on birth control with the creed of her church, and another has in-law problems.

But as they fight to cope with these common problems they also wage the day-to-day battle of trying to live on less money than is conceded necessary to maintain the minimum standards of health and decency ($1.18 per person per day.)

ACTUALLY, what struck most visitors as they made the tour was how well those on welfare do with so very little.

Almost without exception, the interiors of the homes were immaculate, although some of the housing owned by "slum lords" created the impression a 20-mile wind would spell its demise.

Particularly interesting was the story of one young mother of four whose husband pulled a disappearing act over a year ago. His custom of using her as a punching bag made his departure less than tragic for her.

DETERMINED TO protect her children from the unfortunate but very real stigma of being known in the neighborhood as "welfare brats" she represents her absentee husband as "being self-employed and working from dawn to dusk," makes sure that bills are paid and shopping done circumspectly distant from the time welfare checks are mailed. She prays her postman won't "spill the beans."

Although 90 percent of those on public assistance in Ohio are unemployable (under-age, disabled, elderly or without skills) the public is critical of mothers actually able to work, staying in the home to care for their children.

One middle-aged woman explained, "I did work, until the judge told me to stay home. And I guess he was right. I only brought home $30 every two weeks and the baby sitter got most of this."

In the typical welfare family, one crisis leads to another:

A father deserted his wife and six children, which in itself created a serious sociological problem.

TOTALLY DEPENDENT on inadequate welfare grant, the mother has moved six times within the past 24 months, skipping her last month's rent in order to have the gas turned on in a new residence. Money simply couldn't be stretched to meet the rent; buy groceries and pay a winter fuel bill.

Even an experienced case worker could not budget what wasn't there and has had to watch the children's grades steadily fall as they jump every few months from one school to another.

Many persons undoubtedly feel themselves capable of handling their lives better than those who find themselves on welfare.

BUT TOM Brittenham, County Welfare Director, suggests before judging, "You walk in the shoes of those people."

"Ask yourself," he continued, "What are the work, school, church and family experiences of these people compared to mine? Where would I be if my life experiences had been theirs?"

One legislator, Robert G. Jones, who is fighting for increased welfare payments, quoted Robert Frost in his entreaty for the public to fight this war which belongs not only to the poor but to the community.

"THAT WHICH we withhold from ourselves leaves us weak."

If more people were able to enter the homes visited last week they might reject the myths of welfare and stop withholding themselves from the facts.

That is, most simply stated, it is a human and moral issue to insist welfare standards be raised to 100 percent of minimum standards immediately.

Haytcher 'Not Surprised' By Sunday Liquor Sales

Whitehall Mayor Paul J. Haytcher "wasn't at all surprised" Sunday when only five of the 15 liquor spots which normally stay open on Sunday shut their doors as part of a voluntary agreement.

Haytcher told The Spectator that he hadn't expected too many results from a letter he received from James Joseph, president of the Whitehall Permit Holders Association, promising that liquor spots would voluntarily close on Sundays beginning last Sunday.

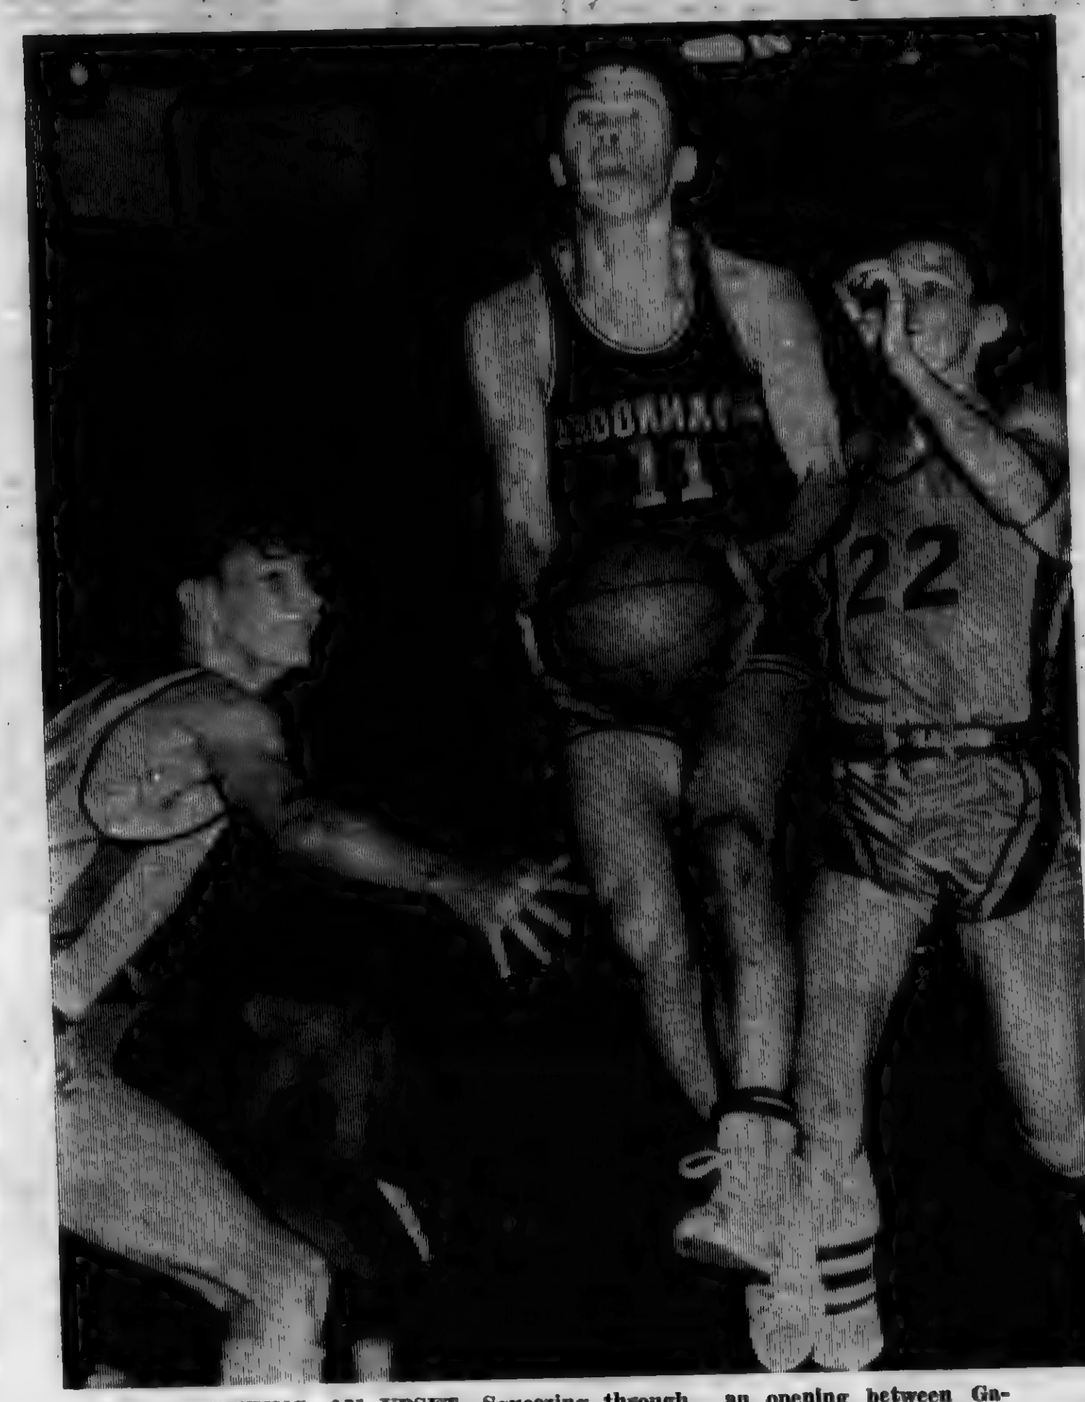
"I didn't think it would do much good," the mayor said, and indicated his feelings were confirmed when only eight of the city's 18 permit holders closed on Sunday. Three of them have traditionally been closed on Sundays in the past.

Closing down voluntarily last Sunday were the Boat House, the Brass Rail, the Coachman, the Bachelor and the Lady Bird Lounge, all located on that section of E. Main Street nicknamed "The Strip."

On Friday, Haytcher vetoed a council-passed resolution which asked the liquor permit holders to close on Sunday.

"I felt it was 'cellophane legislation' — that it had no teeth and wouldn't do any good," Haytcher said, explaining his veto. He predicated that council would not vote to override the veto on the resolution, introduced by Republican Mayoral candidate Lester Ballenger.

"Our big problem is still at the state level," Haytcher said. "Our oversaturation and failure to effectively oppose new permits can only be blamed on the laxity of state liquor laws."



Haytcher has been a leader in the Ohio Municipal League's fight to give more say to local governments in the location of liquor permits.

Raider Battle Cry: Hold That Tiger!

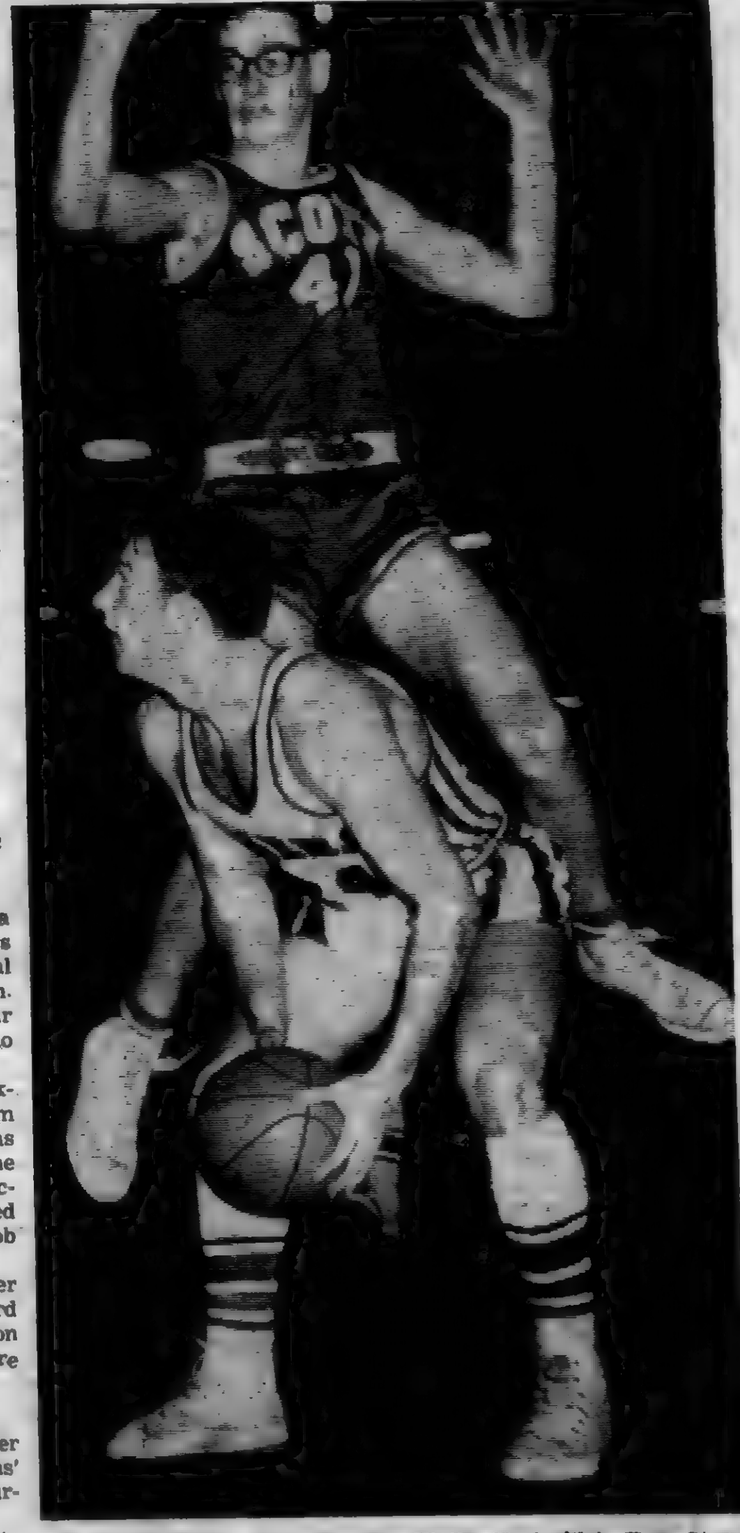
Bill Borland has something in common with Albert Einstein this week.

Einstein faced a pretty difficult task in formulating his theory of relativity and Borland (and his Raider five) have a difficult formula to work out tonight on quite an unrelated subject — Columbus East.

AL'S FORMULA turned out be to a winner. Time (and execution) will tell regarding Reynoldsburg's chances of doing likewise in the District AA tourney.

Borland and his crew of spunky Raiders will bring the equation out of the laboratory tonight at 7:30 as the second of three acts before a Coliseum gathering.



Borland's formula reads simply: (1) prevent their running game. Slow down the tempo — but no stall; (2) break the Tigers' press; (3) do not allow second and third attempts at the basket; (4) get hot from the field; (5) hope that the referees are benevolent and get everyone praying for the Raiders.

NOBODY'S unbeatable and neither is East. But it might be said that — so far this campaign — Bob Hart's Tigers have been tougher to demise than just about everybody else in the state.

The Bengals' number one rating, a clean 16-0 slate and the widest points - for - points against separation in Franklin County help attest to that fact.

East is regarded as a "set-up, pattern" type of ball club rather than the breezy, fast-break five most people have

Standouts Sparkle In Opening AA Contests

By BOB WHITMAN

With Teays Valley coming from as many as 20 points behind and breathing heavily down Eastmoor's neck, Bill Hoy, a 6-3 senior sub spelling Warrior pivot ace Jack Parry who was in serious foul trouble canned four straight buckets to bail the falling Warriors out of a bind and give them a 67-54 lead with less than two minutes remaining.

Hoy's sparkling effort was only one of many such performances thus far in Central District Class AA action at Cooper's Arena this past week.

EASTMOOR gained a second round berth with its eventual 73-59 handling of Russ Gregg's Vikings as guards Randy Yoakum and Lance Grear pitched in for Eric Walz (who was limited to four points) to make Hoy's heroics possible.

Said Warrior coach Red Courtney: "Our bench really helped us out tonight with Hoy playing for all his worth and coming through when we needed him."

THE TOURNAMENT wasn't 32 minutes old before an individual performance of note was turned in by Ready's Tommy Jackson, who bucketed 28 points in Ready's 94-47 romp over Washington Court House.

Jackson's maneuvering and the 28 point play of Watterson's sophomore center Ben Melancon the next night out as the Eagles throttled Hilliard 76-36 weren't needed as much as Hoy's effort nor those of Buckeye Valley's (18-1) Roger Garrison, Marion Franklin's Dana Zartman and Brookhaven's Roger Edens.

GARRISON, limited to a pair in the first three periods, started threading the needle with sharp passing and clutch-36 command which they never shooting during the Barons' pull away from Bexley Saturday evening.

A sharp Garrison feed to Barry Zwick put BV up 42-36 with 5:44 remaining and two straight Garrison goals gave the Delaware Countians a 44-

For the second season in a row, Hartley's Parker brothers have dominated the all-Central Catholic League first team. Only this season one of their first names was changed to bar a monopoly.

Standout guard Denny Parker repeated on the first team as older brother Doug was named last season. This time younger brother Rodney, a second teamer last year, moved up to the starting forward job on the CCL dream team.

DeSales' talented 6-7 center Gary Wolf, Ready's forward John Bennett and Watterson ball-of-fire Rocky Amicon were other first team selections.

Welfare Hikes Needed Now

Thousands of children in Ohio will go to bed tonight with hunger gnawing at their stomachs.

Thousands of mothers will awake in the morning to another day of bleak, hopeless poverty. They will send their embarrassed children off to school in clothing that instantly identifies them as the welfare poor.

Most of these youths will drop out of school before they finish even a minimum education so they can work at meager jobs to help support their families — forging another link in the endless chain of poverty.

The state of Ohio can help to break that chain.

State authorities determined years ago what the minimum requirements were for mere subsistence. Now the state provides only about 70 percent of what is necessary for the minimum maintenance of existence.

Chief attention in the state legislature is the perpetuation of current seats through reapportionment and a billion dollar bonding authority to build monuments to the incumbent administration.

If there is a return to human warehousing in the state's mental hospitals, you don't read about it.

That "profit is not a dirty word in Ohio" is well-publicized.

If the current session of the Ohio legislature does not accomplish another thing it can write its way into history by raising welfare payments to 100 percent of minimum standards.

It's a need which can no longer in good conscience be denied.

The Spectator Newspapers urge the legislature to meet its responsibility, and it calls particularly upon those elected representatives of Franklin County to take the lead in that humane cause.

Real Statesmanship

It's a good thing sometimes that politicians are not as naive as editorial writers.

It was recently suggested in a local newspaper editorial that Democrats in the state legislature should compromise with Republicans and allow Governor Rhodes' Ohio Bond Commission proposal to go on the May 2 ballot.

The editorial points out this would save the state $1.3 million because of the greater cost of a special election in June. It adds the Democrats could gain two seats on the five-member apportionment board by this artful compromise. And avoid being "obstructionists."

Now, as any working politician knows, two seats on a bi-partisan five-member board are about as useless as a lobbyist without a credit card.

If there are any "statesmen" in the Ohio legislature, Republican or Democrat, they will hold out for a November vote on the bond proposal in order that a fair share of the state's citizens can pass on the issue.

That way most of the additional costs of an election can be saved.

Fight Heart Disease

This Sunday is Heart Sunday in Franklin County, and hundreds of volunteers will be knocking on doors soliciting for the fight to stop this nation's most dreaded killer.

Heart disease kills more Americans than any other single cause each year. It ravages the young and old alike and can strike without warning anywhere.

The Spectator Newspapers urge their readers to open their hearts to support the 1967 Heart Fund campaign.

The Student Prince

Johnson Should Act

By ROBERT BURDOCK
Editor and Publisher

BURDOCK

It is the responsibility of Franklin County Prosecutor C. Howard Johnson, when he has reason to believe a crime has been committed, to investigate and present his findings to the grand jury.

There is more than ample evidence included in charges made by Board of Elections Chairman Thomas Williams that state election laws were violated in the last election.

Just because the elections board cannot muster the votes to formally ask for an investigation is no excuse for Johnson's failure to act.

Johnson has a clear-cut duty under the law and his oath of office to act independently of the elections board and if he fails to do so it is a clear cut indication that Johnson is motivated more by political considerations than he is by his sworn duty to the law.

Admittedly, Ohio election laws are notoriously weak and need strengthening by the legislature. But when clear cut violations of existing laws are made public and officials refused to act the law itself becomes a farce.

Who is to decide when the law will be enforced and when it will be conveniently ignored? Is Franklin County an exception to the high premise that this is a nation of laws and not of men?

The law also provides that when a county prosecutor fails to act on an obvious violation of the law that the attorney general of the state can ask for a special grand jury.

It will be interesting for voters to watch just how far dereliction of duty can be excused under the flimsy veil of "politics."

Glad To Help

To The Editor:

We want to thank you for your editorial which appeared in the Wednesday, Feb. 1, 1967, issue of The Spectator. The editorial was entitled, "Who are the Chiselers?"

We feel that the editorial demonstrated most clearly that the percentage of fraud in welfare cases is very low. But more than that, it illustrated the fact that welfare clients are not "different" than other persons in the community. We are trying very hard not to perpetuate this notion, and support such as you have given us certainly assists us in our goals.

Thank you again.

Sylvia Brooks
Public Relations Director
County Welfare Department

CAP Needs Members

To the Editor:

The members of Whitehall Squadron 803 of the Civil Air Patrol wish to thank the Spectator for telling of our project to rebuild our airplane in the Jan. 18 issue. As a result, several interested teenagers and adults attended our open house on Jan. 19. We are continuing to build our membership, and good publicity is essential to our efforts.

We feel that the Civil Air Patrol has much to offer to young people who are willing to work to better themselves and serve their community. Even such a project as the rebuilding of our plane is an indirect contribution to our search and rescue operations.

Anyone desiring more information may call 235-6327 or 237-1750.

Fight A Tragedy

To The Editor:

What a tragedy it is when a high school basketball game leads to a near-rumble like almost happened Friday night at the Graceland Shopping Center.

It is so incongruous to imagine that some of our finest youth playing their hearts out for their schools should be used as an excuse for young toughs to take their frustrations out on each other.

Let us just hope that the sport itself will not be hurt by these childish performances by some of our high school boys.

barry goldwater ★ No Regret For Treaty Vote ★

GOLDWATER

In view of today's debates and difficulties regarding a treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons, I am asked often whether I ever regret my vote against the original test ban treaty back in 1963.

Let me answer as clearly as possible.

No, I do not regret my vote. If I had to vote on the treaty today, I would vote against it again.

Although I have not checked, I feel sure that the majority of the 19 senators who voted against the test ban treaty share my position. I am willing to bet that, at least privately, many of the senators who voted for the treaty are far more dubious about their position.

Cold facts continue to argue against the test ban treaty and suggest that the inability of this nation to test, particularly, nuclear defenses in the atmosphere is creating a growing survival gap between us and the Soviet Union.

The Soviets, now widely and officially admitted, are deploying an antiballistic missile system around its key cities.

The significance of such a system can be imagined by looking at our own Department of Defense estimates that as many as 90 million Americans might be saved by a missile defense ring of our own in case of a nuclear missile attack.

The significance of such a system is easily imagined. So long as this nation maintains a nuclear superiority it has a shield to oppose the aggressions which continue to be a fundamental fact of Soviet life.

Shifting the balance toward the Soviets would be a go-ahead for bigger and better Red wars. That balance can shift by either producing more and better offensive weapons or by producing a good defense. The most likely shift factor today seems to be in the defense area.

This fact has everything to do with that ill-starred and ill-conceived test ban treaty. I am not against a halt to nuclear testing in a peaceful world. But our world is not peaceful, and the surest way to war is to become so weak in our weapons that we will encourage more and more reckless Red aggression.

Given a world in which there are two super powers, one non-aggressive, and proven so, and one aggressive, and proven so, it should be obvious that our strength of arms on the non-aggressive side is the best hope for keeping the flames from engulfing us all and the best hope for buying the time in which all men can come to agree to settle differences rationally rather than violently.

Under the nuclear test ban treaty, however, there is a lopsided situation. Just prior to the test ban, the Soviets had tested some massive nuclear blasts, many times larger than any ever tested here. Also, there is evidence that they tested, in the environment of those blasts, some ballistic missiles.

There is considerable data to suggest that the best defense against incoming ballistic missiles may be to set-off a big, high-altitude nuclear blast which, in turn, will produce a sort of radiation "shield" that will upset the guidance of the enemy missiles.

This may well be the key to current Soviet defense plans. It cannot be the key to ours because we are unable to test it under the test ban treaty.

william s. white ★ Who's Advising Bobby? ★

WHITE

An increasingly angry question — "Who the hell is advising Bobby?" — is rising from the more mature backers of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in the light of a lenghtening series of severe setbacks for his Presidential aspirations.

His trumpeted grand tour of Europe, in which he appeared to treat with foreign heads of state as though he were a one-man American State Department, has done him great harm. And it has again embarrassed his own government by forcing a tired, umpteenth declaration by Secretary of State Dean Rusk of two plain realities.

The first is that, notwithstanding all manner of peacenik propaganda whispers, the North Vietnamese Communists have given not the slightest sign of any willingness to negotiate on any remotely honest terms.

The second is that the United States has not the smallest intention of making the Communists a gift of a permanent halt to our bombing in the absence of any abatement whatever in their own assaults on South Vietnam.

It is unclear as to just who is responsible for the baseless tale spread around the world that Kennedy was returning here with some kind of third-hand Communist peace feeler somehow obtained in his cordial consultations with the world's most bitterly anti-American statesman outside the Communist bloc itself, President Charles de Gaulle of France. Kennedy brought no such feeler and frankly said as much. Some of his friends now say that this absurd and damaging hoax was fathered by some bureaucrat anxious to do something good for the Senator.

What Senator Kennedy is doing, and has long been doing, is departing profoundly from both the convicitions and the record of his late brother, President John F. Kennedy. Long since the Senator has become a part-time dove on Vietnam, where his brother was a resolute hawk, albeit a prudent and sensible one, all the time. And now, as to Red China, the division between the two brothers could not be wider.

John F. Kennedy, to this columnist's direct knowledge, had a good deal of sympathy for the strategy which the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur had wanted to apply against Chinese Communist expansionism — that is, an all-out, all-guns thrust right into North Korea that would have been "escalation" to a degree not dreamed of by the most hawkish of hawks today on Vietnam.

As to "Who is advising Bobby?" this is open only to informed guess, since every politician's sources of advice are held pretty closely by him. This correspondent's belief — not lightly reached nor grabbed out of thin air — is that Senator Kennedy's critical advice is coming from two men who served his late brother but were at no time permitted by that brother to have any decisive hand in high foreign policy — Prof. Arthur Schlesinger Jr. and Richard Goodwin.

These gentlemen are presently seated, in the formal sense, in academic chairs, but they are demonstrably spending far more time on non-academic pursuits — in behalf of Senator Kennedy's ultimate Presidential campaign. Each is a splendid writer; neither has ever been a wise politician. But both are nevertheless displacing some of the tried and able professionals who always advised John F. Kennedy and also used to advise Robert F. Kennedy.

marquis childs ★ Glimmer Of Light In Arms Race ★

CHILDS

At the end of that long tunnel there is a glimmer of light. Not only are the chances of ratification for the consular treaty with the Soviet Union improved but another and more significant step looks increasingly possible.

With considerable progress on wording already achieved, the 17-nation disarmament conference will resume work later this month on the treaty to stop the spread of nuclear weapons. The task of untangling the special concerns — fears, jealousies, rivalries — of a half-dozen powers on the verge of qualifying for membership in the nuclear club is still a formidable one.

But if the signs are read correctly this is not impossible in light of the readiness of both the Soviet Union and the United States to come to an agreement. Moscow is said to feel that this is no longer merely a matter of demonstrating a willingness to get along with the United States and abate the nuclear arms race. The Soviets believe the treaty is a last chance to prevent sixth, seventh and eighth powers from acquiring the ultimate weapon and thereby increasing the odds of nuclear war.

Equally important, West German doubts over the handicap the treaty would impose seem on the way to being resolved following Foreign Minister Willy Brandt's visit here. The link between big-power status and the atom and the question of peaceful use of nuclear explosives have been the obstacles in the way of agreement among the Western powers.

Suspicion, mystery, the troubled, twisting maze extending back to that first blinding flash on the New Mexican desert now more than 20 years ago, this is the shadow hanging over the conferees — around the green baize table in Geneva. The fact little understood is that peacetime use of nuclear explosives on a large scale—to dig a second Panama Canal, for example — calls for a nuclear development as sophisticated as that for the most-advanced weapons.

By forswearing such weapons the powers signing the treaty would also forswear development of the capacity to alter the landscape for some beneficent end. Recognizing this, the United States is proposing that the powers with this capacity — only the United States and the Soviet Union — be given under the treaty the right to lend-lease it to others.

As suggested by William C. Foster, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, this could be done under strict international supervision. The authority of the International Atomic Energy Agency, which has been policing nuclear reactors and other limited peaceful uses for years, could be broadened. This would be the answer to West Germany, India and other nations demanding to know why they are being left out when they already have a nuclear potential. Needless to say, development of the nuclear explosive to the point where it could be used to dig a Panama Canal or blast away a face of the Himalayas costs astronomical sums.

So the hope grows that a way out of the nuclear maze will be found. It is very late. Red China spurns the nonproliferation treaty. A half-dozen powers could qualify for the club in 12 to 18 months. Yet, if a start is made, the race to get into the nuclear act may be halted.

IN & AROUND TOWN

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

TWO SUSPECTS GRILLED

THERE ARE NO straight answers here as murder suspects Jean Jones and Dick Newell (center) face the probing questions of a police inspector played by Jim Dippel. This is a scene from the Little Theatre Off Broadway's production of "Catch Me If You Can," the popular mystery-comedy to be staged March 3 and 4 at 8:30 p.m. in the Brookpark Junior High School auditorium, Grove City. Tickets will be available at the door.

Produce 'Snow White, Red Rose'

An enterprising community theater group, Prairie Players, has produced a children's play entitled "Snow White, Rose Red."

This undertaking, which is for sale to elementary schools and the like, has some very classy musical arrangements by Bill Metaxas with lyrics by Jean Shortridge.

Costumes are designed as is the play to entrance and enhance the children. It works — to a point.

This distracting point is projection which is lacking at all times, especially while singing. The only exception to this is George Gillen as the Dwarf. In his ranting scenes, lines run together and are not clear.

The set is designed and constructed with apparent "know-how." Unique "insert" for a story told by a bear in the home of "Snow White" and "Rose Red" is not only clever but certainly makes for an easier interpretation on the part of the audience.

Certainly an atmosphere of fairy tale land is created by the cast, and yet the acting, lines and projection need polish.

Bob Henry takes his acting serious. As "O'Hara" he seemed well developed and obviously well directed.

Reverend Davidson was in character yet in many instances seemed without awareness of God. This role could have been played up more in regards to crescendo . . . building of lines and pace were almost there.

Opening should be a damp, rainy, dingy, hot night. The ingredients are there. Show time is 8:30 p.m. and tickets will be sold at the door.

Cleverly produced with children in mind, it makes for fun and culture. With work and concentration on projection this show would make a hit with the young audience. For information contact Prairie Players at 878-6255.

'Rain' Opens Tomorrow At First Community

"Rain," the play concerning Sadie Thompson's sinful life, will open tomorrow and run through Saturday at First Community Church under the auspices of Village Little Theatre. The director is Bob Weesner of WLW-C TV.

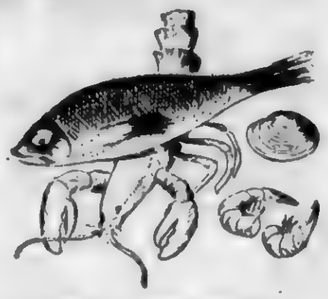
Judging from Sunday's rehearsal, the play is well rehearsed and lines are down pat. Blocking for this area style performance is picturesque, well executed.

The production crews seem incredibly conscientious in their responsibilities. Lights, set, sound, makeup and costumes were on the way to contributing to the show.

What the cast lacked in characterizations was made up by physical looks. Casting a play for appearance can be hazardous as was in this case.

Carole Gregg as "Mrs. MacPhail" is meticulous and unquestionably a professional in community theater land. Her ability to grasp feeling, lines and character is refreshing.

"Sadie," portrayed by Jean Smithe, is in full charge of the opening scenes, yet in her quieter scenes lacks "Sadie's" character. Some lines were said with lack of development. There are approximately four character stages to develop in this role. This is fulfilled, but modestly.



Billy Graham Film Scheduled For 7 Local Showings

"For Pete's Sake," a full-length color motion picture showing the work of the Billy Graham Crusade, will be shown daily March 8-12 in Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

The seven showings in five days will be sponsored by the same groups which brought Billy Graham to Jet Stadium in 1964 and the film "The Restless Ones" to the city in 1965.

Robert Sampson and Pippa Scott star in the comedy-drama set in Denver depicting the effect of Billy Graham's message on an ordinary Denver family.

Theater Notes

By CLAUDIA ELKINS

"Monkeys, Go Home," a movie geared for family viewing and pleasure from the late Walt Disney's studio, should be billed "for children only."

Although the film story has a weak plot, the major catastrophe concerns its star, Dean Jones.

Having inherited an olive farm from his mother, Jones floats through scene after scene with some of the most ridiculous acting imaginable.

Only a child could be entertained as adults are accustomed to bigger and better Walt Disney productions.

Picking olives is Jones' problem as the cost of labor eats up the profit, so here come the monkeys.

Lots of monkey shines from the monkeys, and the cast is cute, but not funny.

Maurice Chevalier portrays a priest and is, as usual, charmingly suave and French. Age is appealing here — as only Chevalier can prove.

Yvette Mimieux as the love interest is pleasingly fresh in acting and appearance.

"Monkeys, Go Home" is now showing at Town and Country, Great Western and University Cinemas.

GRANT BOARD MEETS

The Women's Service Board of Grant Hospital will meet March 2 for a tea at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Raymond W. Bethel, 3177 Dale-av. Probate Judge Richard Metcalf will speak on "Charitable Giving."

Racing Thrills Captured In Movie, 'Grand Prix'

The excitement, thrill and rapture of Grand Prix racing is now on film, befittingly named "Grand Prix."

Adventure of life, challenge of death and romance spiced with speed, competition and glory make Grand Prix a must for any advocate of movies and/or excellent films.

The history of Grand Prix racing is startling to learn when one considers that in 17 years since the beginning of the official championship series only 25 drivers have won a Grand Prix — and of those only nine became world champions.

This revelation is stirringly revealed as the film unreels the hardships and tense life these competitors live. Understanding and comprehension of this "way of life" is easily accepted by the viewer as four drivers' lives are portrayed.

James Garner, Yves Montand, Brian Bedford and Antonio Sabato are the core for this film. Their love and interpretation of racing is dramatically told. The women involved with these men are Eva Marie Saint, Jessica Walter and Francoise Hardy.

Four men, three women. Two men share the same woman until she realizes love for her husband is superior to her fear of racing.

Bedford, Montand and Miss Saint have the hardest acting chores to convey as each must relate to their upbringing in three different countries. Each country having social standards really depicts how small the world is when a common interest is shared.

The film was photographed in four countries: France, Italy, Monaco and England. Some undertaking. The scenery is sheer beauty. The photography department captured speed which sets the pace and mood for the story.

An overall judgment of the film is: This one will surely come through with honors. Direction, photography, acting, sound, scenery and story are, with no reservations, excellent.

Grand Prix is not just for racing fans, it is for all, as seven human stories are revealed — each different, each believable.

This film is deserving of a Grand Prix: big prize. It is being shown at Grand Cinerama on a reserved ticket basis.

Exiled Catholic Priest Slated By Newman Club

Father Phillip Berrigan, who was "exiled" by his church in Baltimore for expressing his anti-Vietnam war views, will speak Friday at 8 p.m. at the Ohio State campus Catholic Center, Newman Hall, 1946 Iuka-av.

Father Berrigan's appearance is part of the series of lectures and forums entitled "Vietnam '67" sponsored by the center.

Father Berrigan, who served in World War II in both France and Germany, was active in the civil rights movement before his involvement wtih the Vietnam war began.

The Catholic priest claims he does not advocate a withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam but rather "an investigation of both sides to find out whether our presence there is valid."

The meeting is free and open to the public.

Climate Control Becoming Popular In More Homes

Most new homes under construction and homes involved in modernization programs will include provisions for year-round climate control, in the opinion of Henry R. Pataky, sales manager of the Ohio Furnace Co., Inc.

Pataky said "total home comfort" means "you will be able to dial the climate of your choice in any season. Dusting will be reduced to a minimum. Humidity will be just right inside, no matter what it is outside."

Improvements in home comfort control, Pataky said, have come more rapidly in the past few years than in any other period. Costs, he added, continue to drop.

TO HOLD LUNCHEON

The Women's Board of Pilot Dogs, Inc., will meet Monday at 12:30 p.m. for a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Raymond Bethel, 3177 Dale-av.

A SALUTE TO ENGINEERS

THE IMPOSSIBLE TAKES A LITTLE LONGER

. . . but engineers accept the challenge for the seemingly impossible. They seldom fail because they are skilled and persistent.

And, having accomplished the impossible, the engineer is seldom content with his creation. He continually strives to improve it. We owe much to this tradition. Look at the improvements the engineer has made in aviation, in communication, in illumination — to name but a few. Think about how indispensable these developments have become to man's environment.

Over 600 Western Electric and Bell Telephone Laboratories engineers at the Columbus Works of Western Electric are working together as a team to carry on this tradition — to provide you with the most modern and reliable telephone service in the world. And, while meeting the engineering challenge to provide more and better telephone service today, they are designing and planning the telephone systems and manufacturing techniques that will be required to meet our communications requirements tomorrow.

On the occasion of National Engineers' Week, February 19-25, we want to salute these engineers and all of their colleagues in the engineering profession for their dedication to "Engineering for the human environment."

Boat Show Will Depict Progress

entral Ohioans will get a chance to see how far boating has progressed since the days of the first carved-out canoes beginning Saturday when the Central Ohio Marine Dealers Association presents its annual boat and marine equipment show at the Buckeye Building on the Fairgrounds.

The fifth annual COMDA boat show will be the largest display of boats, motors and marine equipment ever assembled in Central Ohio. More than $1 million worth of marine equipment will be on display.

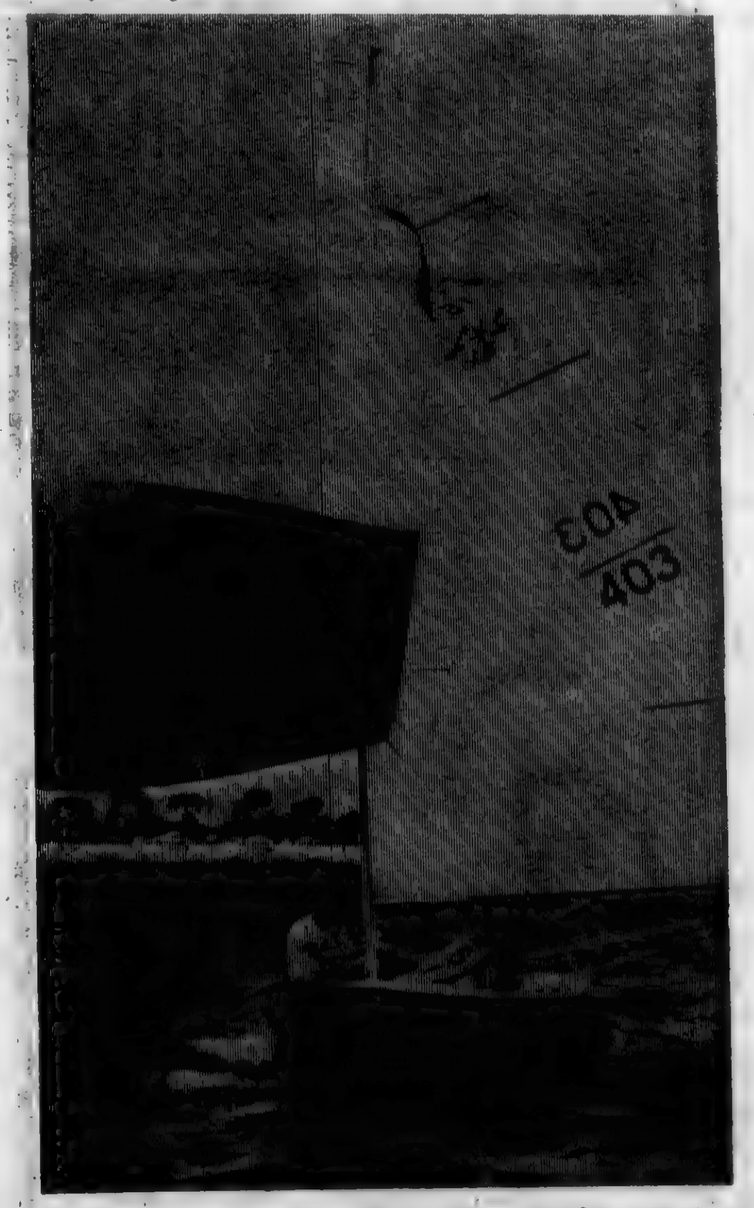
On display will be hundreds of boats of all types, ranging from huge cabin cruisers to more than 100 different types of canoes.

One of the "stars" of the show will be the new Chrysler LS-16 sloop, a 16-footer with a 73-inch beam, deep-padded cockpit, 160 feet of mainsail and jib and twin pivoting bilgeboards.

Another feature of the show will be the Chrysler-powered houseboat, a sunliner Yacht Home that also provides power for water skiing, room for living and the handling of a cruiser.

Cruisers, Inc., will exhibit their cathedral hull "Sportsman," ideal for fishing, skin diving or general use. It offers fishing equipment, center steering console, cushioned swivel pilot seat and full-width stern seat as standard equipment

For quicker action, Silver Line will exhibit its 14-foot, 6-inch Daytona that features mechanical steering and complete top.



Skin divers will marvel at the "Aquanaut," Evinrude's self-contained diving unit, a floating air station that adds a new dimension to skin diving.

Youngsters and adults will get to try their luck in the Trout Stream, where a "Mystery Fish" will be worth $100 to the person who hooks it.

The boat show will run for nine days through Sunday, March 5. It is open from 5-10 p.m. daily and from noon-10 p.m. on weekends. Admission is 25 cents for children and 95 cents for adults.

LEISURE LIVING on water is personified in this Chrysler-powered houseboat, which will be on display beginning Saturday at the Fifth Annual Boat Show at the Buckeye Building on the Fairgrounds. This boat handles like a cruiser, sleeps an entire family and also serves as a sport and fishing boat.

IS SAILING your love? This XX Chrysler LS-16 will be one of many sailboats of all sizes and classes on display at the Fifth Annual Boat Show sponsored by the Central Ohio Marine Dealers Association, beginning Saturday at the Buckeye Building on the Fairgrounds.

Rockenbaugh Grows To Present 7-Acre Size

What started in 1958 as an inventory of three outboard boats has grown into seven acres of new and used boats, trailers and marine equipment for Rockenbaugh's Inc., 3260 Valleyview-rd.

Rockenbaugh holds exclusive area franchises for some of the best-known names in boating —Owens, Mark Twain, Aerocraft, Maritime, SeaRay and Dorsett.

Their 8,400 square foot showroom features complete displays of boats, accessories and sporting equipment. A separate building houses the complete service department and factory-trained mechanics.

Four full-time salesmen are employed beside "Rockey" and well - known Power Squadron member Tom Shields.

THE DEVILLE DAYTONA, pictured here, will provide the "sporting look" at the Central Ohio Marine Dealers' fifth annual boat show opening Saturday at the Buckeye Building on the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

Fortney To Preside Over Fifth Annual Boat Show

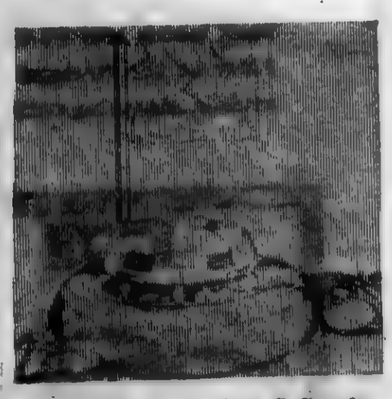
Rules Changes Affect Small Boats

Changes to the Rules of the Road will prohibit small boat operators from maintaining a right of way, in narrow channels, over large less maneuverable ships that cannot be stopped in a short distance, reports the Coast Guard.

Motorboats under 65 feet in length operating in narrow channels shall not interfere with the passage of large deep-draft vessels which can safely navigate only inside such channels, according to new law.

Sail boats usually have the right of way over power craft. However, the new law adds that sail boats do not have the right to hinder the larger, less maneuverable vessels, either.

The new provisions apply in all waters under Inland, Great Lakes and Western Rivers Rules of the Road. These same changes were incorporated into International Rules, Sept. 1, 1965.



JIM FORTNEY

Presiding over the Fifth Annual Boat Show at the Buckeye Building on the Fairgrounds will be Jim Fortney, president of the Central Ohio Marine Dealers Association and owner of Marine Mart at 8752 Harrisburg-pk.

Jim and his wife Maureen are in their 12th year in the marine business. Their latest innovation is a demonstration and testing lake at the Groveport Pike location.

Marine Mart is staffed with a crew of trained Evinrude mechanics.

PAUL'S MARINE Service, Route 3, Westerville, will exhibit the new Air-Buoy, a portable air station supplying filtered air to two divers simultaneously. The Air-Buoy opens up new worlds to skin divers since it allows them to wander away from their boats in complete safety. Paul's Marine has just received the Johnson "Inner Circle Dealer Award" for outstanding sales of Johnson equipment.

Coast Guard Says Boats Better Equipped

Over all, the Coast Guard is pleased with the efforts of the boating industry in improving its products and complying with federal boating safety requirements, said Captain David Oliver, chief of the Coast Guard's Recreational Boating Safety Division.

With enforcement of compartment ducting requirements beginning June 1, 1967, a few ventilation shortcomings continue. Some manufacturers are using ducts and fixtures that are too small for the size of the space being ventilated. Also apparent, were cowls installed in positions that blocked them from normal air currents. Combination light fixtures, curtains, seats and engine covers were among the air flow obstructions noted.

Increased conformance with proper navigation lighting regulations was also evident. However, some manufacturers were not aware of the requirements for a three-foot vertical separation between the white mast head light and the colored lights, specified in the International Rules of the Road for motorboats under 40 feet in length.

Coast Guard States Policy On Ventilation Requirements

The Commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard, Admiral Willard J. Smith, announced that as of June 1, 1967, pleasure boatmen will be expected to have their boat ventilation systems meet Coast Guard requirements or face a possible $100 penalty.

Admiral Smith stressed the minimum natural ventilation required by the Coast Guard for closed engine and fuel tank compartments. Coast Guard regulations specifically call for at least one inlet duct fitted with cowl or equivalent and at least one outlet or exhaust duct fitted with cowl or equivalent.

Ducts must extend from the open atmosphere to a point at least midway to the bilge for the intake air duct and to the lower portion for the exhause. Current industry standards will satisfy the requirements and are recommended.

"LOOK, MOM! MY FIRST FISH!"

TRACY LEONARD, four-year-old from 339 Clark-ct in Groveport, got the thrill of catching his first fish at last year's COMDA Boat Show and more youngsters will have an opportunity to do so this year in the boat show fish stream. In addition, there's a "Mystery Fish" that will be worth $100 to the angler who hooks it.

BUSINESS IS FINE

"THE CHOW LINE" where 250 children are being served breakfast at three inner-city elementaries is expected to double within the next three months. School authorities explain the breakfast, such as that pictured at Felton, is nothing fancy, (it includes cereal, fruit juices and milk and eggs or meat occasionally), but is sufficient to insure that no tot will be asked to "do his best" on an empty stomach.

8th Annual Cotillion Ball Subject Of Raanana Tea

A mother and daughter tea was held recently by Raanana, an affiliate of Mizrachi Women of America, to acquaint the debutantes of 1967 with the plans for the eighth annual Cotillion Ball, to be held on Mar. 19 at Sheraton Columbus Hotel.

The ball will be a kosher dinner-dance and features the official launching of a young lady socially. Raanana's version presents the local high school senior girls to the Columbus community.

The debs will be attired in pastel gowns. Each girl will be called to the stage, where she will be introduced by a prominent personality. The girl's father will then greet her as she comes down from the flower decked stage. When all the debs are together they will dance an exhibition waltz with their fathers.

The debutantes who attended the tea were: Susan Quinn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Quinn; Sevie Shar daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Farrel Shar; Marilyn Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Stewart; Debbie Shuman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Shuman; Susan Goldberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Goldberg; Arlene Katz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Katz; Rona Poritz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Poritz, and Susan Gurevitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Gurevitz.

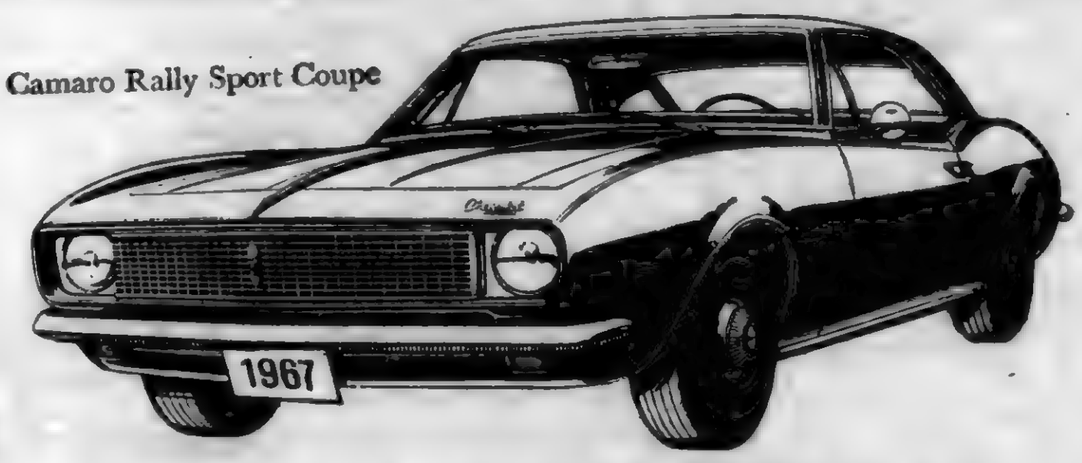
Senator Bowen Appointed To Worker Training Comm.

Sen. Ted Gray, president pro tem of the Ohio Senate, announced today the appointment of John W. E. Bowen as senate representative on the Ohio Worker Training Committee.

The Ohio Worker Training Committee was created by the 104th General Assembly in 1961. There are eight members of the committee, and the legislative representatives who are members must be appointed with each new legislature.

The committee was established by the General Assembly to encourage and promote training and retraining programs in Ohio to assist the unemployed to obtain new skills or improve their present occupational achievements.



It has the responsibility of coordinating the activities of all state and local government departments and agencies for the purpose of securing maximum utilization of all funds available for training and retraining programs.

Committee members serve without compensation except reimbursement for actual expenses incurred while traveling on committee business.

Sen. Bowen says that he welcomes the opportunity to serve on the Ohio Worker Training Committee as a representative of the Ohio Senate. He has long advocated that Ohio must continue to develop and expand job training and retraining programs for those citizens who find it difficult to find suitable employment because of a lack of skills.

In addition, however, to developing job training and retraining programs, Sen. Bowen feels that there must be some emphasis upon developing an adequate public relations program to assure that our citizens will be informed about the opportunities and to encourage their participation.

Mayor Defends Curfew At Forum

THE RED CARPET was rolled out for Mayor Sensenbrenner when he visited Barack Recreation Center last week and was escorted to the podium by members of Den 1 of Cub Pack 242. Above he is shown with officers of his hosts, the Lincoln Park Community Council. From the left are Mrs. Elvera Gaal, Mrs. Elizabeth Ohlinger, the mayor, Mrs. Lois Washington and Mrs. Adlean Berry.

When Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner brought his cabinet on a good will trip to the South Side last week, he stoutly defended city policy on several matters, including that of the curfew.

After Police Chief Robert Baus explained his department aims at control, not jailing of youngsters (only 200 arrests have been made for curfew violations although 140,000 minors are out after the curfew on any football night) Sensenbrenner warned that those questioned by police best be courteous.

"A FEW SMART alecks are not going to run this city," he stated.

The Mayor also stressed that five squads designed to meet the emergencies of the city cannot be at beck and call where no emergency exists.

Stating that the squads are first-aid men and not MD's, the Mayor added that they do not pass any hospital, and that South Side emergency runs will be made directly to either Children's or Mercy hospitals and not to Riverside or other hospitals of the victim's choice.

During the neighborhood forum sponsored by the Lincoln Park Community Council at Barack Recreation Center, several problems were sidestepped as being beyond the realm of city government.

For example, the administration has no control over the placing of mailboxes, lack of hot lunch programs in the Columbus elementary schools, porch lighting in Metropolitan Housing projects or teenage dances.

Similarly, William Brooks, utility director, pointed out that he does not actually run the CTC.

HOWEVER, the city is cooperating in an $85,000 20-year transit study under way by Battelle Memorial Institute, it is believed, will lead to improvement of mass transportation in the community.

Little immediate hope was given to those in the Lincoln Park area who have been pushing for bus service between Lockbourne Road and Parsons Avenue. (The connecting streets are too narrow to accommodate the existing buses, and the possible solution of shuttle buses was ignored.)

One especially well-received bit of news was that bids will be opened Mar. 7 for construction of seven-foot sidewalks on Ann and Woodrow streets surrounding city property, which includes the recreation center, swimming pool and police substations. These areas have been regarded as traffic hazards for pedestrian school children.

TOUCHING ON the matter of refnuse collections, the Mayor asked the public to be tolerant of holiday schedules, leery of plastic garbage cans and to take legitimate complaints to the sanitation department.

After Johnny Jones, assistant service director, reminded the audience that city hall employes are not "mind readers," and public problems must be brought to their attention (malfunctioning street lights, for example), Sensenbrenner stated, "My office is always open to you."

An invitation was also issued to the mock city council session which is scheduled Mar. 1 to better acquaint the public with legislative processes.

50 Acres In SE Valued At $435,000

It may not sound like bargain day to someone shopping for farm land, but bidding is expected to be active when approximately 50 acres of land at 2968 Winchester-pk goes on sale at the Court House steps by Sheriff Stacy Hall, Friday, Feb. 24.

The property, now listed in the telephone directory as the residence of Lowell Fletcher, cannot be sold for less than two-thirds of the appraised value of $435,358, or approximately $5,800 per acre.

ACCORDING TO Michael Mileusnich of the Regional Planning Commission, the secret of the value of the tract is that a portion of it bears apartment zoning, a status relatively rare in the county.

The proposed sale is the result of foreclosure proceedings against Project 33, Inc., by Dora L. Schleppi, former owner of the property.

When Project 33 was incorporated in 1962 (it is now delinquent in its franchise payments and reportedly an inactive organization) Fletcher was listed as its president and treasurer.

HOWEVER, IN 1963 Berwick Plaza Apartments, Inc., was incorporated with Garfield DeVoss of Grove City as president. A few months later RPC approval was secured by this corporation for "Post Oak Subdivision" to be plotted on 28.5 acres of the tract, with the balance being held for right-of-ways and reserves including 2.187 acres for school purposes. (Phil Williams, superintendent of Madison Local School District, reports that at the time of rezoning, he was assured the reserve would be given to the District without cost).

Mileusnich states conditions to be met before the approval would be final included the school reserve, water service to be furnished by the system operated by C. Burr Dawes which supplies Winchester Estates and the establishment of a private sewage collection and disposal system through agreement with the Franklin County Sanitary Engineers.

TO DATE, the subdivision has not been recorded.

With the current rumor of petitions being circulated for annexation to the city (one spokesman described the area involved as "massive") it is believed that the utility arrangements originally made are less than attractive to potential developers.

It is assumed that the move toward annexation is tied in with the prospects of hooking into Columbus utility lines, greatly expanded since subdivision approval was originally granted

TERMS OF the sale state that the tract may be sold either as a whole or in three parcels. Parcel 1 includes 38 acres and is appraised at approximately $292,000; Parcel 2, about 11 acres, is appraised at approximately $139,000 and Parcel 3, involving one and one-third acres, is appraised at $16,734.

Pocket change won't be enough for prospective buyers the day of the sale. Five thousand dollars will be required if the property is sold as a whole and if in parcels, $3,000, $1,000 and $500 demanded respectively in the purchase of Parcel 1, 2 and 3.

Workmen's Discovery Key To Old Worthington Mystery

By WALTER TAYLOR
Spectator Staff Writer

The mystery surrounding the whereabouts of the grave of Lucy Fitch Kilbourne, first wife of Worthington founder James Kilbourne, was solved recently when workmen rebuilding portions of the Kilbourne tomb in the St. John's Episcopal Church cemetery discovered one-half of a flat tombstone mortared in its base.

The inscription on the stone was somewhat unintelligible:

UCY
of rn, Esqur
gt 23, 1769
h 8, 1807
6 m & 16 Ds
tian a faithful fectionate com
a tender was peace
ortal bliss

Frank Corbin, historian for the Worthington Historical Society, undertook the task of unsolving the riddle. He deduced that "UCY" must refer to Lucy Fitch, "gt" could only refer to August and "h" must advert to March.

He thus arrived at the vital statistics:

L/UCY
wife/of Jas Kilbou/rn, Esqur
born A/gt 23, 1769
died M/ch 8, 1807
aged 37 yrs/6 m & 16 Ds
A true Chris/tian, a faithful wife, an af/fectionate com panion and/a tender mother, she/was peace fully taken to im/ortal bliss

Corbin said historians for years assumed that Lucy was buried in the St. John's Churchyard. But most felt it was "inconceivable" that Kilbourne would fail to erect a grave marker. Yet none seemed to exist.

In an article written by Corbin in the Historical Society's newsletter, The Intelligencer, he says the present discovery has solved the puzzle.

When Kilbourne died in 1850, the stone marking the grave of his first wife was incorporated in his tomb. Corbin says it must have been done with the authority of Kilbourne's second wife, Cynthia Goodale Barnes Kilbourne, whom he married in 1808.

It is now assumed that Lucy must be buried on the adjoining plot.

But another mystery may have cropped up. Why would Cynthia have the tombstone of Kilbourne's first wife buried in the stone and mortar? Was it a sympathetic, loving gesture or perhaps a jealous one? Could she have guessed that men for years to come would wonder what had happened to Lucy?

These questions may never be answered.

WORTHINGTON HISTORICAL SOCIETY historian Frank Corbin points to the spot on the tomb of James Kilbourne where Lucy Kilbourne's grave marker was discovered. Workers found the slab while replacing stones and mortar on the tomb.

New Restaurant Chain To Headquarter Here

Saxons, a new national franchise food chain, will open its pilot restaurant and establish national headquarters in Columbus, Vice-President Lee Henry announced.

Henry, 4480 Ravine-dr, will be joined in the Saxons operation by President Bill West, 3384 Darbyshire-dr, and Secretary-Treasurer Bill Sapp, 5719 Saranac-dr.

Sapp and Henry are co-owners of the Kahiki Polynesian Restaurant on E. Broad Street and The Top Steak House on E. Main Street. West is past president of Ohio Scientific Products and executive consultant to P.W. Research, a national franchising firm.

The pilot Saxons restaurant will be located at 5400 N. High-st. It will feature roast beef sandwiches and a short order menu for both inside and carry-out trade.

It is expected that more than 100 persons will be employed locally in the national headquarters. West said plans call for the firm to operate 100 franchises within the next year and 1,000 in nearly every state within a few years.

Decor of the restaurants will be based on English architecture at the time of the Saxons.

WITH AN ILLUSTRATION of the new Columbus-based Saxons restaurant as a backdrop, the three principals of the new firm discuss future plans. From left are President Bill West, Vice-President Lee Henry and Secretary-Treasurer Bill Sapp.

come to expect from the big winner.

THAT'S NOT to say the Bengals won't run (and run fast) if they get the right opportunity.

Perhaps the Tigers' biggest asset can be found in their awesome board strength and the surprising quickness and agility of their big men (average about 6-4).

To date, only state-ranked Dayton Roosevelt came close to matching the Tigers in the rebounding department in a given game.

ODDLY ENOUGH, only one quintet this season has tried out a slow-down game on the Tigers. That was Columbus West who had the distinction of trailing only 36-34 entering the final stanza (lost 54-43).

East's starting five should include: Eddie Ratleff (forward, 6-4, 18 pts. per game), Nicky Connor (forward, 6-4, 14 per), Randy Smith (center, 6-6, 12 per), Herky Hairston (guard, 6-3, 10 per) and Vance Carr (guard, 6-3, nine per).

Whitehall's performance against Metro Loop partner Franklin Heights seem to please boss Phil Allen. SAID PHIL: "We had a better rebounding and shooting night than we had the last time we played them and those rebounds gave us a fast break."

Minus a 46-18 rebound advantage in the last meeting between Heights and Whitehall, the Rams fell by a slim point.

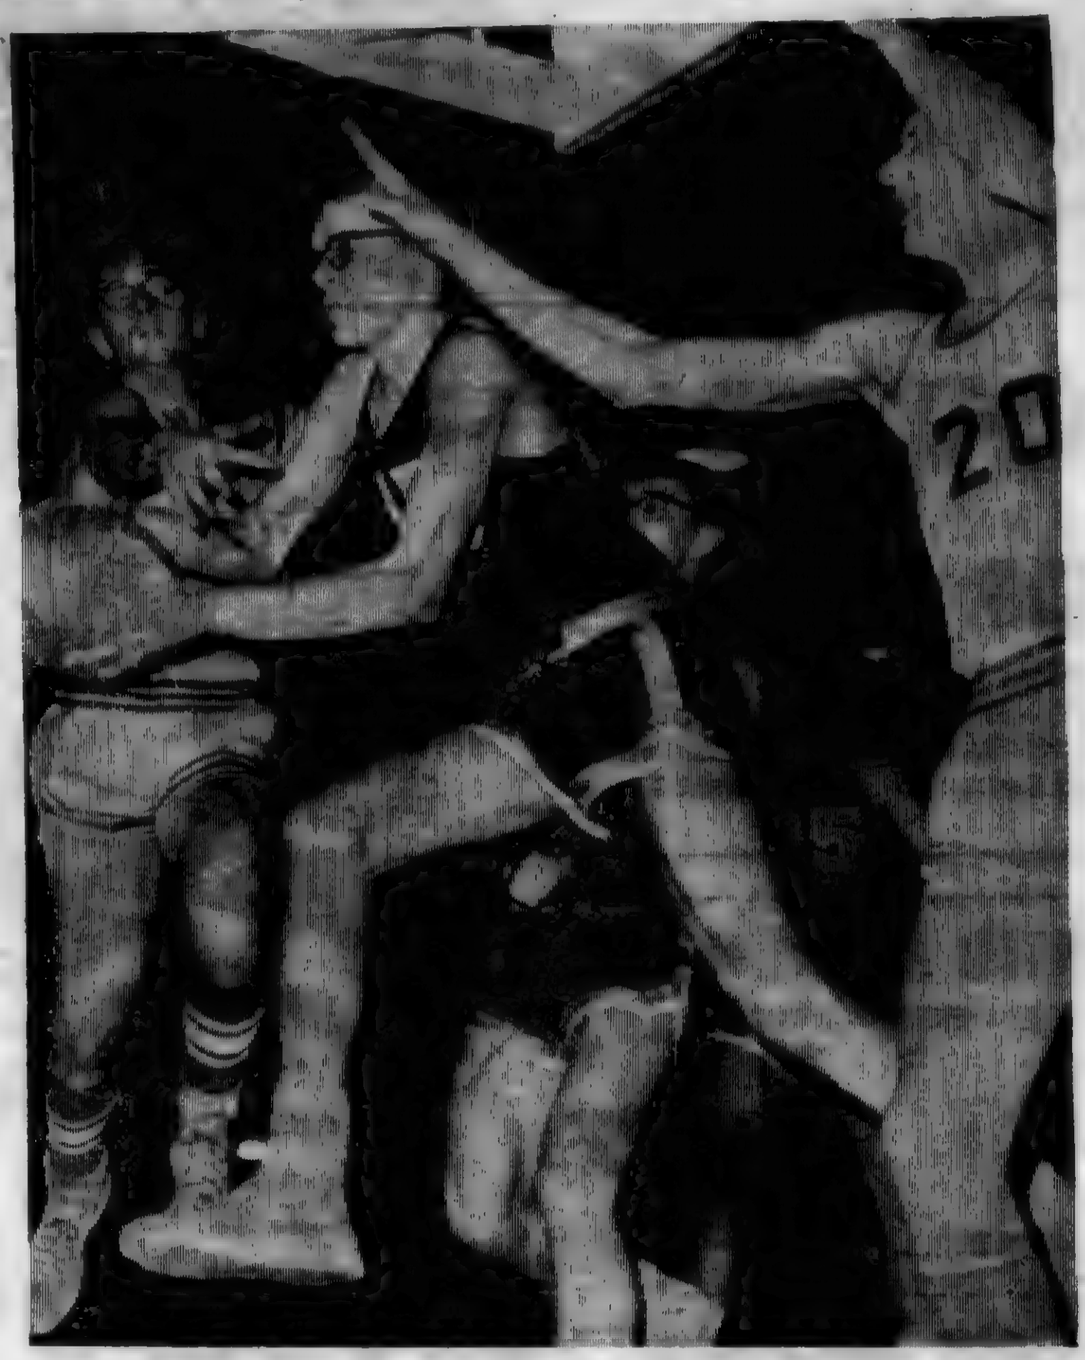
ALLEN CREDITED sixth man Lou Bardi for a standout job in replacing Lew Anderson, who took some involuntary rest because of foul trouble.

On Thursday opponent Ready (8-11), Phil sees the Catholic League member as a "real quick team who lost a sixth of their games to tough competition Watterson (12-5), DeSales (10-8) and Hartley (15-3)."

"THEY PRESSED Washington Court House," Allen said, "so they might toss a press at us."

Gahanna was the first seeded casualty of the tournament with Brookhaven tipping the seventh-seed 62-60 last Saturday night.

Lion coach John Stanley started immediately looking to next year. He'll have four of the first five returning.



Bexley Seeks New Recreation Director

The City of Bexley has announced that present Recreation Director Joel Poetker will resign as of June 1 and applications for Poetker's replacement are now being accepted by Recreation Board Chairman William Reynolds at 234 S. Remington-rd.

The Bexley Recreation Director post entails part-time winter employment and full-time summer duties.

Popa Appointed

Nick Popa has been appointed as Tournament Manager for the 1968 U.S.G.A. National Amateur Championship at the Scioto Country Club.

Phase II Is 'GO'

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Getting a man to the moon —and back—is recognized as no small task. And winning a state wrestling title isn't exactly easy either.

But Central District coaches, methodically drawing a bead on that goal, completed "Phase II" of the plan last weekend at St. John Arena.

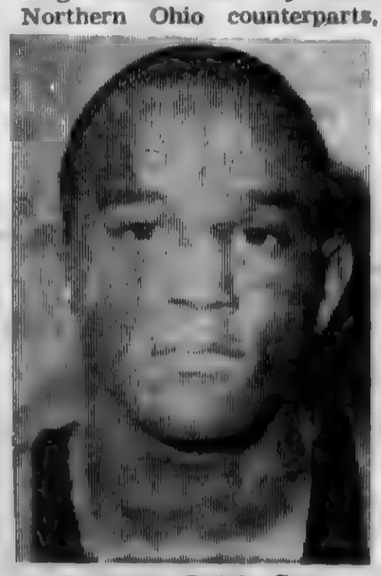
ONE YEAR before, district grapplers stepped out of the long shadow cast by their Northern Ohio counterparts, turning many a head with their best-ever effort.

But three area wrestlers vaulted their District into its greatest yet position of prominence Saturday night by picking off three individual state titles.

East's Ralph Cox started the push at 112, Steve Arnold of DeSales followed through with the crown at 120 and Watterson's Mike Hilliard added the frosting with his big finals win at 175—all three wrapping up the '66-'67 competition unbeaten and untied.

THREE STATE champions for the Central District (first time in history) were enough to accelerate hopes for lasting prominence in state competition for area mat coaches.

But—even more savory — was the rewarding reply to the challenge offered by the hotbed of state wrestling (Northern sector) which had made no secret of its plan to make up for last year's distasteful share of the state wrestling spotlight with the Central District.



"They have been pointing to this state meet all season," one area coach related last week, "trying to prove that our success last year was a fluke."

MAPLE HEIGHTS carted home its second straight state title but the Central District proved '66 was no fluke.

Watterson's Hilliard paced the three area champs by pinning his opponents in two of three final matches. Arnold garnered three decisions while Cox secured one pin-win and gained two decisions in overtime.

Next-best efforts after the state champion trio were recorded by Groveport's Jeff Nelle (145) and Brookhaven's Mike Petrey (175) — both losing out in the semi-final matches.

DEFEATED at the quarter-final level were DeSales Bob Feeney (127), Whitehall's Steve Beery (127), Ohio Blind's Charles Bartee (112), Franklin Height's Joe Malone (138), and Worthington's Steve Harris (154).

relinquished.

DANA ZARTMAN pleased his coach, Bob Holderle, with a splendid 30 point - 15 rebound performance en route to the Red Devils' 80-62 thumping of City partner Whetstone.

Said Bob: "When Larry Brown was out with foul trouble, Dana had to do it on the boards if we were to win, and he did, playing his best game of the year."

ROGER EDENS was the engineer of Brookhaven's 62-60 upset of Gahanna-Lincoln, who had the coaches' blessing as seventh seeded before the show started.

The spunky Edens poured in 17 points and did most of his damage with driving lay-ins and outside hustle on defense.

Hawk Frosh Take Fifth CCL Crown

The Bishop Hartley freshmen rung up Central Catholic League title number five in eight years this season with a 5-1 loop record and a 8-4 overall mark.

The 'little' Hawks lone league loss came at the hands of Watterson, 26-21 before they rolled to a 25-24 overtime win over DeSales, a 41-35 win over Ready in first round action. The Hawks won a 30-23 overtime rematch with the Eagles, clipped DeSales 33-19 and stopped Ready 41-35 to round out CCL action.

It was the first CCL frosh crown for Bob Telerski who took over the job from six year coach Bob Kiener.

Bruce Kotlinski and Kevin Griffin paced the team's scorers in league action with 50 and 42 points respectively.

Hawk Swimmers Win

PAUGH

I can remember vividly, the trek across open fields to the high timber where my Patrol would set up camp for the night.

Shag - bark hickories and red oaks towered up into the stars while we wondered about the immensity of the Universe.

LATER, WE were adventurous to the point of strapping our duffle on our bikes and would travel all the way out Innis Road to Alum Creek. There, we would unroll blankets, get a good fire going and watch the crawdads pull our corks under until they had the whole worm.

Somebody's mother would fix a crock of mulligan stew or we would raise enough cash for a dozen wieners and buns. That would be the extent of our camping costs.

Our accouterments were a borrowed axe for firewood, a handful of stick matches carefully dipped in parafine (as per instructions in the Scout manual in case it rained), a painter's drop cloth to use as a tent and whatever cast-off blankets we could talk Mom out of.

THE FIELDS we treked are now a gigantic shopping center; the towering oaks have been replaced by a discount house and the creek banks are now someone's back yard—carefully manicured but never used.

I attended the Columbus Sports Show last Sunday and I didn't see a borrowed blanket in the whole Coliseum. What I did see took me into a state of shock.

At first, I was chagrined that our modern affluent society found it necessary to make a mockery of the outdoors with such unrelated items as portable stereo systems and beer dispensers.

AFTER WANDERING at will among the crowds, I heard enough to convince me I was not the only one who felt such trappings were out of place.

Although I did not see a tent manufacturer represented, the tent-trailer people such as Nimrod and Apache were well tokened and their displays were drawing the biggest crowds.

In thinking back to my creekbank days, I know today's campers are missing the fun of "setting up" and "breaking" camp. Here is where the heated discussions always happened, whether to use the natural slope as drainage in case of rain or settle down on level ground hoping for a clear night.

THERE ALSO posed a problem as to how we could possibly feed six hungry kids with one nine-inch catfish. The boys who drew short straws had to settle for store-bought hot dogs and always felt put upon. But in the end they wound up with a great deal more in their stomachs.

It is not for me to say which age of camping is more correct. We cannot recall the past and if we could, most of us certainly would not.

There is one very obvious point we must all agree on, there certainly are more campers today than ever before. The State of Ohio hosted over 22 million in 1966 and is expecting much bigger crowds.

WHATEVER your choice might be — bedroll or bivouac on wheels, get out and enjoy it. There's nothing like it.

Checkers Home Sunday

The Columbus Checkers return home from a long road trip Sunday to host the rugged Toledo Blades at 7 p.m. on the Coliseum ice. Next Checker home date will be a week from Sunday vs. Dayton.

pin news

Keglers' Korner

BY NORMA KIRKENDALL

Columbus bowlers who will travel to the National All-Star in St. Louis on May 19 are Ed Thomas, Joe Kristof and sisters Barb Mercure and Jerry Baker. Runners-up were Ron Spohn and Myrtle Werner.

February sees two charity headpin tourneys: Formel Women's Club at Sequoia and Paul S. Lawrence VFW Post at Aero.

THE 6094 team entry for WIBC in Rochester, opening Apr. 13, is a record entry plus record prize list of $296,760.

Lane managers can bowl — Dick Braun from Main Lanes clicked 232-265-241/738 at Wink-O in the Doubles Classic. Vermount Recreation saw a 725 by Wilson Waderker.

What's the difference between a perfect game and a 299 game?

NO, THE answer isn't "one pin." The difference is that the bowler who rolled the 300 most likely is three years younger and carries an average four pins higher than the 299 shooter.

A survey of 10,600 perfect games, 6,362 games of 299 and 4,309 games of 298 approved by ABC from 1907 through the 1964-65 season disclosed that fact.

It also showed that the 298 bowler is usually two years older but carries an average five pins under the 300 bowler. The information was collected from high game award applications and norms were determined for various categories.

THE COMPOSITE 300 award winner is 34 years old, carries a 188 average and has bowled 11 years. The 299 bowler is 38, averages 184 and has 11 years of experience. The 298 bowler also has 11 years, but is 36 and averages 183.

An interesting trend, however, is reflected over the past three seasons. In each, the average number of years of experience for 300 bowlers was only nine, as opposed to 11 for the all-time average. The 299 and 298 shooters over the same seasons averaged 10 years on the lanes, except for 1963-64 when the average was nine years for 298 bowlers.

There also is a trend toward bowlers "warming up" faster than they formerly did. The third game of a series has produced the most honor games according to all-time totals. However, in 1963-64 and 1964-65, the most 300's came in the second game. This also was true of 298's in 1964-65.

BUT WHEN it comes to the most popular time of the year for rolling high games, March remains the champion. The only variances were in 1962-63 when April led the 300 and 298 production and in 1963-64 when January produced the most perfectos.

Last season, of the 769 perfect games, 114 were recorded in March and 108 in April.

POOR GIVEN INSIGHT TO LEGAL RIGHTS

Trusteeship Can Avoid Garnishee

TRUSTEEship can (48) .....

A fine showman gave an excellent performance at City Hall last week.

The performer was Judge Alan Schwartzwalder and the poor and those attempting to help the poor were the audience.

WALTER TARPLEY, director of Community Relations for the city, held the meeting. He relied on Schwartzwalder to stage two mock trials, to explain one's rights when arrested and to point out the way when one is up to his neck in debt.

Claiming that anyone is simply "crazy" to sign anything in blank, the judge blamed cognivit notes and credit inequities (installment buying often involves 36 percent interest) for a lot of financial grief.

Once a family is head over heels in debt (he quoted a man making $425 a month who is trying to pay off $37,500) the best hope to avoid garnishee of wages is a trusteeship administered by the court.

CONCEDING it is not a cure-all, Schwartzwalder stated that at least it gets the creditors off a man's back.

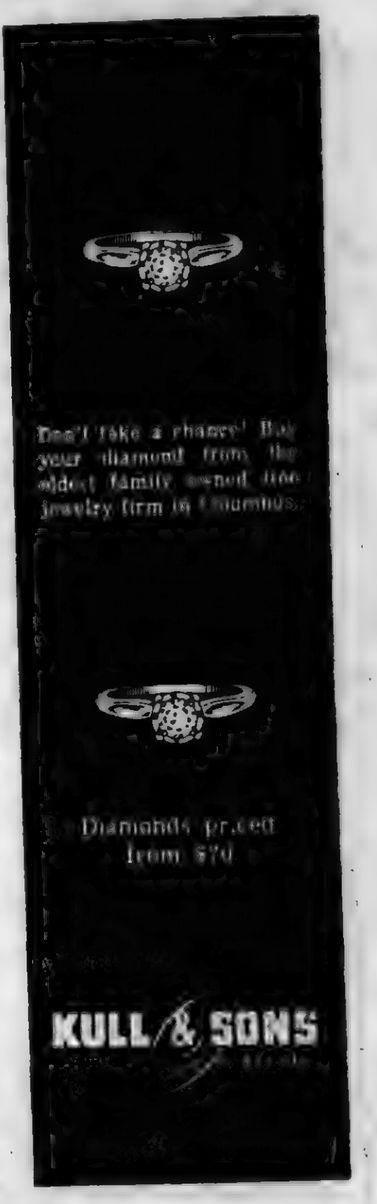
Through this system (although discretionary, most creditors will go along with it) the head of the household pays the court 20 percent of the first $300 of his income and 40 percent of the balance.

In turn, the court pays off the creditors.

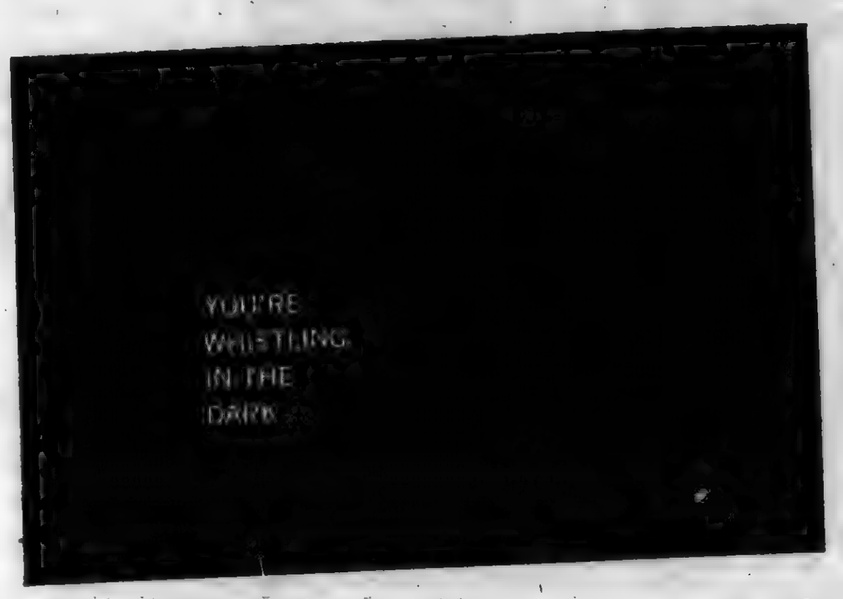
HE EMHPHASIZED that the time to act after receiving a five-day notice of attachment is NOW. Once that five days is up, there's not much hope.

The judge summarized the rights of one accused of a felony as including the right to remain silent and the right either to summon one's own attorney or a court-appointed lawyer.

Defining a felony as an act which carries a penalty in excess of one year's incarceration, the judge pointed out that the rights of one accused of a misdemeanor are not so clear.



ALTHOUGH IT is now mandatory that an arresting officer explain his rights to a felony suspect, the Court of Appeals has ruled that someone arrested on a lesser charge doesn't have these absolute rights but is entitled to them if he asks for them.



During one of the mock trials which involved suspected intoxication, it was brought out that police are under no obligation to administer a blood or other type of test.

Although anyone can be arrested if seen violating a law (from jay-walking to murder) only those to be accused of a serious crime may be arrested when the officer merely has good reason to believe he is guilty.

HOWEVER, WITH a warrant issued through the courts, one may be arrested on either a felony or misdemeanor.

In spite of recent court rulings which have increased the rights of the defendants, Schwartzwalder stressed that it is still the privilege of the police to "mug," fingerprint and search a suspect, and that resisting arrest is an offense in itself.

Your Weekly Knit Clinic

By URSULA duBOIS
Spectator Fashion Editor

Dear Miss duBois: I have knitted a number of garments where there occur increases in the middle of the garment. Mine have always had a bit of a ragged appearance until I ran across the proper explanation on "before and after marker increases" on one of your patterns. And now my increases look neat and professional. I just thought you might give other knitters the benefit of this marvelous method of increasing. Mrs. G. Herbst of Los Angeles, Calif.

Thank you, you darling, for the compliment. Following, on Mrs. Herbst's suggestion, are the instructions on "before and after increases." The marker, by the way, can be a commercial marker, a safety pin, or a different color thread. Either one of these is carried throughout the garment from row to row. On the stitch before the marker, slide your righthand needle into the side of the stitch one row below, hang this stitch onto your lefthand needle without twisting it and treat the picked up stitch as you would a knit stitch. The "after marker increase" is done as follows: knit the stitch that the increasing is to be done on first, now slide your lefthand needle into the side of the just knitted stitch two rows below, knit this picked up stitch off from the lefthand needle by inserting the righthand needle into the back of the stitch Almost invisible increases are achieved by these "before and after increases."

Increasing one stitch at beginning or end of a row. As thitch is usually a stitch that is sewn into the seam, this is the fastest type of increase to make. Knit the beginning of and edge stitch, do not lift the stitch off the lefthand needle after your yarn has been brought through, with a rolling motion swing your needle over the stitch and knit through the back of the same stitch. Lift your edge stitch off your lefthand needle. You now have one extra stitch.

Miss duBois welcomes mail from readers but cannot give a personal answer. She will discuss and pass on the most interesting questions and hints.

Amos Lynch On UA Board

Amos Lynch, 3224 Fairwood-av, editor of the Call Post, was elected to the board of the United Appeal at the recent annual meeting.

Charles T. Wheeler, 1966 general campaign chairman, reported that the $4,815,430 collected (99.5 percent of goal) made the campaign the largest ever completed in Franklin County.

C. Gordon Pelliffe, vice-chairman of the board of City National Bank, was introduced as 1967 campaign chairman and Paul Zweier, works manager of Western Electric Co., as vice-chairman.

Goals for the campaign, slated for Oct. 9-Nov. 1, will not be set until early summer.

Raider Five Tops Metro Cage Stars

Undefeated champion Reynoldsburg dominated the first All-Metropolitan League cage squad this week by placing high-scoring seniors Gary Shade and Terry Miller on the first team.

Other first team picks were Whitehall's Lewis Anderson, Teays Valley's Rodney Teets, Pleasant View's Monte Rhoden and Franklin Heights' Sherman Griffith.

Second team members included: Whitehall's Bill Anderson, Teays Valley's Jim Estep, P-V's Charles Hess, Reynoldsburg's Paul Lauderback, Franklin Heights' Alvin McClendon and Hamilton Township's Steve McCaffey.

In the honorable mention category were: Jerry Roach (F-H), Phil Barr (H-T), Marvin Roush (P-V), Dick Baserman (Reynoldsburg), Ron Leatherwood (T-V) and Steve Aller (Whitehall).

The 18-player lineup contained 16 seniors and two juniors — McClendon (second team) of F-H and Aller (honorable mention) of Whitehall.

BEXLEY'S BY-WORD FOR BEAUTY
OUR 25th YEAR

LOOKS TO WALK AWAY FROM

This year again allows a great deal of individualism in beauty fashions. The only sure guide seems to be that everything is softness. If you have any beauty qualities that suggest a too definite line now is the time to get rid of them.

If your suntan is too dark do begin fading it. Perhaps you might experiment with a mild lift-off peel. If you are a year round sunworshipper remember the soft golden look is in.

Hair must be worn styled softly with very little teasing. Of course that means we don't ever use lacquer, and only the softer holding sprays. Mouths are darker than the no-lipstick look but the reds are gentle, suggesting natural warmth and vitality.

And keep on collecting hairpieces. Sometimes when the mood is right you may want to wear them all.

LINES ON CHOOSING A MAN FOR YOUR HOUSE

I circulate a lot in all kinds of women's gatherings and recently I've been hearing an unusual spate of comments about various husbands' shortcomings. So much that I can't resist saying a word on their behalf.

It seemed to be the ladies who quite clearly spent the least time cherishing themselves who spoke most bitterly about their inattentive, inconsiderate husbands. I yearned to remind them that the man they married once admired her (each of them) enough to share his worldly wealth as well as his love. If he regrets his offer it could be that the once cherished wife would find it revealing to consult her beautician. Who knows! Hubby may again become the glamorous swain she married.

KEEP GLOWING

It's the glow that comes out of the eyes and from under the makeup right out of the skin itself, the glow that simply can't be hidden because it's really a part of you — these are the clues that best suit today's beauty world.

It's hard for me to believe that there was ever a time when pale energyless Camille and her wan sisters were the envy of their more robust contemporaries. It's simply wild to realize that fainting was a popular technique to inspire a love-sick swain to propose marriage. Today's woman gets her man by emphasizing the freedom and joie de vivre of a healthy body.

HEARD UNDER THE DRYER

Have you noticed that the folks who know the least seem to know it fluently?

CRUNCH—Marion-Franklin's Dana Zartman watches a field goal attempt go awry and gets a sore wrist at the same time as the Devil cager absorbs a Whetstone foul in AA tourney play Saturday. M-F advanced with an 80-62 verdict over Braves.

To Host Dr. Veach

Guests are invited to hear Dr. J. D. Veach speak on "Hypnosis" when the Merry Moms CCL meets Thursday, Feb. 23, at 8 p.m. at the Asbury Elementary School in Sun Vali.

Hostesses for the program are Mrs. Robert Barker, Mrs. John Bowen, Mrs. William Hogue and Mrs. William McBryde.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. James Raynes, president, telephone 837-2871.

YOUR HOME IS YOUR CASTLE

Planning Before Decorating Pays

By NANCY M. LUCKS, NSID

With spring not too far away, you may decide that you have to make some changes in your home. As you look around the living room maybe you think the sofa should be reupholstered, definitely new draperies, and the arm chair in the corner looks drab—that has to be upholstered too. It is so exciting and today it will be done.

Then off you dash upstairs, change your clothes, and drive downtown.

Once in the store, you head for the fabric department. Every fabric is more exciting than the next. So many of them would fit in your room. Which fabrics will you choose? After hours of looking, you go home empty-handed, confused and depressed. The excitement of making the changes in your living room has left.

There is a reason for the let-down you experienced and today we will take a look at the reasons why.

When you feel you would like to make changes in your home, first decide which pieces you want to change. After making this decision, think about trying a new color scheme. Pull your new colors from something outstanding in the room — maybe your favorite picture.

Changing some of your accent pieces will also give your room "a lift." Sometimes just changing the colors of throw pillows will give an entirely different look to the room.

Just as soon as you have something definite to build your room around, all the confusion you experience before vanishes. Now you have a place to begin and from there you can start building your room.

Next week we will go into more detail about color — the psychological effect on individuals as well as the illusions created in problem rooms.

We have a question from Mrs. D. K. of Columbus:

"I am a new bride. My husband and I like some of the new modern furniture and fabric designs but at the same time we have both inherited some beautiful old pieces from both sides of the family which we treasure. What is your suggestion on combining some of the modern textures and designs with the old?

Dear Mrs. D. K.: You can mix old and new pieces together very effectively but be careful in your selection of the modern pieces. First, select pieces that have a similar feeling in weight. By this I mean, if you have old heavy wood pieces, do not select new wood pieces that look light and spindly or your room will look unbalanced. You should have the feeling that each piece is married to the other. Select your basic fabrics according to the weight feeling you get from your pieces. For instance, pastel shades would give a light feeling. If your pieces are heavy, use heavier colors, such as avacado, with vivid accent colors that are fresh and new. Find a few antique decorative pieces and spot them in the room. This will help tie the old in with the new as well as add interest. Your particular problem is a challenge but when done properly can be most exciting.

Do you have a decorating problem? Send your questions to: Your Home Is Your Castle, Nancy M. Lucks, N.S.I.D., in care The Spectator, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, Ohio.

TWO DEMOCRAT RACES IN OFFING

Bailey To Run As Independent

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

Whitehall Mayor Paul Haytcher will have at least one Democrat bucking him as an independent in the November election.

Ellis Bailey, former Democratic campaign treasurer and well-known in the Whitehall school system, filed his petitions as an independent, assuring himself a spot on the November ballot.

Haytcher will have no opposition in the May primaries unless a dark horse pops up between now and the 4 p.m. Friday filing deadline.

The Republican mayoral picture remained muddled. Councilman Lester Ballenger is in the race, but rumors continued to circulate early this week that former Mayor William Holzhause would file to oppose Ballenger in the primary.

As of Tuesday, only two primary races were shaping up on the Democratic ticket. Those were for councilman-at-large, where four candidates were scapping for three seats, and in Ward One, where Lynn Patrick and Loren Mason were both on the ticket.

Seeking the at-large posts are Patrick Mann, Howard Hazlett, incumbent Ward Four Councilman Gilbert O'Shaughnessy and incumbent Councilman-At-Large Marvin Levine.

The remainder of the Democratic council slate had Phil Neubecker unopposed in Ward Two, C. E. "Bill" Leeson unopposed in Ward Three and Lendel Hodge without opposition in Ward Four.

Haytcher will head the administration ticket that includes James Toomey seeking re-election as city solicitor, Walter Richey running for Council president, Walter Elber running for auditor and William Mason running for treasurer.

Haytcher admitted that Bailey would probably draw some support from the Democratic camp but added that "he should pull votes from both parties."

He said Bailey's entry into the race would not change his campaign plans. "I always run scared," he said. "I work my campaigns."

Haytcher also admitted that the possibility of a wet-dry vote in November could turn into a campaign issue. Whitehall churchmen and other citizens met last week to discuss the possibility of placing a prohibition vote on the ballot and it was reported that Rev. Lewis Berger, head of the Ohio Temperance League, was in attendance. Berger is the leading spokesman for the "dry" forces in Ohio.

Ballenger has indicated in the past he leans toward the "dry" point of view and was sponsor of a resolution passed two weeks ago in Whitehall Council urging tavern owners to close their doors on Sunday.

A few taverns remained closed last Sunday but most were open for business as usual.

Petitions To Annex Berwick To Columbus Ready To Be Filed

Petitions to annex Berwick Shopping Center to the City of Columbus will be filed with the Franklin County Commissioners.

Although Harrison Smith, Jr., who is acting as the agent for the proposed annexation, declines to state exactly how much acreage will be involved or when the petitions will be filed it is believed the filing date is imminent.

THIS BELIEF is based on the fact that Smith informed Phillip Williams, superintendent of the Madison Local School District, last week that it was planned to file the petitions within 10 days.

According to Smith, two tracts are involved, and they may or not be filed simultaneously.

Along with the Berwick tract, the subdivisions of Winchester Estates and College Hill are included.

ALTHOUGH VAGUE about the balance of the area proposed for annexation Smith conceded that the 50 acres south of Refugee — known as 2968 Winchester-pk were included in one of the tracts.

This property, formerly owned by Project 33, Inc. was sold at the sheriff's sale Friday for $309,000 to the Post Oakes Inc.

This represented a figure approximately $20,000 over two-thirds of appraised value of $435,358.

THE SPECTATOR reported earlier that according to a spokesman of the Regional Planning Commission this acreage was made especially valuable for development purposes as part of it carries apartment zoning.

The rumors of this proposed annexation have been going the rounds for months, but have been impossible to pin down until this time.

Now part of Madison Township, it has been repeatedly stated that several of the businesses in the Shopping Center are eager to leave the township where the local option has made it impossible to secure either on-the-premise or carry out liquor licenses.

THE POSSIBILITY of further residential development (either single dwellings or apartment) has also brought up the question of annexation.

The housing in the area and the shopping center is currently served by a privately owned water company which has repeatedly had its difficulties at PUCO hearings, usually originating after the complaints of the customers.

When Williams was informed of the approaching filing he immediately took the matter to his board of education.

HIS CONCERN is that a move might be made to annex the land for school purposes as well as for municipal purposes. (The latter is a matter of no direct concern to him).

Estimating that present development in the area represents at least $2,000,000 on the tax duplicate he believes its loss to be one the district cannot afford.

However, Williams and Smith both indicated they believe it highly improbably the State Board of Education would even seriously consider taking the land from the school district.

Columbusite On Cap Team Set For College Bowl New York Trip

A native Columbusite, two other Ohioans and two students from Connecticut will carry the purple and white colors of Capital University before the nation on the G.E. College Bowl on March 12.

Actually, Columbus viewers will have to wait until March 19 to see the Cap squad in action, since the local NBC affiliate, WLW-C-TV, carries College Bowl a week late on a tape-delay basis.

The local member of the team is senior John D. Prange, whose mother, Mrs. Florence Prange, lives in Capital's shadow at 740 College-av.

Other member of the regular four-member team are senior Thomas P. Arheit of Sandusky, junior Philip N. Cronenwett of Norwalk and junior Walter T. Eccard of Quaker Hill, Conn. The alternate member, who will make the trip to New York and be available to fill in, is Dan A. Murphy of Glastonbury, Conn.

Capital's team will be coached by Dr. Howard A. Wilson, associate professor of religion.

The winning team on each week's program receives a $1,000 scholarship grant and returns the following week to defend its title. The losing team receives a $500 scholarship grant. Current champion is the University of Texas.

JOHN PRANGE

Powerful Columbus East and fast-improving Marion Franklin (11-8) will get the Lower Bracket semi-final round underway Thursday night at 7 p.m.

Watterson's sharp Eagles (14-5) and fourth-seeded Newark (16-4) will match baskets in the 8:30 game for a berth in the Class AA Central District Lower Bracket finals slated for Saturday eve at 8.

THE TALENTED TIGERS (18-0) playing without the services of three starters in the second half breezed through a quarter-final date against Central 69-47 Monday night to earn a shot at their 11th Central District crown since 1923.

But Marion Franklin will offer a dandy challenge for the state's top-rankers as the Red Devils of Bob Holderle had an equally easy time in cutting eighth-seeded Mt. Vernon from the 43 team field, 74-59.

NEWARK AND Watterson almost didn't make the Thursday card.

Pat Mannion's Eagles had to end a four-game frustration at the hands of rival Hartley, the 6-3 CCL kings who edged Watterson twice earlier en route to its third straight Catholic crown.

WATTERSON sharpshooter Rocky Amicon bucketed an important three-pointer at 0:47 to give the Eagles a 66-63 advantage. Hartley pulled within one 66-65 with 10 seconds showing on a Rodney Parker jumper, but the quick Hawk press let Amicon wiggle free and zip half-court pass to 6-4 sophomore strong boy Ben Melancon for the clinching shot.

Newark only led riled-up North a couple times in winning on a Mike Foote jumper with 0:07 showing, 56-55, to earn the semi-final berth.

MANNION'S MAIN worry for Thursday is whether his short scrappers can out-dazzle size-wise Newark who owns a pair of 6-5 pivot men in Larry Barch and Cary Mitchell.

Said Pat: "They are big, strong and fast, and I don't know whether we can match that strength."

MANNION CAME up with an answer for the Hawks trigger man Denny Parker, and cooled him from unleashing his near 10 assists per game. The 6-1 senior Parker came through with five assists and 16 points as Rocky Amicon and Tim Nash spent their defensive time shadowing him.

"Our kids really did the job in finally stopping them," said a smiling Mannion afterwards.

EAST'S BOB Hart will be doing a little nail biting also before Thursday night as the five year Tiger veteran isn't sure about 6-4 forward Eddie Ratleff, who twisted his ankle early in the second half Monday.

Besides that problem, Hart's Tigers will get their second look at Marion Franklin this year, with the 70-53 opening night win nearly forgotten.

FOR A different Red Devil team will be warming up at the other end. Added to the impres-

Five Veterans, Key Prospects Buoy Cinder Optimism At East

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Area basketball coaches, still contending for state cage honors, might call it "jumping the gun"—but there's no holding East High cinder mentor Lee Williams and his optimism for another top Tiger trach campaign this spring.

Williams, who tutored the Bengals to a City League thin title last season, reports he's relying on five returning letter winners and several key juniors to get East off to a flying start in the Tigers' opener Mar. 23 at Walnut Ridge.

TWO VERY key performers from Williams' successful '66 crew, however, aren't among those five.

Missing are two-time state 100-yd dash champ Sol Espie and outstanding shot putter Grady Bobo.

Espie whirled off a sizzling :09.8 while capturing his state crown last spring while Bobo departed with the school shot mark of 58 ft.

PACING THE Bengal vets is Philip Cousins, a husky All-City football tackle who already has tossed the shot 49 ft. in only two weeks of indoor workouts.

Best looking returnee on the lanes is junior Eugene Hadden who runs everything from the 220 up to the mile, including the long and high jumps.

The versatile 6-1, 175-lb. vet, who Williams believes can step into the winner's circle at the state meet this year, specializes in the 440 (:49 flat) and 880 (1:59.6) but has demonstrated his ability in both the long (23 ft.) and high (6'2") jump events.

DALE McCAMPBELL is the third returnee. A sprint and 880-yd relay artist last spring, McCampbell is being groomed for both high and low hurdles this season.

Williams expects big things from McCampbell who gained a third (220) and fourth (100) as a sophomore at the City Meet last spring.

The other pair of returnees are junior Deryl Cochran, who finished the '66 campaign as one of the area's top quarter milers, and Tom Watson, a 9.9 100-yd man who Williams is counting on to fill the gap that Espie left.

OTHER TOP Tiger prospects include: Ron Baskerville (880, mile), Charles Falson (440, 880, mile), Trent Harris (440, 880, mile relay), Dave Harmon (discus), John Jones (hurdles), Dave Michaels (hurdles), Truman Moreland (440, 880, mile), Carl Slappy (220, 440, 880 relay), Purcell Williams (220, 440, 880), Gregory Watson (sprints, 880 relay), Howard Williams (440, 880, mile relay), Bob Young (440, 880, mile relay), Bill Butler (220, 880 relay), Alvia Shaw (440, 880), Jim Garrett (sprints, 880 relay), Dave McReynolds (discus) and Larry Jones (shot, discus).

Here's East's 1967 schedule:

Springs End First Cage Season 5-10

St. Mary of the Springs completed its first year of varsity basketball last Wednesday, finishing with a 5-10 record. The Panthers of Tom Scholl won four of seven home games while dropping seven of eight road contests.

The first St. Mary cagers will be feted March 8 at the Jai Lai and basketball letters and the first most valuable player trophy will be awarded.

The team's two leading scorers were guards Dan Straub and Al Sheridan, who averaged 14 points a game. Other starters included Tom Fitzpatrick, Dennis Craft and Mike Wagenbrenner. Joe Szabo and John Favret worked their way into the starting lineup toward the end of the season.

St. Marys will have 13 players returning next year with the addition of several incoming freshmen. The Panthers' schedule will be beefed up next season with four additional games.

Carling At Walnut Hills

The third annual Lady Carling Open Golf Championship has been rescheduled again this year at Walnut Hills Country Club. The 54-hole event will be played Aug. 4-5-6 with a mixed pro-am slated for Aug. 3.

william s. white ★ CIA Against The Wall ★

WHITE

This country's many articulate victims of the great ultra-liberal syndrome of our time — that is, a quivering fever of conviction that this government is inevitably wrong in any conceivable attempt to set off any really tough backfire to the fires of Communist subversion— have again automatically convicted the poor old Central Intelligence Agency.

CIA's crime this time is the disclosure, first made by a left-wing and bitterly anti-Vietnam-war magazine called Ramparts, that for some 14 years the agency has been giving financial assistance to anti-Communist or non-Communist student groups who seek to resist the incomparably more heavily financed Communist program to indoctrinate the universities everywhere and to dominate any and all student conferences on cold war issues.

Not many of the facts are yet at hand but the liberal-syndrome verdict of guilty as charged is, of course, already in before the jury has even entered the box. The jury is a group of three officials, headed by Under Secretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach, which has been charged by the President to look into this business — into all the facts, and not simply into such facts or alleged facts as the lefties have seen fit to produce.

The President's instructions are for a review of any governmental activity that might endanger the independence of the educational community. But the President's instructions do not stop there. For he recalls well "the great need of American private organizations to participate in the world community."

"Other countries," he observes, "provide substantial subsidies for such activity."

If we want to look at the whole matter of "subsidy" with any honesty, we also want to look well beyond what the CIA alone has done. Some of the largest and most prestige-laden of American foundations have for years undeniably offered much shelter to writers and others whose opposition to any strong stand anywhere to Communist expansionism is perfectly clear on the record.

Now, in this columnist's opinion, this is no crime; for there is nothing in the law or in American tradition to forbid multibillion-dollar foundations to give the better of it to the Left if they so choose. But it is a little silly to suppose that this form of foundation money is absolutely chaste or even absolutely private.

The simple fact is that it, too, is very near to being public money —that is, government money—for had it not all been poured into precisely these foundations, a very great part of it would have been quite rightfully seized by government tax collectors.

The central point of this piece, however, is simply this: There is a spreading American characteristic of self-indictment, alike of the government under any President and of our national motives at any time, that amounts to a national neurosis. Many must forever apologize for every American action, even those actions that are demonstrably generous toward the rest of the world, lest they become guilty of that most unchic of all possible offenses — that is, a decent regard for at least some of the things that the government and the people of the United States have so long tried to do for other less-favored peoples and lands.

So let us not for a moment exculpate the CIA: but let us on the other hand be willing to wait for all the evidence before consigning it to the outer darkness.

marquis childs ★ 'Stop The Bombing' ★

CHILDS

From Hanoi relayed by one of Canada's senior diplomats came a message nearly a year ago that puts recent events in a revealing light. The message was: If the United States will stop bombing in North Vietnam talks looking to peace can begin.

Chester Ronning, with a long experience in China and Southeast Asia, had sent this word. He was convinced, and this was transmitted immediately to the State Department in Washington, that if the bombing could be halted unconditionally the first step in a long and difficult road to peace would be taken.

Since this first breakthrough the same statement in even more unequivocal terms has come directly from Ho Chi Minh and other leading figures in the Hanoi government. Against the background of 12 years of service on the International Control Commission for Vietnam plus several separate missions to Hanoi, there is strong conviction in the Canadian government that this first step could mean a start toward peace. That is why, from the top on down through apparently a wide segment of opinion in the country, there is profound regret that the United States resumed the bombing of the North after the brief lunar new year truce.

The elite group within Canada's small but distinguished foreign service that has devoted so much time and thought to the problem of peace in Vietnam tries to put the bombing of the North in the perspective of Hanoi. The bombing is above and beyond the American intervention in South Vietnam. It is a violation of the territorial integrity of North Vietnam just as much as a land invasion would be.

One of the senior officials in the Ministry of External Affairs expressed it as follows. He compared the war in Vietnam to the civil war in Spain in the late '30s when both Communists and Facist powers intervened. Suppose at that time, he says, the Soviet Union as a further step in intervention had bombed Berlin. This is how Hanoi regards the bombing of the North; they cannot retaliate by bombing Washington but they can make it a precondition of negotiation that the attacks across the 17th parallel stop.

What would happen if and when the United States should stop the bombing unconditionally? After an interval, the reply is, a signal would come through any one of a half-dozen channels for talks between the two sides. The first such tentative signal had come in January, 1966, after the month-long pause and just before the bombing was resumed, it is believed here.

Would the war in the South go on if bombing in the North ceases? Yes, until a compromise peace is worked out through negotiation. The four points repeatedly stated by Ho and others would not be a precondition to the start of talks.

One phase of the debate over bombing in the North is whether America would have to announce a permanent end of bombing. In his reply to the peace appeal of Pope Paul Ho used the French word "definitivement," which is translated as permanent. But in an interview on Jan. 28 the North Vietnamese Foreign Minister did not use definitivement in his call for unconditional cessation nor did Mai Van Bo, North Vietnam's delegate general in Paris, in a statement on Jan. 6.

Because he called for a stop bombing in a speech in Philadelphia a year ago Canada's Prime Minister Lester Pearson is accused of being "anti-American." President Johnson was furious that Pearson made such an appeal in the United States. When recently it was proposed from Ottawa that the Prime Minister pay an informal visit on the President on his way to a Caribbean vacation the response came back, fine, Mr. Johnson will be delighted to see you, but better steer clear of Vietnam.

The effort Canada has put into the ICC, the last vestige of the controls written into the Geneva accords of 1954, is certainly not anti-American. Taking the talents of Canada's abler young diplomats, it is an attempt to keep the door to negotiation open at least a crack.

barry goldwater ★ Britain's Welfare Warning ★

GOLDWATER

Social welfare experimenters have never, to my knowledge, let reality interfere with their visions, or hallucinations.

The more we can see of the failures of planned, totalitarian or mangled economies around the world and around the clock of history, the more our social welfarists charge headlong into more of the same.

If there is an economic philosophy in this administration, for instance, it can be summed up in the word "guidelines." The government, like a benevolent uncle, is supposed to "guide" all the rest of us to prosperity.

It is the failure to observe objective reality that concerns me most regarding our government theorists. They could, but do not, for instance, take warning from Great Britain — not Great Britain yesterday, but Great Britain today.

If they did, we might well see the healthiest pruning of social welfare experimentation in history. If reasonable man would take a reasonable look at what has happened in socialist, planned-economy Great Britain, we would prudently go the other way.

Socialist England is in the midst of a depression, as any newspaper reader knows. She has been in the grip of a slow decline for years. Meaningfully coincident with this decline has been a persistent increase in economic "management" and social welfare experimentation. The connection hasn't escaped the British, but true to their bulldog mascot they refused to let go of a pet idea, even in the face of reality.

Just a glance at the current depression shows some of the socialist folly whose spirit our own planners persist in following as they ignore the results. In order to bolster the sagging economy, the government has declared an "economic austerity" program.

Now that sounds thrifty and constructive, but it certainly isn't. The austerity doesn't extend to profligate government spending on social welfare or on actual take-over of industry, but applies mainly to private industry. So far the result is that about a quarter-million men are out of work and on relief. By year's end it may do the same for a half-million more, all in the name of government planning or, as our planners would say, government guidelines.

It might work in open economy, but not in a closed one. Housing in Great Britain is just about half-public housing, and strict government control of the remaining private housing means that there is a severe shortage. So, in many cases there simply aren't houses or apartments for workers in "essential" areas even if they wanted to shift after losing their other jobs in the government's austerity program.

And so it goes in the weird world of socialism. The question remains: Is anyone in Washington really watching?

editorials . . .

The Artful Dodgers

There is a growing clique of politicians and newspaper editors who have adopted the premise that the ends in government will justify the means.

However well-intentioned they may be, they are mistaken and misguided. And in the end, the public trust in its press and its political leadership can only be shaken.

Every newspaper editor in Ohio knows by now the state is in for a massive tax increase because of four years of neglect.

Every politician knows that the Ohio Bond Commission proposal of Governor Rhodes which is being hurried to the ballot is racing with that tax increase and will compound the need for even greater tax increases.

The majority of Ohio's press however feels it is its duty to promote the bond plan rather than explain it to the people. The press and its alliance of politicians are convinced they know what is best—at least for themselves— and they are determined to spoon feed the public accordingly.

The amount of the pending tax increase will not be disclosed until after the fate of the bond plan is decided by voters at a special election.

It appears to The Spectator Newspapers that honest journalism and honest government would insist that the people get the facts before the decision is made, not after the deed is done.

Saluting The Best

The Spectator Newspapers are happy to salute high school wrestlers in this week's edition with the announcement of the paper's fourth All-Star squad.

Amateur wrestling has finally achieved an unyielding beachhead in Central Ohio in both fan popularity and participation.

Three champions for the Central District at the recent State Meet and enthusiastic programs like that which attracted over 200 youngsters to the Hilltop YMCA last week are solid indications that the sport has "come of age" in Central Ohio.

It is for these reasons that The Spectator Newspapers, by honoring the best wrestlers in the District on an All-Star squad and the best of the best via The Mike Clark Memorial Trophy, proudly acknowledge these young men who have accepted the most rugged physical and mental discipline that a high school athletic program can demand.

In a world which shall make such challenging demands on our leaders of tomorrow, we find few better programs to provide that vital preparation.

The Glorious Years

This week The Spectator Newspapers salute that most remarkable of ages—the teens.

Included in this week's editions will be the special supplement "Tales Out of Schools," written primarily by teen age high school students who are striking for careers in journalism.

Each year The Spectator Newspapers award a $200 scholarship, plus other prizes, in its efforts to encourage journalism careers abong high school students.

But the contest is more than just a competition for prizes. It is an effort to focus attention on the 95 percent of those mis-understood teen agers who strive, perform and endure the terrors of the teens and go on to become responsible adults.

Don't be too critical of today's teen agers. They are smarter, stronger, healthier, more ambitious, more determined and better prepared for life than any previous generation. And they have more of our mistakes to correct than any generation—except possibly the next one.

Credibility Quiz

By ROBERT BURDOCK
Editor and Publisher

BURDOCK

People apparently like to play parlor games, especially those that test their wit and wisdom. So, from time to time, this column will be devoted to a test which is designed to let you find out for yourself is somebody is stuffing beans up your nose.

Sounds like fun, doesn't it? It may also help you decide for yourself if the only "credibility gap" is the one you hear so much about in Washington, D.C.

Ready? Let's go.

During the last 16 years Ohio has had four governors, one of whom became known as a "big spender" and another who gained a reputation for "austerity."

Don't quit! You think the test is too easy. You read the daily newspapers regularly and right off you recall Governor DiSalle was the "big spender" and Governor Rhodes practices fiscal "austerity," right?

Wrong! Just the opposite is proved by the record.

Governor Lausche's 1951-53 budget was 794 million. His next budget was $1,023 billion an increase of 28.9 percent. Lausche's final budget (1955-57) hit $1.399 billion, an increase of 36.7 percent.

Governor O'Neill's budget for 1957-59 was $1.992 billion, up 37.4 percent over Lausche's.

Governor DiSalle's first budget (1959-61) was up only $60 million over O'Neill's, an increase of 3.2 percent and the most modest increase in the 16 year period.

DiSalle's second budget (1961-63) was $2.120 billion, an increase of 6.9 percent over the first.

Governor Rhodes' first "austerity" budget (1963-65) was up $243 million over DiSalle's(an increase of 11.5 percent.

Rhodes' second budget (1965-67) hit $3.016 billion, as increase of 27.6 percent over his first, the largest dollar increase in the history of the state.

The current Rhodes budget reflects an increase of $900 million, or 42 percent over the last DiSalle budget.

Did you flunk the first test? Cheer up! We'll have one soon on capital punishment and you know you'll pass that one. Right? Be careful!

Not Hungry

To The Editor:

The more I read of this welfare, the madder and more disgusted I become.

My husband is an engineer with a good salary. We have two children. With nice shopping I "Manage" to feed our family very well on $70 a month. The children's share is about $25, since they don't eat expensive snacks and cakes. We even have steak, bacon and butter — I don't consider this underprivileged.

With the other $20 that a welfare mother gets for two children, I could have a ball. We don't spend that much for clothing for all four of us, and we also dress well.

These are not random figures. I'd be glad to show anyone my carefully kept budget.

If you wonder why I'm so careful on a good salary, we paid $1,100 in income tax, my husband is in law school at the rate of $100 a month and we have two cars—all because we spend wisely and carefully.

No Trouble

To The Editor:

It certainly did my heart good to see that there wasn't any trouble when Worthington played Upper Arlington last Saturday night.

After all that trouble last week, a lot of us were really worried that something might start up again when the two teams played again.

I hope all those people who criticized our two communities after that first little bit of trouble will be just as quick to praise our kids for proving they could control themselves.

A few troublemakers shouldn'e be allowed to give a bad name to two entire cities.

Another Tie-Up

To The Editor:

So we had another snow storm and we had more traffic jams the next morning.

I realize how tough it is for the snow crews to keep up with a heavy storm, but it sure seems to me that at least the freeways could be cleared up by the rush hour in the morning.

The East Freeway on Monday morning was a madhouse. About a lane and a half were open and traffic was slowed down all over the east side.

I hope our traffic department can figure out a quicker way to clear the streets by the next snowstorm.

Entertainment Notes

South Hamilton Road is the site for an inn where patrons are entertained with food, drink and the Mickey Wilson Trio.

Aptly called the Coventry Inn, the atmosphere created through decor and personnel is that of old England charm.

The astonishing factor lending to the popularity of Coventry Inn is the menu, which has a wide range to select from with costs below the average around town.

A special buffet luncheon is served daily from 11 am to 2:30 p.m. which is the absolute minimum in cost.

Downstairs is the Squire's Den which opens at 8:30 p.m. A bar, dance area and a seating capacity of over 150 lend to the coziness and relaxed atmosphere.

Soft lights, a fireplace and the use of lumber from old buildings make for a romantic setting.

The entertainment, the Mickey Wilson Trio, consists of organist Mickey Wilson, drummer Hal Chapman and guitarist Don Beck.

This trio is in the process of broadening its repertoire, which originally was rock 'n roll, to selections ranging from "misty" type numbers through rock 'n roll.

Coast Guard Head Advocates Single Set Of Safety Standards

"One set of safety standards developed impartially by a broad-based standards-setting body, representing all boating interests, is a philosophy long advocated by the Coast Guard." So states Admiral Willard J. Smith, commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard.

This Coast Guard position needs reiteration to boating interests at this time in view of the present widely publicized congressional activity in the field of industry safety standards. A number of congressional and private inquiries have been directed to the Coast Guard as to what the boating industry is doing about safety in boats, including their construction and equipment.

Admiral Smith made it clear that the Coast Guard wishes to see minimum federal regulations and control, consistent with public safety plus uniform nationwide incorporation and enforcement of any regulations that are necessary.

Such a desirable situation is entirely feasible if boating industry regulates itself effectively through a broad-based standards-setting body. Clear and adequate safety standards developed through an organization comprising independent talent from government, industry and other interests would provide proper balance and would safeguard the public interest.

Voluntary industry acceptance of such standards, established by one composite group, recognized by all concerned, would have several benefits. First, it would minimize the likelihood of future government intervention. Secondly, it would eliminate confusion resulting from multiplicity of standards. Thirdly, it would help to create the necessary climate for greater and more effective coordination of effort in all areas of recreational boating safety.

Boat Show Continues At Buckeye Building

Everything from canoes to cabin cruisers can be seen at the Fifth Annual Boat Show now through Sunday in the Buckeye Building on the Ohio State Fairgrounds in Columbus.

Marine dealers from all over Central Ohio are exhibiting boats, motors and trailers during this "Original" Boat Show.

In discussing the many fine exhibits, Show Manager George Lindsey said, "Without a doubt, this year's boat show promises to be the most outstanding show of its type in the country. We have over a million dollars worth of boats, motors and trailers on display."

Lindsey anticipates that this year's show, which is sponsored annually by the Central Ohio Marine Dealers Association, will be seen by between 75,000 and 100,000 people.

As Batman's able assistant, Robin, would say, "Holy Barnacles!"

Pirates and other arch criminals will surely disappear from the seven seas when Batman's new super-secret superweapon, the "BAT BOAT" is launched into action.

The exciting "BAT BOAT," designed and built especially for Batman and Robin by the Glastron Boat Company, is on display at the Central Ohio Marine Dealers Association's "Fifth Annual Boat Show." This is the "original" boat show, now in progress at the Buckeye Building, Ohio State Fairgrounds, Columbus, Ohio.

In command of the "BAT BOAT" while it's anchored at the boat show will be "Bat Girl" ready and able to demonstrate the BAT BOAT'S super weapons, such as BAT-DAR with antenna and scope (to find the evil doers) . . . BAT CHARGE — to battle the Penguin's submarine . . . BAT PHONE . . . BAT-RAY—to freeze the arch criminals! . . . plus a new secret power source by MER-CRUISER.

Escaping Fumes Biggest Cause Of Boat Mishaps

Escaping gasoline fumes are the greatest single cause of property damage in pleasure boating today, according to reports compiled by the U.S. Coast Guard.

There were 3,740 boating accidents reported in 1965, 268 of which were directly attributable to fire or explosion of fuel, resulting in almost $1.4 million worth of damage to the recreational craft involved. This type of boating accident accounted for the death of 18 persons and for the injury of 214 persons last year.

LET'S KNIT

A PRACTICAL ALL-OCCASION sweater requested by knitters is modeled by vivacious Lori Saunders of CBS television's "Petticoat Junction." Whether shopping or dating—this sweater is great for day or evening wear! Sleeve and hemedges are worked in a ribbing pattern of knit two, purl two. A decorative pattern panel adorns each front. To balance the design of this garment, this same pattern is repeated in the collar which makes for an interesting neckline effect. A plus feature is the much loved raglan sleeve. Even a beginner can't miss as the knitting-know-how are the knit and purl stitches. For the added professional touch we had the button holes made by machine. This service any knit or buttonhole shop will do for you. Another eye-catching feature is the large two-eyed abalone buttons which we sewed to the garment using the same yarn. "Happy Knitting": this sweater is striking in any color! Illustrated instructions are written in sizes eight through 22. All sizes are included on one pattern. Straight skirt pattern 90 or A-Skirt pattern 92 will transform this garment into an impressive suit. Instructions for either skirt come in sizes 10 through 22. If you wish to obtain pattern 137, 90 or 92, send 75 cents for EACH pattern in coin, check, or money order to: Ursula duBois, Spectator Newspapers, Box 3307, Van Nuys, Calif. 91407.

Who's For Noodles?

German Village, long associated with German pastry, German cheese and German beer may soon be well-known for another German-oriented food. Opening its doors recently at 7 E. Brewers-st is the German Village Foods, Inc., the initial product of which will be old-fashioned noodles, made from an old-fashioned recipe foregoing mass production techniques and retaining the qualities available only when a rich flour and egg product are beaten, rolled and slowly dried. The president of the new German Village enterprise is James B. Miller, a native of Akron, who has been in the egg noodle industry for the past 12 years. Among his affiliations are the German Village Society and the Columbus Chamber of Commerce.

Spanish War Veteran On Fourth Duty Tour

By Priscilla LaRue Lesser

Somewhere in Saigon a tiny silk American flag is being carried by a Columbus lad.

But anyone counting the stars would find something lacking.

THAT IS the five stars added since the veteran flag first went to war with a Kentucky-born uncle of Mrs. James (Frances) Colegrove, 45 E. Markison.

Mrs. Colegrove was just a child when Harry McIntyre returned safely from battle with the flag given him by his mother.

When Jerry Dennis packed the flag as he headed toward Vietnam it was the fourth tour of duty in as many wars for the emblem which has become a family treasure.

WHEN BOY STEED, Mrs. Colegrove's brother and former West Side resident, left for World War I two decades later his Uncle Harry asked him to carry the flag.

Although wounded in Europe, Steed returned and when World War II broke he placed the flag in the care of his nephew, Jack Colegrove the James Colegrove's youngest son.

The former Marine who now lives in California eventually turned it over to his nephew David Colegrove who is serving in the Navy.

HOWEVER WHEN Dennis, another nephew was assigned to Vietnam it was decided he should take the little flag to allow it to fulfill its tradition of front line service.

Fragile with old age as any venerable Spanish American War veteran the flag is now carefully protected by cellophane.

When Dennis returns to his wife and infant daughter who are now living with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Pyles, 742 Pearce-av, it is likely to go back to his cousin, David son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Colegrove, 1394 Studer-av, who by that time will be stationed in Turkey.

TO ME there is an intriguing symbolism in the flag being passed from uncle to nephew throughout the past 70 years.

Does it not represent "Uncle Sam" depending on his "nephews" in the service to keep "Old Glory" intact?

Bexley Students Place High In American Legion Test

Bexley High School had four students place among the 12 state winners in the Ohio American Legion's Americanism and Government test program given recently.

The winners from the senior class were Kurt Krauss, 174 N. Cassingham, and Sevie Shar, 81 N. Merkle, while the junior class winners were Phil Lang, 2381 Brentwood-rd, and Judi Gross, 295 S. Ardmore-rd. The boys scored 100 each while the girls scored 98 each.

"An outstanding two-year course in history and government appears to be the reason for this unusual result at Bexley High," said C. William Heacock, Americanism chairman at Bexley Post 430. "Never before in the history of this test or of its predecessor, the Americanism Essay Contest which dated back to 1934, had one school placed more than two state winners."

Heacock said that the high school had 246 11th and 12th grade students take the test and that the results were uniformly high and above the average of most of Ohio." More than 50,000 students took the test in the state.

The test included 15 questions on the U.S. government, 15 on the state government, 10 of county government, 10 on the U.S. flag and a brief essay on "What Can I Do for My Country."

The 12 state winners will be taken on an auto tour to Washington, D.C., Colonial Virginia, Annapolis and the Gettysburg battlefield or March 30 through April 7.

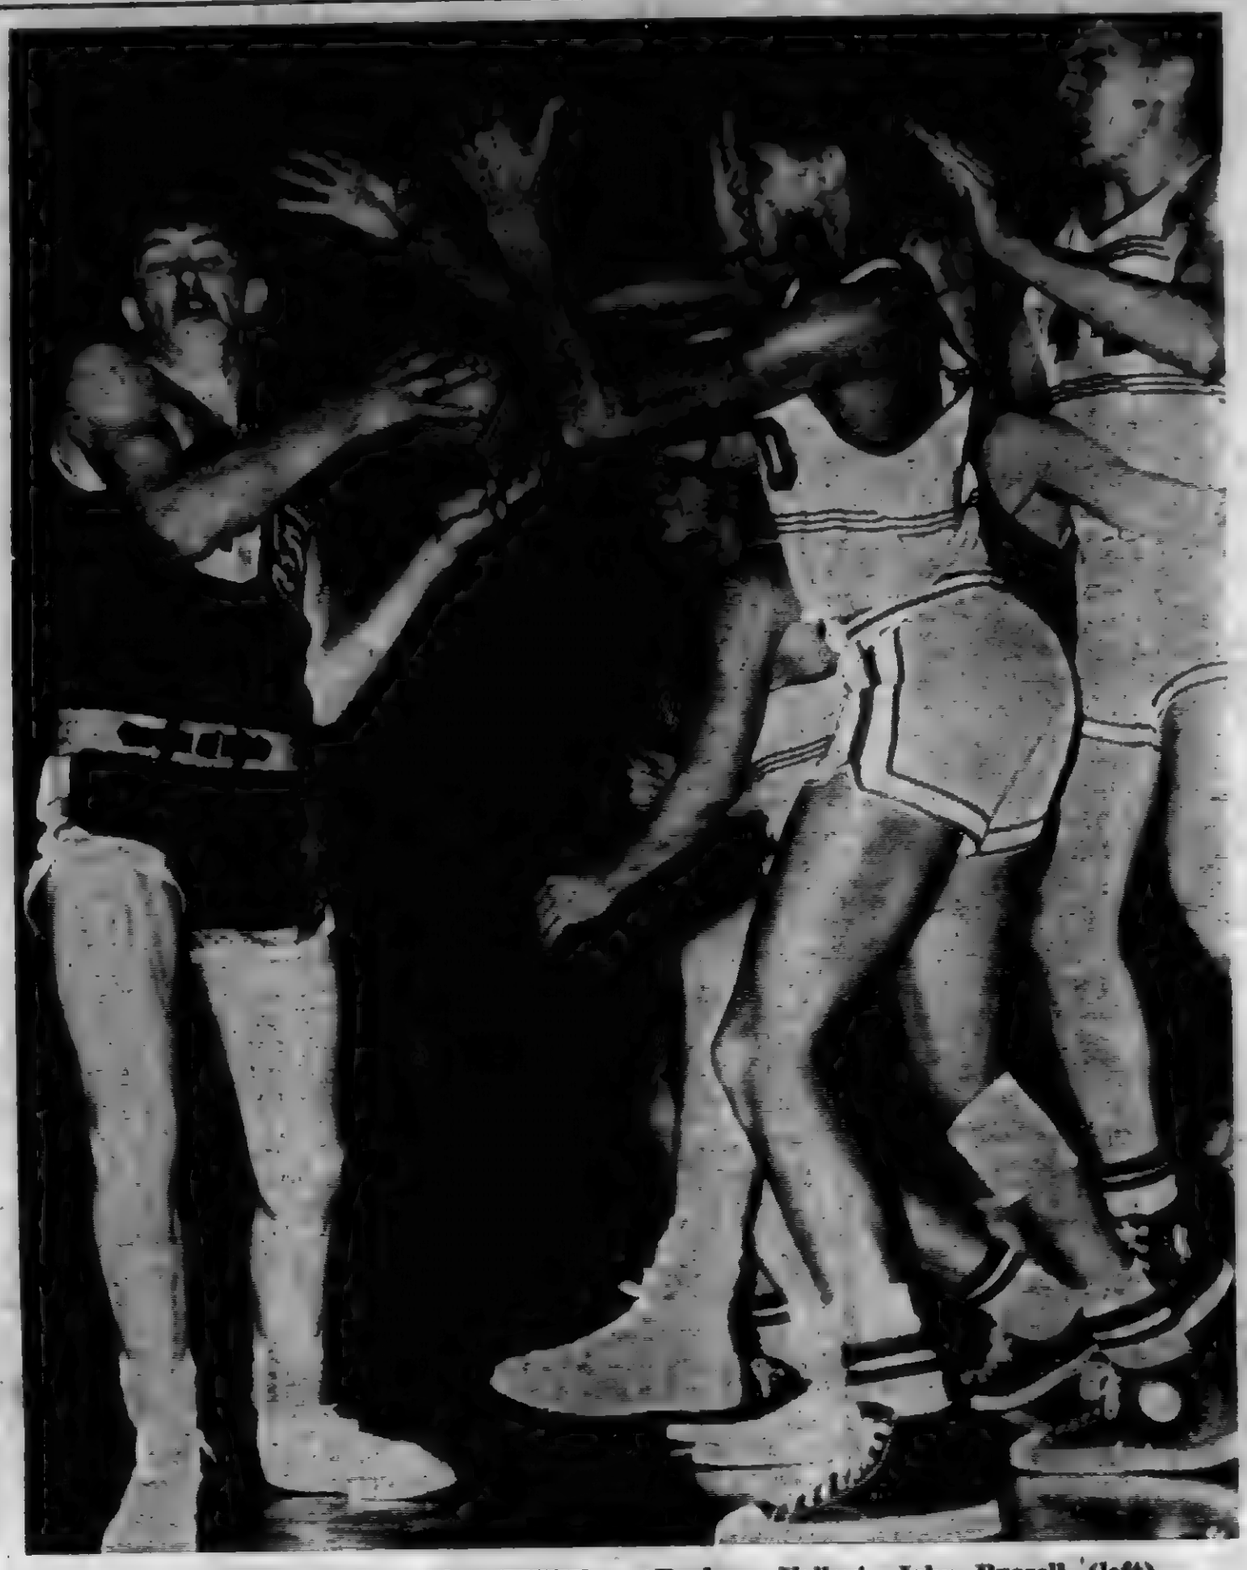
Class AA Tourney Ranks Getting Thinner And...

It doesn't take an astute observer of cage tournaments anywhere to figure out that the winners are in short supply, like about one to each division in each state.

The Central District drawing brackets are getting thinner and thinner each night with only six teams left for Thursday and Saturday action which will cut them to two and let the Columbus Regional do with them what they want.

BUT THOSE cold facts don't decrease the excitement of any game beyond the first round. And high on the drama lists was West and Eastmoor's demise to surpriser Buckeye Valley, Arlington's first half against Worthington, Grove City's first quarter vs. Linden and the rousing Newark-De-Sales match.

West fell to Dick Meyer's 20-1 Barons 62-61 in an overtime while Red Courtney's group was eased out of the AA action 54-51 on a three point play in the last 15 seconds by Dan Helton. That erased the good things that the Warriors did like get double iget efforts from Jack Parry (16) and Eric Walz (11) and lead 32-19 at halftime.



GROVE CITY and Arlington had the fans buzzing for a while as they looked like they might be able to run with the seeded 'guys'. Grove City led Linden 15-13 at the first stop only to fall 87-53 and Arlington was within two 22-20 with 1:26 in the first half but finally fell 64-55 to Worthington.

West was sacked when Dan Helton pitched in four foul shots in a row to grab BV a 62-59 lead with 35 seconds remaining in the overtime, and only a run of 10 points by Dick Schenk's Newark crew saved the Wildcats' from a CCL setback.

It was with great sorrow that I learned last week that my good friend and a stalwart fighter for common sense gun laws — Marvin Driver — has decided to retire to his proverbial chicken ranch in Michigan.

For years Marv has been the Midwest region agent for the National Rifle Association. Because of him, many hundreds of gun training classes have trained tens of thousands of youngsters in the proper use of firearms. He has been at every outdoor writers' meet and most of the League of Ohio Sportsmen sessions.

PAUGH

Each time he came, he brought with him new ideas and new ways we can advise and steer gun sports and collectors to improve their image with the public.

Marv retired once. He was, for 25 years, a police chief in the neighboring state of Michigan. Two years ago this week, he spoke to us over our Saturday breakfast and threw the clincher in his fight against unfair gun legislation.

HE TOLD us flatly that in all his years as a peace officer (and never before or since) has he found a single case where gun registration solved a crime. Not once in his 55 adult years.

More than 65,000 hunters, target shooters and collectors added their voice to the already loud cry of indignation by the National Rifle Association.

This brings the total enrollment to more than 805,000 throughout the nation who are willing and happy to pay $6.50 per year to aid in the defense of their freedom to own their guns without government harassment.

THERE WAS no great push by NRA nor were there paid solicitors to swell the ranks. Just human nature brought them to the front to protect our Constitution.

I write on this subject again so soon because I feel the hot breath of useless government control from two directions this month.

A State Representative from Cleveland (Carl Stokes) has authored House Bill 229 to bring about almost total abolishment of shooting sports. Only you can stop this useless and tax-eating scheme to register guns of all kinds.

THE WIRE service this week carried a report by the President's Crime Commission. The last suggestion on the list could easily have been written at the Kremlin. It stated in black and white that all guns must be registered in order to cut down on crime.

With nearly 120 million guns in the hands of civilians this is the most naive statement ever to stammer out of Washington. If that brainy commission would use a touch of common sense, it would surely realize that it would take great office buildings in every state to keep constant track of those guns. That is, if every one did as they were told and put their liberty on the block along with their home-defense weapons.

GAHANNA'S MID-EIGHT CO-CHAMPIONS

East—

sive M-F lineup is Forest Shearer, a 6-2 jumping jack forward who has supplied some scoring and rebounding punch since becoming a varsity member midway through the year.

Another major problem for the East boss is standout Dana Zartman, who has been coming into his own in front of tournament crowds. He impressed the 4,165 paid customers with 26 points, and tossed in 30 at Coopers Arena the first night out.

"THEY HAVE been improving," Hart assured, "and we will have to stop Zartman."

M-F coach Bob Holderle is also a doubtful starter Thursday due to a flare up of a back injury sustained in the Marion faculty-WCOL battle early in the year.

SAID ACTING coach Jim Harper, currently 1-0 on the basketball floor to go along with his sharp football log on Holderle's chances to be ready Thursday: "I sure hope so, I certainly don't want to coach against East."

UA Swimmers Maintain District Superiority

Upper Arlington maintained its firm grasp on the District swimming crown Saturday by swamping all comers in another runaway victory.

John Bruce's Golden Bears splashed to five of six new District marks en route to the lopsided win — UA finishing with a 120-39½ point lead on runnerup Whetstone.

BEAR CO-CAPTAIN Bill Copeland paced the record tumbling with a 1:55 effort in the 200-yd. freestyle and a leg (with Mark Ezell, Chuck Palmer and Jim Baker) in a speedy 3:27.5 in the freestyle relay.

Doug Reiser (4:14 in 400-yd. f.s.) and Chuck Howard (1:06 in 100-yd. breaststroke) also garnered new marks, the pair joining with Andy Snow and John Hosterman to card the fifth mark — a 1:46.3 in the medley relay event.

Worthington's Colin Montgomery was the lone double winner, collecting victories in both the 50 and 100-yd. freestyle events.

THE REMAINDER of the District field finished thusly: Newark (37½), Academy (33), Worthington (22), Greenfield (20), Bexley (8), Lancaster (4) and Grove City (2).

Welfare—The Poor Fight Back

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the text of an NBC News special report broadcast Monday, Feb. 6, on the nationally-televised "Huntley-Brinkley Report." It is reprinted here as part of The Spectator's continuing effort to inform the public on the problems of social welfare).

CHET HUNTLEY: "The number of people on welfare in the United States is not large. About 17 percent of the population is defined statistically as poor, but only four percent of the population is on relief, and most of these people are unemployable. They are too young and too old and too disabled. The system is not taking care of their problems as well as it might.

"Administration costs are high and some of the ground rules appear to inhibit rather than encourage initiative. There is more and more talk therefore, about guaranteed annual incomes for the poor and about putting a standard nationwide floor under the amount of money any person would receive. There are many examples of what the economists and sociologists are concerned about. Wallace Westfeld reports from Columbus, Ohio."

WALLACE WESTFELD: "The most direct way to the world of the poor in Columbus was through the doors of the Welfare Department. It was a world in human terms of about 36,000 people. Contrary to the generally accepted belief that most of them could work if they wanted to, surveys have shown that about 75 percent of the people on welfare in Columbus were children and their mothers who had to stay home to take care of them. Only about three percent could work and then only at low-skilled jobs. It also became apparent that those who sought aid from the public did so under a system that seemed out of place in a society as civilized and comfortable as that in Columbus. But no matter how compassionate the social worker, the applicant for public money was automatically suspect."

INTAKE WORKER, MRS. SUSAN FEIBEL: "Do you have any income now at all from any source?"

CLIENT, MRS. LASH: "No."

MRS. FEIBEL: "Do you have an automobile?"

MRS. LASH: "No."

MRS. FEIBEL: "Bank account?"

MRS. LASH: "No."

MRS. FEIBEL: "Savings bonds?"

MRS. LASH: "No."

MRS. FEIBEL: "Safety deposit bonds?"

MRS. LASH: "No."

MRS. FEIBEL: "Before we go any further, Mrs. Lash, I'd like to explain to you a little about the responsibilities here in the office. As long as you're receiving public assistance it's your responsibility to notify your caseworker of any income you have in the house at any time, and also of the income of any of your children or any other person who might be living in the home with you. How have you been meeting your needs up to now?"

MRS. LASH: "Well, I've just lived the best I could."

WESTFELD: "Recipients soon find out that being placed onto welfare rolls is no answer to their poverty. It may ease their situation but it won't solve it. This is particularly true in Ohio where an antiquated state policy allows only about 70 percent of what the state itself says is absolutely necessary for the most minimum living standard. So, here, as elsewhere, the recipients quickly discover that their benefits have done little more than guarantee their life in poverty."

WESTFELD: (with film of Williams home): "The people who live in this house have been trapped that way. The head of the family is Mrs. Wanda Williams whose husband deserted her and their eight children three years ago. Under Ohio's Aid to Dependent Children program they have only 73 cents per day per person to live on after paying the rent, about 70 percent of what they should have to live with with any degree of decency."

MRS. WANDA WILLIAMS: "It gets to be a squeezing for pennies and dimes that most people aren't accustomed to having to do. There are so many things that wear out, that need to be replaced, that you can't replace, making sure that the kids all have shoes when they need them. And my kids having to buy school supplies, this is a big problem when school starts. We are stripped to the bone. You can't go forward, you can't go backward, you're just middle ground, you have to stay where you're at."

WESTFELD: "Thomas Brittenham, the director of welfare for Franklin County, like most social workers here, is distressed at the situation."

BRITTENHAM: "The only way we can get out of this mess is first to recognize that it is a mess, something we're dissatisfied with. I think we're basically afraid of the poor, and we give them just enough to keep them down, so to speak; and this is a form of control which those of us within the system feel extremely uncomfortable about and wonder sometimes if we're doing the right thing by being a part of it."

WESTFELD: "Dissatisfied and impatient, the poor people in Columbus and the rest of Ohio have started to organize. In Columbus, they formed the Welfare Rights Organization. And two weeks ago, 600 recipients from throughout the state gathered here for the Ohio Adequate Welfare Assembly. The speaker was Dr. George Wiley, director of a movement to organize the nation's poor."

DR. WILEY: Your state legislature here in Ohio has no intention, they have no intention of raising those standards to 100 percent of health and decency. They have no intention because fundamentally they do not care! Until you can mount substantial support for that kind of a program, there are going to be no changes in Ohio. And you'd better understand that, and you'd better understand it well!"

* * *

WESTFELD: "Afterwards they walked over to the General Assembly where they lobbied for raising their benefits up to 100 percent of what the state had said they should be. Some legislators seem to listen with sympathy. Some even talked of agreeing to at least a token increase. Rep. Bob Jones of Columbus, who favors a substantial increase, had this to say:"

JONES: "I feel that this year there will be an increase made. I have some doubts in my mind as to whether it will reach 100 percent this particular year because of the

'Y' MEMBERSHIP DRIVE WITHIN $1400 OF GOAL

With 50 workers yet to report, Bob Davis of the South Side YMCA at presstime tallied $12,598.50 collected during the recent membership drive.

As this represents 91 percent of the $13,800 goal, Davis and other "Y" officials are optimistic about "going over the top" during the clean-up, mop-up stages of the annual fund drive.

DIVISION II under the leadership of Fred Erfurt was top producer with the volunteers turning in a total of $2,010. C. L. Dumaree led division I to second place with $1,916. Divisions VI and IV under the management of Dave Wilson and Mrs. Rita Balcum third and fourth with $1,750 and $1,482 respectively.

Fred Erfurt, in addition to leading his division to victory, was top individual with his personal efforts reaping $350. Second and third went to Richard Waller with $330 and John Atkinson, $315.

The next six places going to top producers among the 191 volunteer workers were fourth, Bob Madden, $300; fifth, "Cap" Hoover, $270; sixth, Don Tate and Leo Gaffin, $230; seventh, C. C Brown, $175; eighth, Mrs. Merle Kenney and Bob Lund, $150, and ninth, Bill Plank, $145.

DAVIS EXPLAINED that maintenance of the present YMCA program depended upon the success of the drive which involved memberships for children, adult and families as well as the "Partnership With Youth" through which "Y" privileges are not withheld from any youngsters because of their financial inability to pay dues.

"Each and every membership is important to us so that our work of Christian leadership can continue," he stated in expressing the gratitude of himself and the staff for the support of the community.

PLANS MAY WEDDING

Mr. Tony V. Policario, 769 Chestershire - rd, and Mrs. Palma Helsel, 4235 E. Moundst, announced the engagement of their daughter Roseann Policaro to Mark William Johnson. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Johnson, 860 Chestershire. Miss Policaro graduated from Bishop Ready High School, before attending Ohio State University and is employed by the International Harvester Company in Columbus. Johnson, also a Bishop Ready graduate, is enrolled in the College of Commerce and Administration at OSU. The wedding will be an event of May 6 at St. Mary Magdalene Church.

Steiner-Ream Wedding Planned For June 17

Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Steiner of Erie, Pa., are announcing the engagement of their daughter Susan Elizabeth to Roger Hull Ream, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Ream, 7648 Broadwyn - dr, Reynoldsburg.

Miss Steiner is a senior at Kent State University majoring in elementary education. She is a member of Gamma Epsilon Chapter of Delta Gamma sorority.

Ream is a senior at Michigan State University where he is majoring in hotel, restaurant and institutional management. He is affiliated with Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

The wedding will be an event of June 17 at the First Presbyterian Church in Erie.

And So It Grows

Some of the less common vegetables such as salsify, okra, and Swiss chard might be fun to have in your garden this spring. Altogether, Ohio gardeners can grow nearly 50 different kinds of vegetables.

Even if you've tried all the kinds, you'll find many varieties of each vegetable. For example, in the lettuce family, you could grow leaf, head, Cos, Romaine and Butterhead.

Success of your garden may depend on where you put it, say OSU Extension horticulturists. Ideal location for a garden is a level, well-drained, sunny spot with rich, deep, friable sandy loam that is well supplied with organic matter and is free from rocks and other debris.

But if you're like most gardeners, you have to settle for less. So, before you plant, check the water and sunlight supplies. Vegetable plants need good drainage. If water stands on the surface of the soil too long, plants could even die. Also, if possible put your garden close to a water supply so you can irrigate during a summer drouth.

Plenty of sun is another requirement for growing vegetables. At least six hours a day is needed for lettuce, collards, spinach, chard and kale. Tomatoes, eggplant, peppers and snap beans require even more.

When planning your vegetable garden — choose crops to fit the available space, group vegetables according to growing seasons and growth characteristics, and make successive planting for a continuous supply of fresh vegetables.

If you have a pruning chore awaiting for you in your raspberry patch, Extension fruit specialists suggest you'll get best results by getting the job done during March, or after the danger of severe freezes is past. Be sure to remove all dead, severly damaged, or weak canes.

budgetary situation already in the state of Ohio. I think it's a matter of how much we can give, how much will we be able to increase welfare benefits this year."

WESTFIELD: "State officials have estimated that it would cost an additional $70 million dollars to raise benefits to the level necessary for a minimum standard of living. They have also said that any effort to get the full amount from the legislature would probably be defeated, because the public is generally indifferent to the poor and opposed to new taxes. So Ohio's poor people will probably have to go on living without dignity and decency for some time to come.

"Wallace Westfeld, NBC News, Columbus, Ohio."

STEVE ROSS LIKES company, simply for the sake of company, but this group was especially welcome. In addition to companionship, they brought him his new "throne" which entitled him to retire the chair which has been his principal means of locomotion for the past seven years. From the left are Cathy Cecutti, Tom Omicron, Sr. Patricia Joseph and Mel DePietra.

Now Steve Can Travel In Style

By JANE ROBINSON
Spectator Staff Writer

Last fall The Spectator told the story of Steve Ross.

Although it was not a happy story, it was a story of personal courage and one of hope.

STEVE, SON of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ross of 1894 Vaughn-st is a severely brain-damaged lad who at the age of 14 is struggling to learn voluntarily the movements of crawling which can lead to walking that most children learn instinctively.

After years of resignation, Steve's parents were given a ray of hope last summer that Steve may eventually lead a fairly normal life.

This came when he was accepted for treatment by the Institutes for the Achievement of Human Potential in Philadelphia.

AFTER INTENSIVE diagnosis at the Pennsylvania center Steve was sent home to begin exhaustive therapy which involves training the undamaged parts of his brain to take over the jobs ordinarily assumed by that portion which no longer functions.

This theory in the treatment of cerebral palsy involves teams of volunteers putting Steve through his "patterns" six times a day and his mother spending most of her waking hours working with other phases of his handicap.

The story was written to draw to public attention not only the determination of Steve and his family, but the willingness of others to abandon apathy to give this boy a chance.

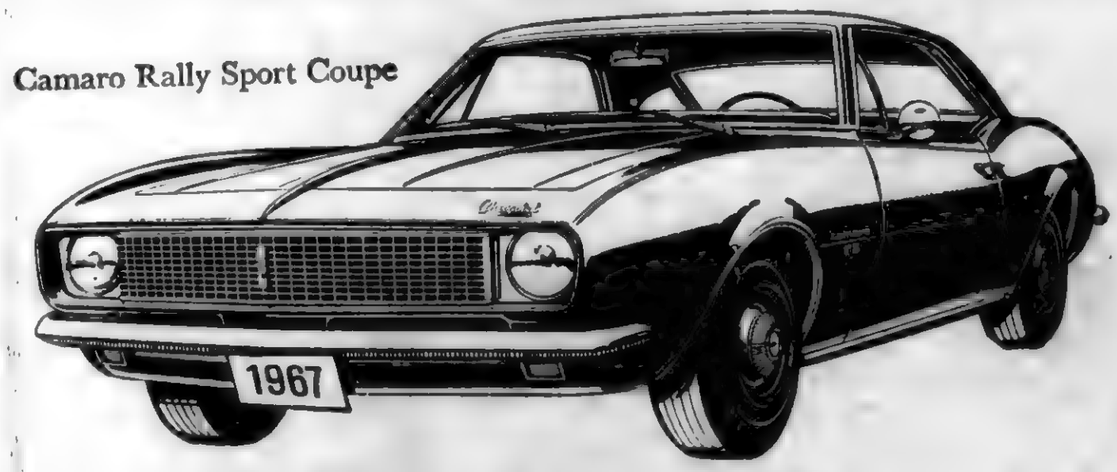
STEVE'S STORY spread and Mrs. Mary Gerlack, a former lay teacher at St. Agnes, volunteered to tutor him without charge.

Through her pastor, Steve's plight eventually reacher Sr. Patricia Joseph of St. Christopher School.

She soon had one of the seventh and eighth grade groups, to which she acts as an advisor, as interested in Steve as if he'd been one of them.

WHEN TIME came for the annual Christmas story, two decisions were made. The story to be acted out would be Dickens' Christmas story and all funds would go toward securing Steve a new wheel chair.

Last week the presentation was made and it was difficult to determine whether it was more blessed to give or to receive.



There is a wide, wide gulf between those healthy, relatively carefree youngsters from St. Christopher and the boy with the crippled body who struggles valiantly to crawl across the floor or to hold his head erect.

YET, they seemed to understand each other.

When Steve boasted he had learned to peel a tangerine at Christmas time they gave his accomplishment the same credit due one of their peers who had pitched a no-hitter.

Steve will probably never be a diamond star, but once again it was evident he is a boy who will pitch until he wins.

Color Important In Decorating

Color is very important since everything around us has color. Most individuals are not aware of the significance of color in each of our lives.

When you start to decorate your room, select a dominant color that is beneficial to your make-up, as color tends to influence an individual's emotions.

Let us take a look at just a few colors and how they affect people.

Shades of red and orange-red, if used in great quantity, tend to be highly stimulating. Few people could live in a red room and not be high-strung. Orange, in its pure state, can be very tiring.

Blue is enjoyed by most people although it is the coldest of all colors. People who have a tendency to be easily stimulated can live very well with blue because it acts as a sedative. On the other hand, if one has a tendency to be depressed he should avoid using a great deal of blue. Other colors that fall in this same classification are blue-green, violet-blue and all other shades that are predominately blue.

The color that is restful and easy on the eyes is green. Because we associate green with nature we therefore feel more comfortable living with green. But just like any other color, too much will become monotonous.

If you have a room where much time is spent, yellow is not a good choice. A little bit of yellow goes a long way since it is a very strong hue.

BAKER WINS CONTRACT

A $12,549 contract has been awarded to G. M. Baker & Son, 145 Hosack-st, for the repair of six water wells at Lockbourne Air Force Base, according to the base procurement division.

South Takes DECA Firsts

South High students in Distributive Education took four out of 10 firsts at the district DECA conference held at Whitehall High School last week.

They are Tiarre Welsh, speech; Jackie Reavling, job interview; Richard Roshon, display and Paul Halliman, business vocabulary.

These district honors, earned in competition with DECA clubs from Whitehall, Central, West, Gahanna, North, East and Brookhaven high schools entitles them to participate in the State DECA conference to be held March 10 and 11 at the Neil House.

Other South students placing in the district are Ruby Law, parliamentary law; Sharon Lewis, business mathematics and Susan Haskett who was named DECA Sweetheart. Each took a third.

Fifteen Schools Pick Up Berths As Diversity Marks 4th Annual Team

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

District champion DeSales managed the only double-berth landing on the fourth annual Spectator All-Star Wrestling Team this week, reflecting the fine diversity of mat talent during the '66-'67 season.

For the first time in the history of the selection of the Spectator squad, 15 different high schools gained berths in the 22-man lineup.

ONLY REPEATERS from last year's All-Star team were East's Ralph Cox (112) and Whitehall's Steve Beery (127) —the latter a first-team All-Star selection for the fourth year in a row.

Beery, in fact, was named honorary captain of the squad because of his seniority on the team and a four-year record of 80 wins, eight losses and two draws (through '67 District).

The Ram standout, who closed his high school competition with a string of 30 straight dual victories, could count three of those setbacks in state competition and three more during his freshman season.

MAKING THE biggest advances in the Spectator polling were DeSales' Steve Arnold (up from second team) and Groveport's Jeff Nelle (up from honorable mention).

Five of the first-team members (Beery, Saffle, Hilliard, Cox and Arnold) finished up District competition undefeated — the latter trio adding state titles to their laurels recently.

Nine of the first 11 wrestlers are seniors — Saffle and Dardinger the only juniors.

Hilliard Gets Clark Trophy

In expected close balloting, Central District wrestling coaches named Watterson's 175-lb. state champion Mike Hilliard as the first recipient of "The Mike Clark Memorial Wrestling Trophy" this week.

The trophy, named in memory of the Marion-Franklin wrestler who passed away during the past season, honors the District's most outstanding grappler of the year and will be awarded annually by The Spectator Newspapers.

Triano outpolled East's Chuck Deyo (District runner-up and last year's "Coach of the Year"), Walnut Ridge's Rick Cermelj and Franklin Heights' Bob Twiss in The Spectator balloting.

OTHERS receiving votes were West's John Butler, Brookhaven's Gary Allen and Pleasant View's Bob Mowery.

High Matmen Switch To Olympic Style

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Central District mat coaches learned at their final '66-'67 meeting last weekend that their grapplers will have to learn a new style of wrestling by the time the '67-'68 season opens Dec. 1.

The state has adopted the Olympic-style of wrestling as opposed to the free-style or Greco-Roman style now employed.

PURPOSE OF the change in style was charged to a lack of success by the U.S. in Olympic wrestling competition — the AAU and NCAA attempting to infiltrate the new system down through the nation's high schools.

The basic difference between the two styles revolves around the starting position. Under the free-style format, the "top" or advantage wrestler places the palm of one hand on his opponent's stomach, the other on his elbow.

Under the Olympic style, the "top" wrestler places the fingers and thumbs of both hands in contact with his opponent's back.

BIGGEST problem in transferring to the new style is expected to involve what changes in scoring the Olympic format will necessitate.

In other business, the Central District coaches voted to embrace a 16-team District setup which would advance four wrestlers (instead of the present two) from each sectional to District competition.

The '67-'68 season will officially open Dec. 1 (after a month of practice) with Sectionals scheduled Feb. 9-10, the District set for Feb. 16-17 and State Meet dates Feb. 23-24.

BROOKHAVEN coach Gary Allen was voted to a second term of president of the District Coaches' Association with DeSales' Bob Triano and Eastmoor's Bob Barnett selected as first and second vice-president respectively.

Rick Cermelj of Walnut Ridge was elected secretary-treasurer and mat official Jim Herold was named historian.

MAT NOTES — Walnut Ridge will host a precedent-setter next season with the Scotties entertaining a 16-team field in a Holiday Invitational Dec. 22-23.

District champion DeSales has once again carded a tough extra - District schedule for next season — the Stallions traveling to tourneys in Toledo and Dayton.

"I hope we'll be as good as I think we'll be," quipped coach Bob Triano; "Otherwise, we'll get killed."

SPECIAL GUESTS of the mat coaches at the meeting included ex-Franklin Heights and Capital U. mat coach and present City Councilman Don Woodland, official Tony Montinaro and 175-lb. state champion Mike Hilliard of Watterson, recipient of the first annual Mike Clark Memorial Wrestling Trophy, awarded by The Spectator.

Ralph Cox, state champion at 112, by a bare two votes with Whitehall's Steve Beery (a four-time District champion) and DeSales' Steve Arnold (state champ at 120) receiving the other first place votes.

Arnold collected the majority of the second-place ballots with Hilliard, Cox, Beery and Worthington's Dick Donovan gaining other second-place votes.

Hilliard, who played end on the Eagles' state championship football team last fall, compiled an outstanding 24-0 record during the '66-'67 season, all but six of those victories coming on pins.

BUT, PERHAPS, the most impressive statistic tagged to Hilliard was his "defensive" ability. Only five points were scored on the Eagle wrestler all season — none until his second match in the State Meet.

Moreover, three of those five points were erased when Hilliard pinned his opponent.

The Clark trophy, delayed in shipping, will be presented to Hilliard at Watterson upon arrival.

ed DeSales to a near perfect campaign this year — with second places in tough tourneys at Cleveland and Dayton the only non-wins dotting a rugged schedule.

Warming up with dual victories over Westerville, Franklin Heights, East and Worthington, DeSales captured the coveted "Top Eight" title — following up with a lopsided victory in the Central Catholic League tourney the next weekend. (Stallions copped nine of 11 finals titles).

A COME - FROM - BEHIND District victory over defending champion East climaxed DeSales' successful campaign.

Fifteen Schools

DESALES AND East each placed three wrestlers on the first 22 — Worthington, Walnut Ridge and Circleville adding two selections.

The combined won-loss record for the first team was 240-20, the second 11 compiling a 205-34-1 mark.

The first 22 All-Star wrestlers will receive certificates from The Spectator in recognition of their achievements over the past season.

THE CERTIFICATES will be mailed to mat coaches for presentation to their respective All-Star selections.

Metro Expansion Hopes Brighten

Reports received by The Spectator from a meeting of several area high schools at Hamilton Township last week indicated the strong possibility of a full restoration of the crippled Metropolitan League within the next month.

According to the report, West Jefferson and Dublin (of the Franklin County League) and Fairfield Union will likely be officially admitted as Metro members at a meeting scheduled for Monday, March 13.

ANOTHER SCHOOL at the meeting — Westfall — indicated interest in joining the alignment but remained undecided.

The Metro League, weakened in recent months by the exit of Whitehall, Pleasant View and Reynoldsburg to the new Ohio Capital Conference, presently contains only Franklin Heights, Teays Valley and Hamilton.

The three interested schools got the trio's "green light" at the Feb. 20 meeting but more positive action was postponed until March 13 since one of the three schools still needs official sanction by its Board of Education.

OFFICIAL acceptance of the three schools and adoption of a league constitution are expected to be finalized at the March meeting.

THE 700'S continue to flow in: Ron Stromfield from Lockbourne added a 701 and a 710; Joe Krecsmar built a 707 at Main Lanes; Gary Slyh bounced a 729 in Main Classics; Bob Brown threw a 725 in Amos Major; Rus White evened at 700 at Reynoldsburg and Dan Cantwell finished at 700 at Wink-O.

The gals hit highs—Loretta Linhart with 683 in Amos Imperial Trio; Kay Santo swatted 658 in Riverview Palace League; June Kristoff contributed 620 to help Beulah Park Jockey Club to a 1023-2777; Winda Hannon furnished 626 in the Victory at Glentangy and 606 was Louise Wolfe's bid in Hillcrest Major.

COLUMBUS will send 26 teams out of the record 6094 entered in the 1967 WIBC Championship Tournament at Rochester, N. Y., opening April 13. As usual WIBC headquarters (Columbus-based at 1225 Dublin-rd) will be sending about 15 workers to run that 30,000 woman event.

In St. Paul there are 12 bowling lanes in that city's Union Depot. How come nobody has thought of that use for our own deserted Union Station?

For 63 straight ABC national tournaments, nobody has rolled a 300 game in team event. The odds on that happening have now reached 2,788,970 to one.

LAST YEAR ABC was held in Rochester and at that tourney only one 7-10 split was converted. In 1956 it was in Rochester and that year saw 136 of them turned in. What happened?

Remember that bowlers under 19 years of age must have written consent of a parent or guardian before competing in an ABC or WIBC sanctioned league or tournament where cash or merchandise prizes are awarded.

TALES OUT OF SCHOOLS

Wada Named Journalist Of The Year

Warner Wada, a much-traveled Whetstone High School senior, parlayed sharp writing and fresh ideas to become the second annual Spectator High School Journalist of the Year.

Warner was selected from among entrants from several Franklin County high schools in the annual Spectator competition. He will receive a $200 scholarship to any journalism college in the United States.

Judging the entries were Spectator Editor - Publisher Robert Burdock, Managing Editor Robert Tenenbaum and members of the paper's editorial staff.

Warner's schoolmate, junior Chris Hindman of Whetstone, made it two out of three for the North Side school by sweeping the feature category with an editorial pertaining to the free press-fair trial controversy.

Second in the feature category was Jo Klein of Gahanna-Lincoln High School, who won for a sparkling series of humorous articles on life in the school cafeteria.

Mike Scarpitti of Bishop Ready High School swept first-place honors in the field of photo-journalism. Mike's entry ran the gamut from sports action to somber, religious work. Second was Mike Yates of St. Mary's High School, whose work has appeared in The Spectator this year.

Warner Wada, who succeeds Bexley's Mimi Deaton as Journalist of the Year, moved to Columbus three years ago after living in Washington, D.C., New York City and Winnetka, Ill. His father is a high energy nuclear physicist at Ohio State University.

WERNER WADA

CHRIS HINDMAN

JO KLEIN

Whetstone's newspaper, "The Scout," and the school debate team occupy most of Warner's spare time. He is the editor of the paper and president of the club. Outside of school his interests lie in piano, which he has studied for eight years, and in pen and ink drawing.

He has his eyes set on a Yale education following graduation from Whetstone, but he is undecided between two widely divergent fields of study—architecture or journalism.

Chris Hindman's feature entry was a natural outgrowth of what her journalism teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Hill, calls a "deep personal interest in freedom of the press."

Her interests include not only journalism but vocal and instrumental music and creative writing. She is a member of the Spanish Club, the senior band and senior choir and Tyros, the creative writing club, in addition to being assistant editor of "The Scout."

Winning awards is nothing new to her. While at Dominion Junior High School, she won first place for her school in the Thomas A. Edison Essay Contest.

Ready's Mike Scarpitti is also no stranger to awards. He won first place in the feature photography division of the Journalism Association of Ohio Schools competition and second and third places in the photo contest of the High School Press Club of Central Ohio.

The 17-year-old senior is a "self-taught" photographer, according to his advisor, Sister Anthony Marie. He has been a staff photographer for Ready's newspaper, Excalibur, since its first year of publication three years ago.

He is also a member of National Thespians, the Glee Club, the Folk Club and is a contributor to Ready's literary magazine, the Silver Quill, and a sound technician for the school radio station, WRHS.

Entries of all of the contest winners, are printed in this special "Tales Out Of Schools" section of The Spectator.

Top Journalist Looks At LSD

Editor's Note: When someone talks about LSD, most people think about college beatniks, crazy lights, and "trips." But few persons realize what the whole LSD controversy is about. Once we understand what LSD is, we can observe today's controversy with a rational, understanding mind.

In the past too many unaware persons have suddenly found out all about LSD, and by that time it was too late. These persons were not aware of the drug's potentially dangerous effects. After reading this article, hopefully you won't.

"IT WAS LIKE a shower on the inside," described an individual concerning this experience with one of the most controversial, powerful, fascinating drugs ever created. He was talking about LSD, lysergic acid diethylamide.

LSD is a member of a group of powerful drugs known as hallucinogens, or "mind-changing" chemical substances. Better known as a psychedelic (conscious expanding) drug, LSD was discovered in 1943. Like all hallucinogens, LSD is derived from plants, in this case from a fungus which grows on rye and wheat.

NO ONE KNOWS how LSD "works" on a person. However, its effects are easily and vividly evident. The drug produces a simulated form of psychosis a serious mental illness, in the user. During this period, known as a "trip," the LSD user experiences various fantastic reactions to the drug. The average trip lasts eight to nine hours.

In the normal trip, a person experiences great changes in visual perception. Colors are vivid, space becomes very apparent, and surface details are sharply defined.

SOUND, TOUCH, and even the sense of smell are also amplified and distorted far out of their original proportions. The user experiences a sense of timelessness where he can "see the entire universe" before his eyes. In many cases LSD facilitates meditation, aesthetic admiration, an stimulates the imagination.

In summary, LSD greatly changes one's perception of time, space and self.

But LSD is extremely dangerous.

THE DANGER occurs when a person fails to come out of the temporary psychotic state LSD produces. This is usually the result of an overdose which can result in a person permanently remaining in this psychotic condition.

In the nine-month period at Bellevue General Hospital in New York, over 65 such LSD cases were recorded. Some of them are still there. While there are no documented deaths caused by the use of LSD, several persons have been killed when under the influence of the drug.

Contrary to what many people believe, hallucinogenic drugs are not addictive; there is no established physical need for the drug. The great danger involved with LSD occurs only when the drug is taken without medical supervision. Records show that out of 25,000 "experiences" with LSD, all of which were carried out under strict supervision, only two percent failed to come out of the LSD trip after two days.

BUT DOES LSD have any value to society as a whole?

Today LSD is being used to treat serious alcohol and drug patients. The Scientific American stated that 50 percent of the alcoholic patients treated with LSD stayed away from the bottle for at least a year, a substantially higher percentage than was achieved with conventional psychotherapy.

The answer to the useful, constructive application of LSD lies in medical supervision, not in governmental prohibition. This powerful chemical compound has established important benefits to mankind in the short 23 years it has existed. It is far too important a drug to arbitrarily abolish.

Chaos In Cafeteria Subject Of Prize-Winning Columns

EDITOR'S NOTE: Gahanna Lincoln's Jo Klein took second place in the feature division with a series of humorous colmns on life in Lincoln High's cafeteria. This is one article in that series.

By JO KLEIN
Gahanna-Lincoln High School

Have you noticed the increased treachery involved in the journey from the cashier to the safety of your table this year? Looks like one of the cooks pulled a fast one.

This new challenge to student coordination came in the form of a double-barrelled innovation: super-sliding china plates and student-foiling slimy trays.

The student body will have to be re-programmed to carry these new, unruly trays. The cracked plate toll racked up by students during the first week of school revealed much room for improvement in the students' tray-teetering performance.

And when you finally feel you've mastered this difficult balancing maneuver, you have to surmount a doubly impossible obstacle: Becki Kline barrelling through the cafeteria on her way to divulge vital information to Vicki Layne.

Some of our students seem to be wielding more than two thumbs, and the results have been catastrophic.

Reluctantly, the cooks admit that the prime source of shattered china has been their own student staff — which, if you haven't noticed, is composed of volunteers from the Lincoln football team. The crew serving 4a got so efficient that they had to be assigned a handicap — Charlie Freeman and Ronnie Doran.

Naturally, the sophomores are innately incapable of mastering the challenge of the tricky trays. Perhaps if they help each other out — two or three to a tray, and a spotter to pick up the pieces — they would enjoy more success.

It seems the juniors are having to overcome mammoth handicaps adjusting to the smooth trays. Their psychological and physical reliance on the old partioned plate really has them in a rut.

Senior superiority precludes any derogatory remark concerning their success with the trays. Seniors are just too adept. Keep an eye out for seniors balancing trays on their heads. (in many cases this ability is due to excessive swelling in that region).

Chair scarcity is still a major cafeteria crisis. Barb Lundberg will be organizing a chair hunting safari each day at 12 noon for all those students eating 4-c who need a place to rest their weary bones. Watch out for Tonia Alexander—she's become so crazed and desperate for a place to sit that she'll rip your chair right out from under you.

Actually, the improvements in the kitchen are Mr. Lawhead's doing—except for Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Webb who put their heads together and devised the intricate tray deposit in front of the dishwashers' window. The knives, trays, china, football players, and yes, even the unspread butter pat, are all part of Mr. Lawhead's master plan to treat us as adults.

Outside of these developments, the food and other operations in the cafeteria remain unchanged. The portions are still the same and it looks like Vietnam is going to split the eats with us.

That's what's cookin' in the kitchen. Bon Appetite.

Dropouts Won't Get Jobs, Ohio Bell Recruiters Say

LAST YEAR in Columbus, 9,712 women were interviewed by a smiling Ohio Bell recruiter like the one pictured here. But the sad part of the story is that of those interviewed, only six who had no high school diploma were hired.

Each year in Columbus, one-fourth of the city's high school students go to the school book room, turn in their books, and quit school. For one reason or another, these young people join the growing crop of dropouts, and most become not only unemployed, but unemployable.

The telephone company is seriously concerned with this problem and comes into contact with it daily. Last year, for example, Ohio Bell interviewed 9,712 women here.

Of that number, only six who did not have high school diplomas were hired.

The telephone company, with more than 22,500 employees, is one of the largest companies in Ohio. And the people who do the hiring for Ohio Bell realize that the day when a young man or woman could quit school and work their way to the top is over. The semi-skilled and unskilled type of jobs that the dropouts of the past got, are disappearing at the rate of 40,000 a week, and the pace is increasing.

The age of automation is here, and the phone company must have young people who can become a part of that age, who can move up when a good opening is available, and who can help solve tomorrow's problems today. And the company knows that dropouts can't cut it.

Studies show that the high school graduate will earn at least $50,000 more in a lifetime than the dropout. The college graduate will earn $169,000 more. That adds up to a lot of new cars, nice homes and new clothes. And all it takes to get it is hard work and an education.

And when you finally feel you've mastered this difficult balancing maneuver, you have to surmount a doubly impossible obstacle: Becki Kline barrelling through the cafeteria on her way to divulge vital information to Vicki Layne.

Some of our students seem to be wielding more than two thumbs, and the results have been catastrophic.

Reluctantly, the cooks admit that the prime source of shattered china has been their own student staff — which, if you haven't noticed, is composed of volunteers from the Lincoln football team. The crew serving 4a got so efficient that they had to be assigned a handicap — Charlie Freeman and Ronnie Doran.

Naturally, the sophomores are innately incapable of mastering the challenge of the tricky trays. Perhaps if they help each other out — two or three to a tray, and a spotter to pick up the pieces — they would enjoy more success.

It seems the juniors are having to overcome mammoth handicaps adjusting to the smooth trays. Their psychological and physical reliance on the old partioned plate really has them in a rut.

Senior superiority precludes any derogatory remark concerning their success with the trays. Seniors are just too adept. Keep an eye out for seniors balancing trays on their heads. (in many cases this ability is due to excessive swelling in that region).

Chair scarcity is still a major cafeteria crisis. Barb Lundberg will be organizing a chair hunting safari each day at 12 noon for all those students eating 4-c who need a place to rest their weary bones. Watch out for Tonia Alexander—she's become so crazed and desperate for a place to sit that she'll rip your chair right out from under you.

Actually, the improvements in the kitchen are Mr. Lawhead's doing — except for Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Webb who put their heads together and devised the intricate tray deposit in front of the dishwashers' window. The knives, trays, china, football players, and yes, even the unspread butter pat, are all part of Mr. Lawhead's master plan to treat us as adults.

Outside of these developments, the food and other operations in the cafeteria remain unchanged. The portions are still the same and it looks like Vietnam is going to split the eats with us.

That's what's cookin' in the kitchen. Bon Appetite.

Dropouts Won't Get Jobs, Ohio Bell Recruiters Say

LAST YEAR in Columbus, 9,712 women were interviewed by a smiling Ohio Bell recruiter like the one pictured here. But the sad part of the story is that of those interviewed, only six who had no high school diploma were hired.

Each year in Columbus, one-fourth of the city's high school students go to the school book room, turn in their books, and quit school. For one reason or another, these young people join the growing crop of dropouts, and most become not only unemployed, but unemployable.

The telephone company is seriously concerned with this problem and comes into contact with it daily. Last year, for example, Ohio Bell interviewed 9,712 women here.

Of that number, only six who did not have high school diplomas were hired.

The telephone company, with more than 22,500 employees, is one of the largest companies in Ohio. And the people who do the hiring for Ohio Bell realize that the day when a young man or woman could quit school and work their way to the top is over. The semi-skilled and unskilled type of jobs that the dropouts of the past got, are disappearing at the rate of 40,000 a week, and the pace is increasing.

The age of automation is here, and the phone company must have young people who can become a part of that age, who can move up when a good opening is available, and who can help solve tomorrow's problems today. And the company knows that dropouts can't cut it.

Studies show that the high school graduate will earn at least $50,000 more in a lifetime than the dropout. The college graduate will earn $169,000 more. That adds up to a lot of new cars, nice homes and new clothes. And all it takes to get it is hard work and an education.

Delinquency Blamed On Parents

By REBECCA CHEEK
Hartley High School

Are the youth of today predominantly to blame for the sacreligious occurrences, the vandalism, theft, and the ungodliness that evists in our society?

A yes or a no answer may be applied in answering this question. Yes, inasmuch as teenagers like myself often revert to such "kicks" for a variety of reasons. One such excuse may be due to a lack of social backbone, meaning to say that teens just don't know how to say no, which may be attributed to the stress put on conformity in our country today.

Whatever happened to indidualism? No one today dares to step out of the line of uniformity to see the world perhaps in another light for fear of being known as a square. It is pre-history and simply passe.

Teenagers frequently attempt to support this excuse, though rather unstably, with "Well, everyone else is doing it" or "I had to do it or they'd call me chicken" or "Who was I to stop them—it wasn't my place to stop them." The prime reason as proved through research or teen behavior tells us that teenagers often act in this way merely to attract the attention of their parents to make them stand up and take note of their being.

Delinquency is not a term confined strictly to juveniles or teenagers, but also to adults. Delinquency in a sense is widespread among parents and grown-ups. These are the delinquents who are responsible for small delinquents, for it is the parents who teach the children to be what they are. It's the adults who scandalize the younger generation. These are the true delinquents. These are the parents who take little pain in raising their children.

The ancient ideology that it is a woman's place to stay in the home is, for sure, the best. If our women today would stay in the home where they belong instead of prancing off to work there would be fewer crimes in teenage years. If women would only stop to think how much their children need them at home during their growing up years and the tender, touchy teen years.

A teenage girl needs a mother to talk to, to plan with, to be a companion to during this time. A teenage boy needs a father to relate his dreams to, to solve his problems with and discuss his wants and needs with. Both the girl and the boy need the father for discipline to guide them and keep them on the right trail to Heaven.

This point now opens the doors to another question, the question concerning the true meaning of Parental Love. Although I am a teenager, I consider myself old enough to know something of what children need. I do not consider myself to be an authority on this subject nor do I pretend to know all about it, but, as I see it, parental love does not spare the rod and spoil the child. It is a love that rewards as well as reprimands and disciplines. It encourages the good the child does and when the child is offensive it makes the punishment to fit the crime.

Parental love does not assume for the child its responsibility nor does it force responsibility upon the child by creating home problems in effect causing him to grow into early adulthood with resentment but makes the child force his own. Parental love is self-sacrificing, patient, understanding, suffering, and caring and disciplines its offspring.

In a word of summation, the delinquent adult makes for a juvenile delinquent, or in the cycle of life "The child is the father of the man." (William Wordsworth).

Local Government Stressed By Visits To Council Meetings

By MIKE EGAN
Reynoldsburg High School

It's easy to get an "A" in Mr. Fred Walter's American Government class—quite easy. All it takes is to attend and observe a local city council or school board meeting (which are open to the public), and an A, equivalent to a quiz grade, is given as extra credit.

Is Mr. Walter too "free and easy with his "A's", and how are these observations going to help his students?

"The whole purpose of government class," states Mr. Walter, "is to teach the students about government. What better way is there to learn about government than to observe?"

This is well and good, you might say, but why so much stress just on local government?

Mr. Walter comments, "At ALL levels of government you hear those participants speaking of 'public apathy'. I don't believe it's a case of 'apathy' as much as it is a lack of knowledge about the mechanics and public nature of our government.

"If young people, at high school level, can be instilled with an interest and given the knowledge, then this 'public apathy' will not be a problem when they reach adulthood."

President of Reynoldsburg City Council Mr. Dick Daugherty, likes the idea of high school students attending the meeting of Council.

COMMENTING on the students who do attend the Council meetings, Mr. Daugherty says that "it gives the student good insight to the problems of government; both from the legal and monetary standpoint."

"Sometime," he added, "later on in life, he (the student) is going to have an understanding of how a municipality is run."

Maybe Mr. Walter's "easy 'A's' won't come to their full value until "later on in life."

P.S. You don't have to be in Mr. Walter's government class to attend a city council or school board meeting.

WADA EDITORIAL DEFINES FREEDOM

Next month, whether you realize it or not, is National Freedom Month. In most high school newspapers across the country readers will be presented with the run-of-the-mill "wave the flag, America forever" editorial. However, those who simply head trite expressions of praise and admiration without rationally examining the situation in America today are deluding themselves.

National Freedom Month should be the time to examine the present status of "freedom" in the United States. For during the last four or five years a revolution has been sweeping across the country, a revolution in American freedom. Beginning with the Civil Rights Movement and spreading into other revolutionary movements: Vietnam, Academic Freedom (Free Speech), the present movement has abruptly changed the status quo of post-World War II America.

The change has been for the better. While the last generation was known as the "Silent Generation," this generation of the mid-sixties is being called the "Committed Generation." For once the younger generation has faced the reality of poverty, prejudice, inequality, and injustice, and they are doing something about it.

The status of American Freedom, while far from being what it should be, has been vastly improved by the efforts of countless young, conscientious individuals. While many people brand them as "long-haired, pinko beatniks" the fact remains that they have contributed something of value to America: their time, their efforts, and in the case of three civil rights workers, their lives.

Civil disobedience and non-violent disturbances have been important tools in the attainment of freedom for many. Civil disobedience in the forms of demonstrations, sit-ins, marches, and rallies, have their place in today's struggle for freedom. They have focused the nation's attention on causes which have previously gone little noticed, among them civil rights and free speech. Civil disobedience and non-violent demonstrations have helped the cause of American freedom.

February is National Freedom Month. But while you listen to the politicians giving their red-blooded American speeches, and as you read the countless ordinary "freedom," editorials, examine the situation, and take a stand. And above all, think.

The needs of our atomic age point up more forcefully every day, the extreme importance of higher education. A High School Diploma is the very MINIMUM, and only the doors of mediocre jobs are opened to persons without college training.

The fields of engineering, electronics, medicine and other sciences are calling loudly for individuals with specialized training and the compensation for these trained people is most lucrative.

In three short months many young people will be graduating from High School and facing the decision on whether to go to college or "take a job." We repeat "The Job Can Wait." There will never be another opportunity such as this to continue the progress of your education. DON'T PASS UP THIS OPPORTUNITY.

RASOR BELIEVES IN BRIGHT FUTURE

TV 4's Jerry Rasor is seldom found without a crowd of teens around him. Why? Not only are they part of his job, but part of his personal life — Jerry believes firmly that today's teenager will be tomorrow's bright future.

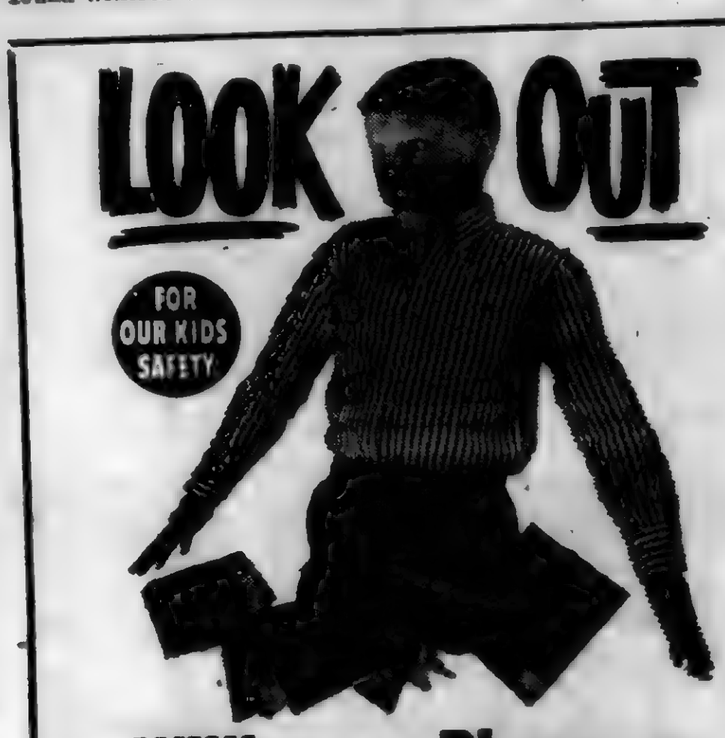
Jerry Rasor is a fine example for any young person, as he is not trying to minimize his 36 years by acting in accord with the latest fads. He is an impeccable dresser, and truly a well-educated gentleman both in and out of the professional world.

A bachelor, Jerry's time is sought-after by individuals and groups of all ages, and he runs on a tight schedule. In addition to his duties as a regular staff announcer — which often means getting up at 4 a.m. to sign the station on the air — Jerry is part of the cast of the "Spook Beckman Show" three days a week, plus his own show on Saturdays, "Dance Party."

"Dance Party" is on the air live, and in color, from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. every Saturday. Each week, some 60 teenagers from schools in the Central Ohio Area congregate to dance and enjoy themselves. Big-name entertainers and favorite local bands appear on the show, and Jerry has been in-groups started — some have even attained national frame.

In his personal life, Jerry has little free time for pursuing his own recreational interests — reading, horseback riding and playing tennis. His weekends are devoted to teen entertainment, as he auditions bands after his show is over each Saturday. Sunday afternoons finds Jerry at the Valley Dale, hosting a teen hop that goes all-out for "battle of the bands" and many hours of dancing. In addition to these activities, Jerry does many benefits for the children's home in the Franklin County area, for the underprivileged, and for the teens in the correctional centers.

Jerry's keen sense of humor and fine singing voice have taken him many directions, which makes him a popular toastmaster. He is also active in the Masons, Kiwanis Club, and Eastern Star organizations.



A native of Commercial Point, Jerry still resides there. After graduating from high school, he went on to Ohio State University, where he got his start in show business. After graduating, Jerry worked for a local TV station before going on to Hollywood to join the Publicity staff of MGM.

Columbus was happy to have Jerry Rasor back in town, and he joined the staff at WLWC in 1957. His work with young people has steadily increased, and he recently made the following statement to a local columnist.

"Nothing during my career thus far has been as rewarding as working with the young people of Central Ohio. The Dance Party show every Saturday brings me into direct contact with thousands of teenagers each year and I have thoroughly enjoyed the association with them. Believe me, we have nothing to fear from the future because that future will certainly be molded by them. The young people of today are intelligent, alert, energetic, and deeply aware of what's going on in the world."

Foreign Students View U.S.A.

By ELLIE GREEGOR
Upper Arlington H. S.

Doris Stern, the 18-year-old South African student residing at the home of Dr. and Mrs. George Stines, has much to say about her year so far in the United States.

"It is difficult to say what I like best, about the United States, but as far as school goes, I really do like the system where you can take many and varied subjects, yet still have an opportunity to go to college. For example, one can take math and also aviation."

When asked how the South African high schools compared with the American schools, Doris explained their five-year high school.

"When the school day ends, generally around 2 p.m., the South African participates in sports. Girls and boys both play a lot of tennis, soccer and cricket. Students are divided into two groups, the A-stream and the B-stream. The A-stream takes subjects which permit him to enter college. At the end of his high school life, each takes an examination set up by the Department of Education to determine whether or not he goes to college.

The B-stream group takes subjects which exclude him from college. This student also takes an exam, similar to that of an A-stream student, but he can not go to college.

Doris compared her social life in South Africa with that of hers in Upper Arlington.

"School and social life do not generally mix. Our Junior-Senior prom, or Matrec Dance, is the only dance held at the school during the year. Social life revolves around sports. Both systems have their merits, and because the way of life differs in each country, each system is geared to serve the society it is in."

Doris continued with the statement that she had really grown up this year. "I learned a great deal about Americans; broadening one's outlook is good for everyone, and thus far it has been a wonderful experience. I appreciate for the first time my American parents and my own parents."

When Doris was asked if there was anything she disliked about the U.S., she replied, "There is nothing here I really do not care for, but there are many things which I reject. One tends to be a little skeptical of new things and finds it difficult to accept them."

• • •

What advice does Doris have for Americans? "Americans should learn to appreciate other nations, not everyone is backward. They must realize there is a world around them."

Ann Katarina Elizabet Valentin is the full name of the seventeen-year old citizen of Malmo, Sweden, who is living with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Evans in Upper Arlington.

Ann is very active at Upper Arlington High School; she belongs to four clubs, is a member of Girl Scouts, participates in Student Council and was involved in the Youth-in-Government program. She is also taking a course at Ohio State University in computer programing.

Ann described the school system in Sweden as being quite different from that here in America. "Children enter school at seven, and compulsory education ends after ninth grade. All books and meals are free. After ninth grade, one can go to specialized schools or senior high. Senior high is more like a preparatory school for college, where you study 12 to 15 subjects a year. After three years of study you can be asked anything you have learned during your 12 years of study. If you pass, then you can go on to college."

Ann also commented on the different student-teacher relationship found in Sweden.

"It's more formal; the students treat the teachers with much respect, but the Swedish teachers also treat the students with respect. It's nice to be close to a teacher, but I think we learn more in Sweden, at least in some subjects."

When Ann returns to Sweden, she will repeat her senior year and start an A.F.S. club. "I think that would be one of the best ways to promote international understanding."

Ann feels the most important thing she has found out so far is that "people are people." "Before I came to the U.S., my impressions were based on the James Bond movies. Now Americans have become real, living people. Swedish people are rather shy. The enthusiasm and friendliness I have been greeted with here has been absolutly overwelming."

When Ann was asked if there was anything she would change about the United States, she answered, "If I changed America, it would no longer be America. Besides, I'm not here to change it, just to learn about it and try to give you an idea about Sweden."

Nguyen-Cuong, known to most students as Cu, is a 17-year old AFS'er from South Viet Nam. Cu lives with Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Hales and their family in Upper Arlington.

When Cu first came to the United States, he thought, "All the people were rich and happy and didn't have to work hard. But now my impressions are different. I realize that not all the people are nice and happy. There are also the poor. Once I thought that Americans preferred to live the materialistic life rather than a spiritual one. This, now, I know is not true."

Cut notices several distinct differences in the Vietnamese schools as compared to American schools. "School in Vietnam begins at 7:30 and continues until 11:30. We have 15 minutes of recreation between second and third periods. Activities like clubs and in-school sports help the mind of a student to become better organized and bring students and teachers closer to one another. At 11:30 we go home for rest and lunch and return for the afternoon session at 2:30. For three hours we have classes and leave at 5:30.

In Vietnam a student takes more subjects than in America.

Students of different grades will study the same subjects, but each grade gets harder."

Cu has been busy at Upper Arlington and other schools with speeches about his home. When he returns to Vietnam, Cu will repeat his senior year and then go to the Hue University to study Vietnamese literature and philospohy.

"This year has given me a chance to test the patriotism lying in my soul. I miss my country, my people, my family and friends. I am finding out what real patriotism is. I remember my native land and long to return to it."

Cu said he plans to return to the United States. "I'd like to come back, it may be in two years or 20, but I would like to see the place that offered me so may feelings, souvenirs, and good friends."

What new idea will Cu take back to his home? "I know that people are the same everywhere."

Fair Trial, Free Press Explored

EDITOR'S NOTE: For this extensive study of the fair trial-free press controversy, Whetstone High School's Chris Hindman won first place in the feature division of The Spectator's high school journalism contest. The judges felt this feature showed unusually perceptive writing for a high schooler.

By CHRIS HINDMAN
Whetstone High School

Two men were dead. One was a President, the other his probable assassin. The Warren Commission, investigating the death of a President, felt that part of the motivation for Jack Ruby's action was the constant stream of publicity following President Kennedy's assassination.

The Commission recommended that steps be taken to bring about a proper balance between the public's right to know and the right of an individual to a fair and impartial trial. They further advocated that a code of conduct for all news reporting on crime and criminal justice be adopted.

The Warren Commission Report was the spark that set off a nationwide furor over the conflict between freedom of the press and the right of an individual to a fair trial by an impartial jury. Several court convictions were overthrown because of prejudicial news coverage at the time of the trial.

One of the first of these cases was that of Billie Sol Estes. In 1965 the United States Supreme Court overturned one of Estes' convictions because the trial judge had allowed live telecasts of the proceedings over Estes' stated objections.

Perhaps the most famous decision to reverse a conviction because of adverse publicity is the Sam Sheppard case. Justice Tom Clark, giving the majority opinion, stated that the court's decision was based on the "virulent publicity" Dr. Sheppard had received at the time of his 1954 murder trial.

Indeed, Dr. Sam Sheppard was not tried in court for the murder of his first wife, Marilyn. He underwent a "trial by newspaper" in which the supreme judge was the Cleveland Press.

On July 20, 1954, the Press ran an editorial across five columns at the top of page one. The headline was "Getting Away With Murder." Among other things, the editorial asserted: "It's time that somebody smashed into this situation and tore aside this restraining curtain of sham, politeness, and hypocrisy and went into the business of solving a murder . . ."

The next day City Council of Bay Village, where Sheppard lived, voted to ask the mayor to turn the investigation over to the Cleveland police.

On July 21, the Press ran another front-page editorial: "Isn't This Murder Worth an Inquest?" The editorial demanded that Coroner Gerber, the man in charge of the investigation, call an inquest. Gerber did so the same day.

"Why Don't Police Quiz the Top Suspect?" was the head for another Press front-page editorial July 26. It said that Sheppard should be quizzed in accepted police manner. Because he was free, the Press declared, he was making Cleveland a national laughing stock.

July 30, the Press renewed its demand for Sheppard's jailing. It ran an editorial across all eight columns at the top of the front page and headed it: "Why isn't Sam Sheppard in Jail?" In a later edition the headline was changed to read: "Quit Stalling—Bring Him In."

Sheppard was arrested.

Later on in the trial the judge declared that only one reporter could go with the jury on an inspection tour of the Sheppard home. A reporter from the Cleveland Press was chosen. Thus, the newspaper that had been in the forefront of the clamor for Dr. Sheppard's arrest was selected to be the eyes of the world.

Because of this harsh treatment by the Cleveland newspapers, Sam Sheppard was freed. After reviewing the case, Justice Tom Clark stated that ". . . courts must take lawful steps to protect their processes from outside prejudicial interference."

"Prior restraint" has become the sore point between American lawmakers and journalists. It has had a very real effect on some reporters. A Massachusetts judge fined a reporter $100 for writing two paragraphs about an afternoon-long, open-court session on a motion to suppress evidence because he had told the reporter not to write about it—even though he admitted the evidence.

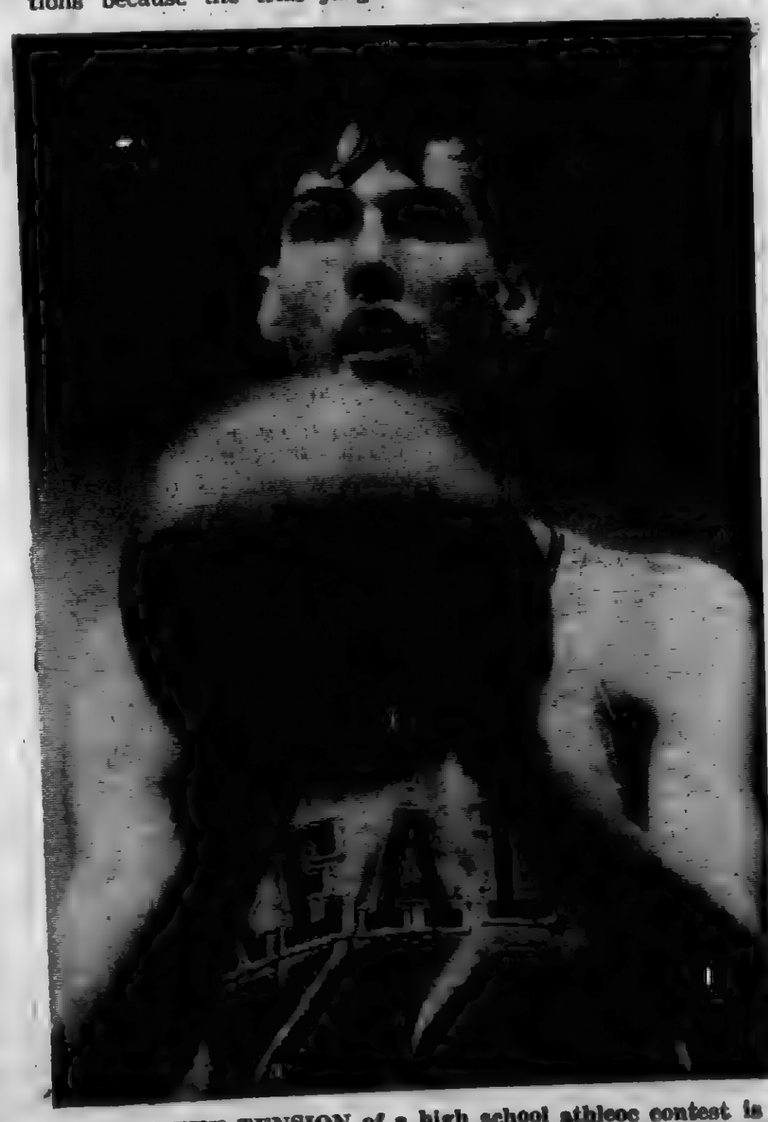
A Florida judge, Douglas Lambeth, said in a 19-page directive to reporters that he did not believe there was any absolute Constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

Why have these two invaluable American freedoms come to blows?

The Declaration of Independence states that the purpose of a government is to protect the rights of an individual. The sixth amendment to the Constitution makes clear that an individual has the right to a trial by an impartial jury. Unfortunately, a recent trend in crime reporting has introduced a new element to prosecution—"trial by newspaper."

Newspapers become courts when they:

- Insinuate guilt or innocence.
- Use hearsay evidence.
- Do excessive detective work on their own.
- Hamper the drawing of an impartial jury.
- Print or emphasize what the judge asks be mentioned lightly.



However, in some cases newspaper crime reporting serves an immensely useful purpose. It may suggest remedies, emphasize punishment, aid the police or courts, and suggest the dangers of crime. In several cases reporters have unearthed evidence that subsequently led to a defendant's acquittal.

Somehow a compromise must be reached without sacrificing the basic principles of each freedom. Courts must not prohibit reporters' rights to investigate and write background editorials. The government ethically should not limit a free press.

On the other hand, newspapers need to take a long, hard look at their policies on crime news. Editorials definitely do not belong on the front page even if so labeled. Since they are meant to influence opinion, they should be restricted to the editorial page and not be featured on the front page for the sake of sensationalism.

Similarly, editorial judgment and slant must be strictly eliminated from news stories. Perhaps newspapers could adopt a self-imposed code of standards in order to avoid restrictions by the courts.

It is clear that caution must govern the actions of journalists and lawmakers. If Americans continue their heritage of compromise, two invaluable freedoms—a free press and a fair trial — may exist side by side without being mutually exclusive.

ALL THE TENSION of a high school athleoc contest is reflected in the face of this Ready player, captured here by Mike Scarpitti, our winner in the photo-journalism competition.

Pageant Hits Home To Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE: Spectator Staff Writer Jane Wollerman, whose husband is an Army Chaplain serving in Vietnam, wrote this moving reaction to an elementary school pageant. We feel its place is here, in a section dedicated to the youth of Franklin County.

Thursday night children of Lindbergh elementary school portrayed critical moments in our country's history in an "American Heritage" pageant.

A chorus of boys and girls in white shirts and blouses and dark skirts and trousers stood on a platform at the side of the stage. The curtains opened to reveal the statue of liberty and a group of children standing around her. The chorus began the refrain of "America the Beautiful."

As I watched and listened I was thinking of the two Marines who came into our office Thursday morning and told one of our printers that his son . . . his only child . . . had been killed in Vietnam.

I looked at the audience and wondered if any of them remembered that at this moment some young American was dying in a reeking jungle while these children sang of amber waves of grain.

I haven't worked in this office long; I didn't really even know the man whose son was killed. But Thursday night it seemed very important to me to know if his death served a useful purpose.

Through all the years of manhood that were lost to this boy his parents will ask themselves this question. Every American must ask himself this question.

The pageant progressed. Some words stood out boldly and penetrated more deeply than others. Lincoln was saying, ". . . all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil conflict testing whether this nation, or any nation, so conceived and so dedicated can long endure . . . that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

I think I had forgotten what a lot of heritage this country has to live up to. And if we must bear the burden of preserving freedom and dignity for the peoples of the earth . . . even if we must bear it alone . . . and though it be a thankless task . . . it is our obligation to our own integrity. We must embrace this bitter burden or sacrifice our heritage in a compromise with tyranny.

Werner's Advisor High In Praise Of Our Winner

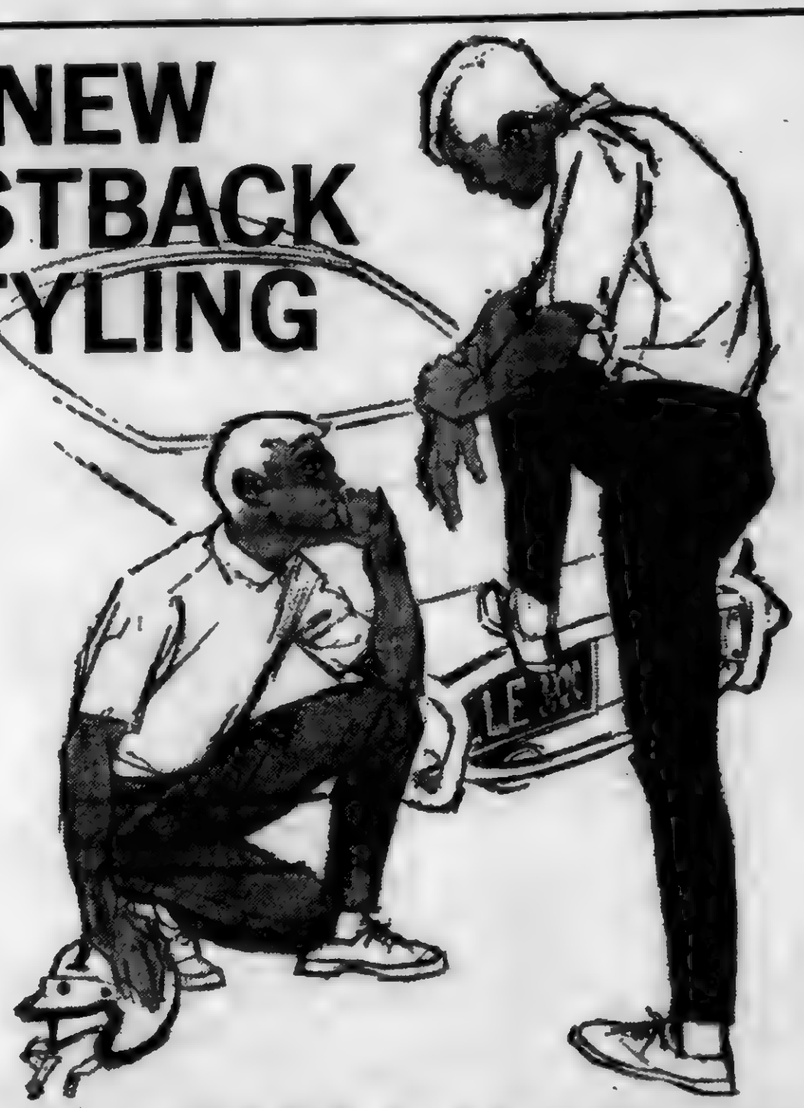
Warner Wada, The Spectator's 1966-67 High School Journalist of the Year, comes highly recommended by his Whetstone High School journalism instructor, Mrs. Dorothy Hill.

In her letter of recommendation, Mrs. Hill said:

"Warner, as editor of the Whetstone 'Scout,' has given the newspaper a new image. Usually high school papers primarily concern themselves with sports, club features, social events and student features; however, this year's Scout is different.

"BEGINNING with the very first issue, Warner instituted a change in the policy of the newspaper which has been both rewarding and interesting. He began writing editorials and features which shifted the emphasis away from the run-of-the-mill high school paper material. This is very evident in the student poll which he initiated, created and studied.

"The poll covered such important areas of today's world as the Vietnam conflict, politics, politicians and policies.



"Immediately the newspaper, through Warner's editorials, began to air new viewpoints, suggestions and opinions concerning everything from a student fee card to freedom in America.

"NO LONGER was the 'Scout' just another high school paper. We began to take stands, present opinions on important national questions, we began to get involved.

"Warner has filled his position as editor efficiently. He has worked well in cooperation with the other members of the staff in producing a well-planned, well-written newspaper. He has been involved in every aspect of the production of the 'Scout' from writing, copyreading, typing, pasting up, to selling.

"Now Warner is working on a feature concerning the draft and how it will affect members of the senior class, another example of how he has tried to make the 'Scout' more than just another school newspaper."

Kallman, Sans Trousers, Still Charms Girl Reporter

By MARCI DEATON
Bexley High School

If Richard Kallman ever receives a British invitation reading "trousers will be worn" (indicating formal attire), he may well wonder if his host was backstage at the Hartman Theatre during the recent run of "Half a Sixpence."

For trousers, or the lack thereof, presented a bit of a problem. Young though he may be, Mr. Kallman handled the situation with the poise of an old pro. When visitors barged into his dressing room after the show, while he was changing, he did the gentlemanly things.

He hastily donned a smoking jacket.

He sat down.

Seemingly oblivious to his predicament, a 70-year-old woman settled beside him on the small brown couch and thrust an old program under his nose.

He tugged a little at his gold-colored jacket which skirted his legs a fashionable six inches above his bare knees. His feet were folded under him, Buddha style.

"Remember signing this for me when you were in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying?" she asked.

He nodded his blond head patiently. Leafing through the program, he saw a picture of himself and said, "With dark hair, yet."

A high school girl, waiting nervously for an autograph, dropped her program. Her escort picked it up as the visitor rose to leave.

Mr. Kallman, of necessity, remained seated.

Moving closer to Kallman, the girl dropped her purse. When her date retrieved that, she dropped her program.

Mr. Kallman remained seated.

The girl did not drop her binoculars.

Inhaling deeply, she said, "Mr. Kallman, have you any advice for the readers of our high school paper?"

After thinking for a moment, he said, "I would recommend that everyone stay in school and get a good education. My dropping out of high school was a terrific mistake, but I've tried to make up for it many times over. How? By traveling mostly."

"I — I wonder if it would be possible for me to bring a photographer and see you some time tomorrow?"

"I'm sorry, but I have two shows tomorrow and I have to pack. I'd like to help you, but I'm just too busy," said Kallman.

She looked at him intently for a moment, and seeing that he really meant "no," she yanked her date's sleeve, and they left.

Mr. Kallman remained seated.

For those who believe the life of an actor to be gingery, a visit backstage could be a revelation.

Or, in the words of Bud Collyer, "Will the real Richard Kallman please stand up?"

Teen Looks At Cheating

by KENDA BLACK
Reynoldsburg High School

"Cheating — that is a dirty word, one said from behind the backs of hands, whispered; it just is not nice. Anyone who professes to cheat frequently is corrupt," says the purist who assures himself that right from wrong is defined as clearly as black from white, and who has never copied a homework paper, for copying from another's homework is just as bad to this person as getting answers to a semester exam.

"Oh, what the heck! There is nothing evil in cheating; everyone does it. Anyway, who cares whether or not cheating takes place — it is accepted now. How else can good grades be achieved nowadays with the tests so hard and all?" Thoughts of the same person? Of course not. These might be ideas of the person at the opposite end, the one who has no qualms about copying homework papers or test answers; the one who does not give a darn whether or not he cheats. He really cannot see the difference between the two instances.

"I have done it a few times, but I will never do it again. It just does not pay; my conscience gets the better of me. I may get to help on homework or quizzes but I will never go the cheating way when it comes to a big test. I would never be able to live with myself." These could be words of the in-betweener, the person who is "helped" on less important matters such as homework, and who has a conscience to needle him when he cheats on a larger scale, including tests.

The problem facing us now is that we have three equally prevalent attitudes on a grave issue — that of cheating. How does one go about treating it? Is it all wrong to cheat even on a small scale, or is it justified by saying that because the way is more rough a student has to find other means, or is there a middle-of-the-road attitude that says as long as it does not take place on very important matters, it is all right.

And does the general attitude that cheating is bad prevail only with students who get caught? Is practicing cheating all right and acceptable only if that person is not caught.

The fact is that though several students have been caught cheating, this does not make the rest of us lily-white purists who can toss about indignant, righteous platitudes. Cheating is not peculiar to any one body or class of people, and, though it may sound harsh, some of the best students in a school can be notorious cheaters.

So the problem is defined. There are shades of grey to this black area, just as some lies are labeled "white." The question ultimately remains — should "getting caught" remain the standard in determining if one should cheat?

Country Gentleman interviewed by Spectator's "Teen-Age Journalist of 1966," Mimi Deaton

Anyone in the market for baracudas for bathtubs, sharks for swimming pools or used kamakazi planes should contact William F. Robinson, program director of WMNI, the country music radio station.

"We don't actually sell these things," Robinson said. "We just try to have fun and create a friendly, informal atmosphere on our station."

WMNI is Columbus' only country music station, the city's highest rated adult station, and the "number one country music station in the United States," according to The Pulse, Inc., survey.

One of the station's spoof contests was to have contestants photogarph a whale in the Olentangy River. A man superimposed a picure of a whale swimming under the Broad Street bridge and won the grand prize—a life-size portrait of the Beatles!

"We used to sponsor free vacations to San Quentin," Robinson said.

ALL SPORTS STATION AIRS TOURNEY ACTION

This year WMNI will feature broadcasts of the district, regional and state-wide semi-finals and finals of the high school basketball tournaments.

The games will be aired March 4, 10, 17 and 18. WMNI is also the only local station which has high school correspondents to report the latest basketball and football scores for the Friday night games.

COUNTRY MUSIC COMES TO THE CAMPUS

The West Coast teenagers have already started a trend to country music and at WMNI they feel that the now "big beat" of country and Western music will soon be grabbed b the campus set as "IN."

"Colleges in California and New Mexico are sponsoring country music dances and shows. Country bands and hangouts are the newest fads there," Robinson said.

"We're trying to interest more of the teenagers in listening to WMNI," he said. "Country music has changed drastically in the last two years and we think the teens will like the new "Nashville Sound."

Roger Miller, Eddy Arnold, Floyd Cramer, Barry Sadler, Boots Randolph, and Conway Twitty are country performers as well as "pop" and "rock" artists.

Country songs like the "Race Is On," "Make The World Go Away," "Don't Touch Me," "Walkin' On New Grass," 'May The Bird of Paradise Fly Us Your Nose,!' all moved into the pop market.

There was a "revolution" in country music in 1964 at Nashville, Tenn., The former "pickin' and singing" was "ousted" and singers backed by 15 piece bands and choruses were "in."

Nashville, known as "Music City, U.S.A.," is now the home of some of the largest, most modern recording studios in the section. It is the center of country music, although many "pop" singers like the Lovin' Spoonful, Frank Sinatra, Johnny Mathis and Sammy Davis Jr. record there.

"On WMNI, we audition about 125 new single records each week, and then introduce the best 25 to our audience," Robinson said.

Mock Session Explains Council

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

In just over an hour one night last week, City Council created a new department, approved the city's entire 1967 budget, approved two slum clearance projects and beefed up the fire and police departments.

None of it counted, but it went a long way toward educating the residents of the so-called "inner city" on the workings of the legislative branch of city government.

The occasion was the third in a three-part series of seminars sponsored by the Community Relations Department and several area councils. The first two programs dealt with the judicial and executive branches of the city government.

Despite a disappointing turnout (less than 75 persons showed up), Community Relations Director Walter Tarpley considered the meeting a success.

"It made the councilmen more sensitive to the needs of the inner city residents and it showed these people how to use the proper lines of communication to solve their problems. It showed them there's no need to demonstrate."

Tarpley has not attempted to hide the fact that the program, along with the recent police-community relations program and upcoming seminars on employment and housing, is aimed at getting to the inner city residents before summer, thus cooling fears of a "long, hot summer" of racial strife.

Council went through a full-blown mock session, with City Clerk John T. Gordon handling the explanations as the meeting progressed.

Councilman Ronald DeVore even provided a touch of realism when he moved to eliminate the ordinance creating the Department of Development. DeVore, the staunchest foe of urban renewal on council, lost his motion for lack of a second.

Actually, Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner would have been a lot happier if the Development Department proposal had passed as easily the first time.

Council approved it 5-1 in the mock session. The first time it came up for an actual vote last year, Councilman James Baumann abstained and the bill died. It was revived and passed several weeks later.

Tarpley blamed poor weather and what he called "apathy on the part of those who should really be interested" for the disappointing turnout. But he said the turnout did not lessen his hopes for big crowds for the meetings on housing and employment.

LETTER? TO THE EDITOR

To Drink Or Not To Drink

There's a move (win or lose) aimed at banning the booze
That now has our town in its grip.
By fact and by fiction, deceit and conviction
We'll settle the fate of the "strip."

We can vote with the "dries"—pious tears in our eyes
For the worry and woes booze does bring
We can vote with the "wets"—the "Mod" and "Jet" sets
But it really won't mean a darn thing.

For a man who's inclined to partake of the vine
Will go where the grape flows galore,
He will drink just as hearty at tavern and party
And visit the State Liquor Store.

If one can't have a beer in a place that is near Because the "fun juice" is unlawful
He'll just go to a place where it's still in good grace
And his hangover won't be more awful.

I just don't really think that the banning of drink
Will affect anyone who imbides
But the well-known tradition of forced prohibition
Is graft, corruption and bribes.

Easter Seal Parade Aids Crippled Kids

There won't be any bands playing, but more than 8,000 volunteers will setge a parade the weekend—a special Easter Seal parade to aid the crippled children of Columbus and Franklin County.

Marchers will visit every home in the county Friday, Saturday and Sunday, delivering Easter Seals and explaining the work of the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children. Donations will go to finance the services at the Society Treatment Center at 555 S. Monroe-av.

Chairman of the Easter Seal Parade is Betty Corbett, star of WLW-C-TV's "Talk of the Town" program.

The Primrose Path

Democratic leaders Frank Pokorny in the House and Frank King in the Senate are to be congratulated for their efforts to keep the Rhodes' administration bond commission plan off the May ballot.

Although heavily outmanned in both houses, the leaders made a commendable, if unsuccessful fight, sometimes without the solid backing of their own party.

It takes courage to lead, especially against a lop-sided support behind the present administration.

The stand taken by the leaders will not endear them to the power structure back in their districts. Nor will it gain them any favors from the opposite side of the aisle.

Time will prove the wisdom of their actions and others will rue the day they went blindly down the primrose path under the whip stick of arrogant power politics.

The Alternatives

The Committee for the Study of Alternatives at Ohio State University has urged Governor Rhodes to make a series of systematically planned appointments to the board of trustees to give it greater breadth and balance.

The Committee's recommendation merits honest consideration.

There is no clash of intellect apparent on the board. In the years between 1948 and 1965 there has not been, according to the committee, a single dissenting vote cast on any matter of educational policy or practice.

There is no doubt that the board has been traditionally and politically an honor conferred for past services, rather than for whatever contribution other than monetary a new trustee can make to higher education. The vast majority of OSU trustees have been lawyers and those who have succeeded in business make up the next big bloc. All able men, but "markedly homogeneous."

In an open letter to Governor Rhodes, the committee suggests consideration be given to a man or woman of letters, a leader in social reform, a labor leader and a recognized leader in communications.

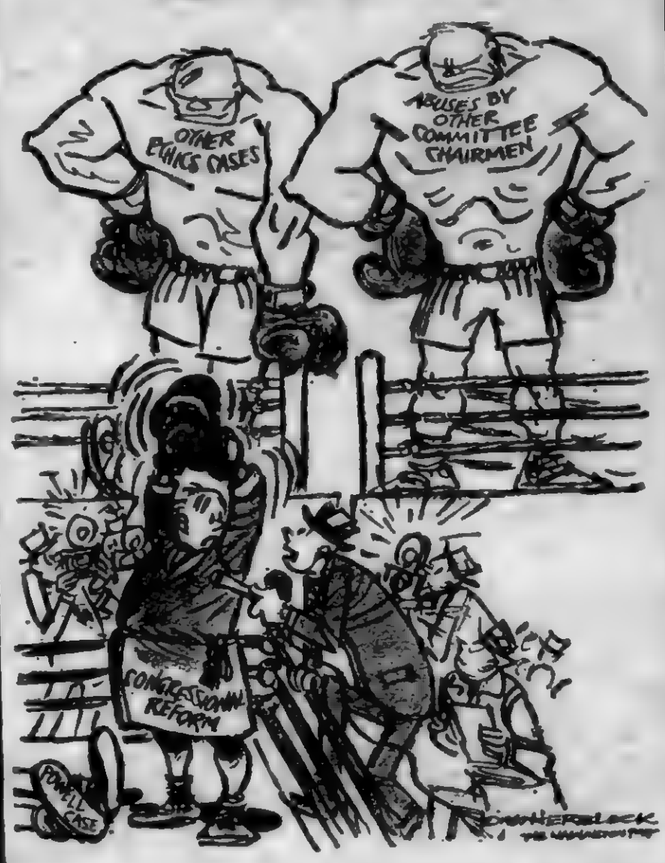
The Spectator Newspapers commend the committee's recommendations to the governor.

Itchiban?

Governor Rhodes announced during his somewhat less than adequate state of the state message that he is determined to make Ohio the Number One state in a variety of endeavors.

Whereupon he left for a junket to the Far East with the legislature and the public still in the dark as to how all this number oneness is to be financed.

It appears to The Spectator Newspapers that Ohio is already Number One in a number of things, thanks primarily to Governor Rhodes.



For instance, Ohio is one billion dollars in debt without one additional penny of revenue being provided to pay it off.

And Ohio is either Number One or in close contention for first place in its neglect of mental health, neglect of state support to education, and neglect of its poor.

Ohio is also the first state to propose that its citizens finance a bridge across a lake to a foreign nation while it is still impossible to get to downtown Cleveland on Interstate 71.

In short, Ohio is in one hell of a mess and Rhodes keeps telling everyone how Wonderful it is, Or is that Onederful?

Credibility Quiz II

BURDOCK

Last week this column conducted a current events test on state finances and since most of you flunked it we promised to give you another chance.

We had some complaints about last week's test. Readers complained that current events questions are supposed to be based on what they read in their newspapers.

This is a new kind of test. It is based on what you don't read in the newspapers. Ready? True or false?

Capital punishment has been abandoned in Ohio.

Now wait a minute. You remember former Governor DiSalle tried to get the Ohio legislature to repeal capital punishment? But the legislature refused. Most of the influential newspapers in Ohio were critical of DiSalle's efforts. The legislature ignored DiSalle's plea.

He was accused of being soft on killers and every time he spared a murderer's life it was page one news. DiSalle never gave up his fight and later wrote a book on the subject, an eloquent plea for an end to state killing. But the law remained unchanged.

But back to the question. Has Ohio abandoned the electric chair? In practice, yes, although the law is still unchanged.

March 15 will mark the fourth anniversary of the abandonment of the electric chair as an instrument of justice.

While Governor DiSalle was openly opposed to the use of capital punishment, six murderers went to their deaths during his four years in office. He spared six, amidst a roar of press criticism.

Only two killers have been electrocuted during the four years of Governor Rhodes administration, both during the early days of his tenure. He has quietly spared four killers and during the last four years has granted enough stays of execution that death row now is bulging with 15 condemned men.

But that ugly chair which squats profanely in a former chapel has not whined its horrid whine for 48 straight months.

Ohio has quietly abandoned it. And most Ohioans don't even know it.

Down On Whitehall

To The Editor:

Having just moved out to Whitehall about six months ago, after hearing what a wonderful place it was to live, but I am sorry to say that I along with a lot of others don't agree. After living out here thru the winter months I am ready to move, and so are they.

So we again had another snow storm, so again the sidewalks are all nothing but snow and ice for poor working people who have to ride the bus to work and little school children trying to walk to school to slip and fall on, and can't understand why nothing is being done about it, and why the City of Whitehall is permitting the citizens to get by without having to clear their sidewalks in front of their homes and business places for the safety of the people who have to walk on them, like other places do.

I have lived on the North Side and the West Side of Columbus and the walks were always cleared within a reasonable length of time. But out here in Whitehall, it stays until the sun comes out and melts it away, and it is pretty disgusting, and I wouldn't advise anyone to move out here unless something is done about it.

Kids And Indians

To The Editor:

During recent months youth has been a prime target of the adults of Canal Winchester.

Suddenly, in the past two weeks, this has all changed.

"Our Indians" (people who haven't been in a gym for years are now taking a proprietary interest in the C-W eagers) have done a superlative job and the entire community is basking in reflected glory.

The village will be a lonely place Friday night for the few who don't head down 33 to Athens.

Canal Winchester youngsters have proved their worth and everybody is behind them—win or lose.

Let's hope the adults won't be in a hurry to forget how proud they've been these past two weeks.

If we'd all support our kids every day with the same enthusiasm we give a winning team, we might have more "winners" and less "losers" all year around.

marquis childs ★ Dilemma At The Fed ★

CHILDS

The distance between the White House and the marble temple occupied by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System can be covered in about five minutes when traffic is light. But in view of the decisions the President must make — decisions determining the future of the Fed and, for that matter, the issue between hard money and easy money — the short passage has the look of a long obstacle race.

The term of William McChesney Martin, Jr., as chairman of the board expires in five weeks. The President can ask him to serve in that capacity for another two years or he can name another chairman, in which event Martin would resign from the board itself, although his appointment as a member runs until Jan. 31, 1970.

That sounds simple enough. In fact, it is not simple at all, for Martin is today the symbol for the banking community here at home and overseas as well of sound money and a firm stand against inflation. The President has really no choice, it is being widely said in Washington. Failure to reappoint Martin would touch off an outflow of gold from America's dwindling reserves that could scarcely be stanched short of some radical action. Such is the confidence that the central bankers in Europe—the gnomes of Zurich, as a British Laborite called them — put in Martin to check the inflationists in Congress.

The issue between the Fed, with Martin as spokesman, and the President has been whether to tax or not to tax to meet the rising costs of the Vietnam war. A year ago December the board raised the rediscount rate, which sent all interest rates up and made for tight money. Martin and a majority on the Fed believed this was the only course to halt a price spiral if taxes were not to be increased.

But coming at a moment when Johnson was trying to squeeze the budget in order to lower the deficit and urging Martin to be a member of the team, it was a thorn in the flesh. This past December as the argument over whether to tax or not to tax went on the President turned to one of his aides in Martin's presence and said:

"We'd invite Bill down to the ranch if we didn't think he'd pull the rug out from under us again."

Martin is said to have responded that if he had it to do over he would follow the same course. In the end the President hit the bullet and asked Congress to impose a six percent surtax on personal and corporate income taxes.

The decision the President must make is the kind he most loathes. Whatever he does he is bound to make one faction or the other angry. The pressure to let Martin go is considerable and it comes from powerful Democrats on Capitol Hill whom Johnson needs in his skirmishing with an increasingly conservative Congress.

President Johnson's problem is complicated by an obscure law that requires the retirement of Charles N. Shepardson, one of the conservative members of the Federal Reserve Board, unless the law is waived by executive order. The law calls for the automatic end of government service of anyone over 70 years of age who has had 15 years of government service and this includes service in the armed forces. Shepardson is 71 and having been an Army captain in World War I he will with his service with the Fed since 1955 have completed his 15 years.

There is little doubt that if Shepardson is retired before the expiration of his full term in 1968 and a Johnson appointee with a liberal view on money appointed to make a Johnson majority on the board Martin will step out. He would be unwilling to stay on in the minority and see his views overridden.

barry goldwater ★ Danger Of CIA Involvement ★

GOLDWATER

In all of the hand wringing over the revelations of CIA support of everything from students to newsmen, I have yet to see any deep concern for the most significant point involved.

The great danger that the recent revelations suddenly bring face-to-face with our national conscience is that the vast, unaudited funds of the CIA, or of any sprawling government operation with a secrecy stamp to cover its operations, easily may be used, or may have the effect of being used, to support activities with emphatic domestic political impact.

Hiring individuals is one thing, whether clandestine or overt, but secretly supporting entire private organizations is quite another. Just look at two of the most widely publicized recent examples, the National Students Association and the American Newspaper Guild.

No one can fail to appreciate that such an organization as the CIA is going to find it absolutely necessary, somewhere along the line, to get involved with students and journalists, perhaps to counter some Communist thrust, to analyze some situation, to observe something, to advise, to do any one of dozens of things that are properly the concern of an intelligence agency. And it's no use being pious about it. All such organizations here, there or anywhere do it.

But what all of that should involve is individual contact and arrangement. What the revealed cases of CIA support actually do involve, however, is something far different. In those cases hundreds of thousands of dollars, even millions, went into support of the general activities of the organizations.

The purpose might be to obtain the organization's support in some effort or another, such as getting the student group to attend Communist-backed student conferences, but it also is inescapably true that the end result of the CIA support goes far beyond that.

The CIA money that pours into a private organization supports all of the activities of that group. The student group which it supported, for instance, is widely regarded as the national spokesman mainly for left-wing student movements and positions. The CIA dollars it got may well have supported worthy actions overseas, indirectly, but those same dollars also supported quite formidably all of the group's domestic politicking as well.

The same is true of the CIA's "gifts" to the American Newspaper Guild, running perhaps into the million-dollar class. The guild is an active political and economic force in this country. Upon its membership depends much of the nation's opinion as well as the economic and intellectual well-being of most of our newspapers.

If the CIA gave a million bucks to a publisher's association, someone could quickly conclude that the money could be used to fight, say, the newspaper guild just as easily as it could be used to take a swat at some chore for the CIA. The same applies to the guild's windfall from the CIA. It inevitably supports the guild's domestic efforts against the publishers.

william s. white ★ Romney, Nixon Being Hurt ★

WHITE

The two top present contenders for the 1968 Republican Presidential nomination are being damaged in ways that could not be more different.

Richard Nixon is being hurt by the excessively vocal support being tendered to him in all generosity but with less than sensitive tact by Barry Goldwater.

Gov. George Romney of Michigan is being injured in two directions.

First of all, he is traveling too much for a campaigner who persistently disclaims that role and simultaneously saying so little so often about the most burning of current issues, the war in Vietnam. In the second place, he is doing himself no good by an undue cordiality toward some Republicans of very minor party position who are anathema not alone to Goldwater as the leader of the right wing but also to far less conservative party regulars.

These latter, while in no sense Goldwaterites, are nevertheless not happy to see Romney bring into his campaign councils men who are not only tirelessly hostile to Goldwater but are lacking sufficient usefulness to Romney himself in practical terms to offset their trouble-making potential.

The result is that Romney's party irregularity is being highlighted rather than smoothed over and he is gaining nothing in return for it all.

As to Nixon, his adversaries had at the outset made it their central tactic to present him as both outdated and a creature of the right wing which, under Goldwater, was so profoundly defeated in 1964. Nixon, in simple truth, is in no sense a right-winger. But every time Goldwater publicly embrances him — again with the best will in the world — Nixon is bound to shudder and perhaps privately to utter that famous old political lament that a man can sometimes better handle his enemies than his friends.

Romney, for his part, is not only getting unwisely close to the wrong — and powerless — people at the wrong time. He is also getting himself into unnesessary trouble with the working press which bears him no malice and indeed was largely responsible for making him a front-runner by rightly pointing out the stature of his victory in getting re-elected in Michigan and smashing to bits the old Democratic-union-labor combination which was so long so powerful in that state.

In press conferences and speeches he is opening up subjects — again notably Vietnam — and then refusing to answer reasonable and respectful questions designed to elaborate or clarify his views.

For example, one of the ablest and fairest of political reporters, David Broder, reported an incident from Idaho. Romney had just charged that "political expediency" was influencing the Johnson Administration's foreign policy, and, not unnaturally, he was asked whether he would give an instance of this. "No, I will not," he replied.

"Why not?"

"I do not choose to."

"You just make a charge and do not substantiate it?" he was asked.

"At this point," was Romney's reply.

It is a harsh but real rule of politics, as Harry Truman once put it, that if a man can't stand the heat, he should get out of the kitchen. Romney is very much in the kitchen — indeed in a single sortie of late he was in the kitchens of five states — but he is clearly not standing the heat. This does not mean that he will never learn to stand it; but it does mean that he undoubtedly is being injured by his present attitude toward thermal pressures.

Theater Notes

By CLAUDIA ELKINS

Out in theater land, someone missed seeing Gallery Players' production of "Awake and Sing." That someone missed seeing a near-perfect play.

The emotional strife of the years during the depression is related through a Jewish family. The wife and husband have switched roles in this family. She wears the pants, he the apron. Many emotion reactions are related through this relationship.

Her father, living with them, was the symbol of years past as a Russian Jew. The son and daughter represented the uneasiness of the future, the struggles to make life and live it.

The director, Harold Eisenstein, molded a play into a believable and beautiful story.

The cast was perfection in acting. They were: Burt Louis, Sanford Weinber, Lynn Roth, Harry Schubert, Edye Mendelson, Mario DeSapio, John Purdy, Hersh Adlerstein and Victor Karp.

A few technical details were obvious, due to the elaborate and detailed work involved. These were in lights and sound. Again, makeup is one of Gallery Players' problems.

The set, a drab 1930's tenement of lower middle-class decor, was delicate and accurate. The set certainly was comprehensive to the intense emotions of the play.

Robin And The Hoods Play For Benefit Of Heart Fund

Robin and the Hoods, who bill themselves as "world's champions of rock 'n roll," will make a benefit appearance Friday from 8 to 11 p.m. at Valley Dale for the benefit of the Heart Fund.

The group won its title last summer at Lambertville, N.J., competing against young rock 'n roll groups from throughout the United States.

The New York Times called them "the most colorful of the competitors for the world title." Their victory brought a recording contract with Columbia Records and numerous television appearances.

The five members of the group are all freshmen at Penn State University. They are Robin Breon, lead vocalist and saxophonist; Geoff de Lissovoy, drummer; Gregg House, lead guitarist; Mike Gilligan, bass guitar, and Ridge Riley, rhythm guitarist.

Joining Robin and the Hoods at the performance will be the Cheerful Earful of Upper Arlington and the Dantes of Worthington.

Tickets for the Heart Fund benefit are available at the Central Ticket Office, 37 N. High-st; Sears Northland and Town and Country and Discount Record Shop, 1956 N. High-st.

ROBIN AND THE HOODS, who will appear Friday at a Heart Fund benefit at Valley Dale, pose astride the Nittany Lion, mascot of Penn State University. From left are Robin Breon, Ridge Riley, Geoff de Lissovoy, Mike Gulligan and Gregg House.

Miss Central Ohio Judges Select Fifteen Finalists

Fifteen bathing beauties paraded around the Christopher Inn pool Monday night while a blizzard raged outside as the Columbus Jaycees introduced the 15 finalists for the title of Miss Central Ohio.

The winner will be selected Saturday, April 8, in a pageant at Valley Dale modeled after the Miss America finals at Atlantic City.

The Jaycee-sponsored Miss Central Ohio pageant is an official Miss America preliminary. The winner advances to the Miss Ohio finals at Cedar Point in June.

The 15 finalists are:

Diane C. Casanta, 3057 Grandon-rd; Sandra Ellenwood, 1941 Chelsea-av; Linda Grafmiller, 2493 East cleft; Nannette Hill, 1702 N. High-st; Linda Hoyle, 1957 Indianola; Jennifer Lincoln, 1350 King-av; Judy Newpoff, 2620 Burnaby-dr; Kay Prouty, 215 E. 15th-av; Sally Rossbach, 52 E. 14th-av; Nadine Schwallie, 454 E. 16th-av; Shirley Smith, 1675 Haft-dr, Reynoldsburg; Carole Spring, 275 S. Southampton-av; Iris Varga, 121 E. 15th-av; Betsy Wones, 1694 Neil-av and Elaine Weber of Capital University.

The finalists were chosen on the basis of talent, personality, poise, intellect and physical beauty.

Jaycee officials said the pageant is designed to "recognize and encourage exceptionally talented young ladies in the community, provide educational opportunities through a scholarship program, develop a spirit of improved understanding and cooperation among the youth, civic leaders and commercial interests of Franklin County, provide a colorful pageant for the community and win recognition for Columbus through publicity and good will generated by the pageant."

Preliminary eliminations were held Saturday, Feb. 25, in the auditorium of Columbia Gas of Ohio.

The Miss Central Ohio finals will include a stage show and will be followed by a Coronation Ball. Tickets at $1 are avalable by calling the Jaycee office at 228-2773.

Contest Closes On March 15

The deadline is March 15 for the 1967 traffic safety slogan contest sponsored by the Department of Highway Safety and the Division of Safety and Hygiene of the Industrial Commission of Ohio.

The independent insurance companies affiliated with the Insurance Board of Columbus are acting as distribution centers for entry forms for the contest. Entry blanks are available at the office of any agent identified as a member of the Ohio Association of Insurance Agents.

First prize in the contest is a 1967 Ford Mustang and the No. 1 license plate for 1967. Last year's winner was Sherman L. Roney of Massillon whose slogan was, "Fasten Your Seat Belts—Heaven Can Wait."

John K. Stephen, president of the Insurance Board of Columbus, said the agents were cooperating in the contest as "part of the concentrated highway safety efforts of independent insurance agents."

The association was commended last year by Gov. James A. Rhodes for publicizing the advantages of wearing seat belts.

Indian Springs Sponsors Dance

The Indian Springs Dance Club will present its fourth dance of the season Saturday beginning at 9 p.m. at Valley Dale.

The program will include "guest night." Members are urged to bring guests. Chuck Selby's band will provide the music.

Co-hosts for the dance will be the board members Mr. and Mrs. Skee West and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Roscoe.

Country And Western: Music's Newest Fad

EDITOR'S NOTE: The "Country Gentlemen" of WMNI were interviewed by Mimi Deaton, The Spectator's 1966 High School Journalist of the Year.

Anyone in the market for barracudas for bathtubs, sharks for swimming pools or used kamikaze planes should contact William F. Robinson, program director of WMNI, the country music radio station.

"We don't actually sell these things," Robinson said. "We just try to have fun and create a friendly, informal atmosphere on our station."

WMNI is Columbus' only country music station, the city's highest rated adult station, and the "number one country music station in the United States," according to The Pulse, Inc., survey.

One of the station's spoof contests was to have contestants photograph a whale in the Olentangy River. A man superimposed a picture of a whale swimming under the Broad Street bridge and won the grand prize — a life-size portrait of the Beatles!

"We used to sponsor free vacations to San Quentin," Robinson said.

This year WMNI will feature broadcasts of the district, regional and state-wide semi-finals and finals of the high school basketball tournaments.

The games will be aired March 8, 9, 11, 17 and 18. WMNI is also the only local station which has high school correspondents to report the latest basketball and football scores for the Friday night games.

* * *

The West Coast teenagers have already started a trend to country music and at WMNI they feel that the now "big beat" of country and Western music will soon be grabbed by the campus set as "IN."

"Colleges in California and New Mexico are sponsoring country music dances and shows. Country bands and hangouts are the newest fads there," Robinson said.

"We're trying to interest more of the teenagers in listening to WMNI," he said. "Country music has changed drastically in the last two years and we think the teens will like the new "Naghville Sound."

Roger Miller, Eddy Arnold, Floyd Cramer, Barry Sadler, Boots Randolph, and Conway Twitty are country performers as well as "pop" and "rock" artists.

Country songs like the "Race Is On," "Make The World Go Away," "Don't Touch Me," "Walkin' On New Grass," "May The Bird Of Paradise Fly Up Your Nose," all moved into the pop market.

There was a "revolution" in country music in 1964 at Nashville, Tenn. The former "pickin' and singing" was "ousted" and singers backed by 15 piece bands and choruses were "in."

Nashville, known as "Music City, U.S.A.," is now the home of some of the largest, most modern recording studios in the nation. It is the center of country music, although many "pop" singers like the Lovin' Spoonful, Frank Sinatra, Johnny Mathias and Sammy Davis, Jr., record there.

"On WMNI, we audition about 125 new single records each week, and then introduce the best 25 to our audience," Robinson said.

Lazarus Plans Irish Food Fair

Lazarus is sponsoring Central Ohio's first-ever Irish Food Festival this week at the Lazarus Food Pantry in the downtown Annex.

The festival, featuring famous foods and beverages imported from Ireland, will continue through March 18. Colorful flags, shamrocks, posters and clerks in Irish costumes will help carry out the St. Patrick's Day motif.

Frank O'Conner, trade consultant for the Irish Export Board of New York, will visit the festival on St. Patrick's Day, March 17. One thousand fresh shamrocks will be given out in the store.

Among the items to be displayed will be Irish prawn (shrimp soup), Willwood preserves, Blarney cheeses, Irish pickles, candies and confections, Guiness Stout beer and Molly O'Rourke's whiskey-flavored Irish fruitcakes.

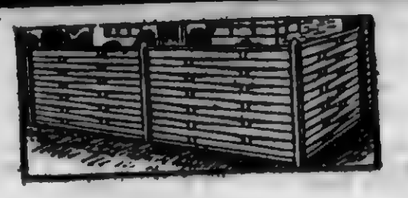
And So It Grows

Don't get in too big a hurry to work your garden soil. Extension horticulturists at Ohio State University say that soils such as silty clay loams, clay loams and clay may be cloddy and difficult to cultivate throughout the season if they are worked too soon.

How can you tell when to dig that spade in? Take a soil sample with a spade or trowel from a depth of five or six inches. Squeeze the soil until a ball is formed. If the soil ball remains firm after pressure is released, delay working the soil a few more days. It's ready for plowing or spading when the soil ball crumbles easily.

How much fertilizer you should apply to your garden depends on the amount put on last year, the amount of manure being applied, and the natural fertility of the soil. Generally, most Ohio soils can use three to four pounds per 100 square feet of a complete fertilizer such as 6-24-12.

USDA scientists are working on a weed killer applicator that applies the killer in the form of foam. Object is to prevent drift that is a problem with spraying. It's also showing better coverage. Considerable testing is needed before the foam applicator can be adapted by growers.



If you'd like to rejuvenate older apple trees in your backyard, you'll get best results if they are pruned by someone who understands and knows the skills of pruning. If you are in doubt about the procedure and extent of pruning, you should depend mostly on detailed thinning out of the branches in tree tops and in the outer and lower segments of the tree. You must shorten or remove long lateral branches that droop down and give too much shade to those beneath them.

If you need to lower a very tall tree, you'll usually find it best to stretch the pruning over a two-or-three-year period. So, if your want to lower a tree six feet, you would remove two feet of the older wood each year for three years. This method helps to reduce the number of water sprouts developing in the tree tops each year as a result of the pruning.

'HARDEST THING I EVER DID'

Notification Tough But Necessary

By JANE WOLLERMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Any military man will tell you that the hardest duty a soldier is ever called upon to perform is that of delivering the news of a fellow soldier's death to a wife or mother.

This, they say, is the real test of courage and strength.

The officer who is charged with this duty for the United States Air Force in the Columbus area is an attractive young woman whose quiet voice and very feminine appearance might seem out of keeping with her job.

Lt. Barbara Bavera is chief of the personal affairs office at Lockbourne Air Force Base and a few minutes of conversation with her will convince the skeptic that she is, in fact, exactly the type of person who is needed in her sensitive job.

In discussing the functions of her office, Lt. Bavera said, "Death notices are only one part of our job and do not consume a major part of our time. But they have highest priority and we put everything else aside when we receive one and begin to work on it immediately.

"We are notified as soon as the base receives the notice regardless of the hour. If I am called late at night (after 10 o'clock), I wait until morning to call on the family. There is no point in waking them in the middle of the night and adding any unnecessary terror to the situation."

Lt. Bavera emphasized, as has the office of Lt. Col. Eugene Renaldi, adjutant of 20th Army Corps at Ft. Hayes, that when the survivor of a military casualty is notified of the death of her husband or son the notice will be delivered by an active duty member of the man's branch of service in full uniform who will be able to present proper identification.

Since March of 1966, when the Army and Air Force adopted the system, all services have had a policy of personal notification to families of casualties.

Certain specific regulations vary among the branches of the military, but the basic procedure to be followed is the same: The primary next of kin is notified by a uniform member of the service; the secondary next of kin will receive a telegram. For the married man, the primary next of kin is his wife. For the single man his parents are his primary next of kin.

All services are committed to give high (sometimes highest) priority to casualty notifications. On military communications systems, casualty information carries priority second only to items directly affecting the fighting. Army regulations require that death notices be delivered within 72 hours of the man's death.

Military officials emphasize that families of military casualties are never notified of death, missing in action or wounded members by telephone. Some crank calls of this nature have been reported. Missing in action reports are handled in exactly the same manner as death notification.

Missing reports are more common among the Air Force personnel because the fate of a pilot whose plane goes down behind enemy lines is not always immediately known.

"This is often the most difficult time of all for a wife," Lt. Bavera said. "She doesn't know whether to hope or to despair. She doesn't know whether to tell the children daddy is coming home or daddy isn't coming home. This time of uncertainty may go on for hours or months. We have had wives undergo great harrassment by reporters when they learned a man was missing. The woman is forbidden by the government to tell anything surrounding the circumstances of his disappearance and if he is alive in enemy territory the only element who could profit from the publication of such information is the enemy."

Lt. Bavera and her counterparts in other branches of the military stand ready to serve the needs of the families of casualties in every way, both in securing their benefits and in any personal way they can.

Sgt. Major Kastor at 20th Corps said, "No one likes this duty, but I haven't met anyone who wants to go back to the old method of sending telegrams. We have had nine deaths of Columbus area men since October and I have talked to almost all the officers who delivered the messages, and not one of them would ever want to go back to the old way.

"They all said it was the hardest thing they ever had to do, but they don't want to change it. We feel like it's the Army looking after its own and we all want to stay with it."

As one Air Force officer put it, "We don't talk about it, but we all know it might be our family sometime."

M-FACA Debates School Inequities

Negroes are not satisfied with the education and cultural concepts to which their children are being exposed.

This fact was evident when the Marion - Franklin Area Civic Association held a panel on the topic "Let's Probe Quality Education" at its regular meeting.

However, opinion apparently differs as to where the remedy lies.

While a mother stressed the importance of home and the influences exerted upon the parent himself, one panel member called for racial balance within the schools while a third asked parents to act as a pressure group for quality schools and special services.

Mrs. Jeanne Woodward particularly emphasized the role of the parent in expanding the cultural horizons of the child.

Maintaining that no school project can take over the job that is basically that of the home, Mrs. Woodward—speaking specifically to the Negro parents — stressed the importance of family-shared experiences.

In turn, she charged the Negro press and radio with having a "tremendous role" in helping to "broaden the scope of the Negro parent . . ." through the quality of music and variety of news which is made available.

The panel, moderated by Mrs. Malcolmn McCoy, vice-president of the civic group, also presented the views of Dr. Walter A. Thomas, member of the Council on Interculture Education.

Expanding the topic "Racial Balance — A Factor in Quality Education," Dr. Thomas maintained that Negro children from predominantly or all-Negro schools test significantly higher when transferred to predominantly white or all-white schools of "higher academic standing."

He attributed this not only to the higher motivation effected by a student's peer group (in contrast to that of parents or teachers) but the improvement of his self-image.

According to Dr. Thomas, this results when the Negro learns first-hand that while some white students score above him, his attainments will be beyond those of other whites.

He also contended that the interchange is beneficial to members of the white majority who begin to see strength and weakness of Negroes in "academic 'fields' as well as athletic fields."

The third member of the panel was Kenneth Fickle of the Columbus NAACP Education committee who urged parents to be aware of their power as a pressure group in obtaining better education for their children.

Stating no one can push for quality education for the Negro as effectively as the parent he pinpointed several areas of the school program deserving particular attention.

These included physical "fitness" of the school plant, quality of teacher, pupil-teacher ratio, special education services, library facilities and projects available to qualifying schools under the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Business conducted at the meeting included a report of attorney Gordon Sroufe on UCC sponsored workshop at City Hall; appointment of Rev. William Talley, Mrs. Marion Henry and Harry Roberts to work with the Columbus Recreation Department in planning for the annual Easter egg hunt at Watkins and receipt of a $75 check presented by Walter Davidson representing the Keysquare block club toward M-FACA operating expenses.

Other block club officials present were Roger Warner of Southfield Drive, E.; Charles Wilson, Fairview Estates and James Parker, Baker Hill.

BEAUTY SALON MAGIC!
When a woman visits a Cosmetologist or a Hair Stylist, if she is lucky, a remarkable thing happens. It happens in our salon all the time. A magical understanding is initiated — a special relationship between one who is seeking guidance in solving problems relative to her personal appearance and another who knows what should be done. This professional's ability to understand the patron's personality and the gift of inspiring trust in the patron, are the magic ingredients that build a successful salon.

WHEN TO SHAMPOO!
I've had ever so many letters asking me to answer that question. The answer is obviously as often as it needs it. Most of us wash our skins every day several times. Few people wash their hair more than once a week and some not more than once a month. The reason is often that they have been told that frequent washings of the hair will remove essential oils. There is no scientific support for this belief. Choose a mildly alkaline shampoo as we professionals do.

CAN HAIR TURN WHITE OVER NIGHT?
It really can happen in times of great emotional shock, and has been documented on several occasions. So far no one has been able to explain this phenomena. It is a very rare occurance and so unpredictable it is difficult to study scientifically.

East, Linden Zero In On Rematch

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Unbeaten Columbus East and twice-licked Linden-McKinley are zooming with bold speed and awesome scoring ability toward a Regional final showdown Saturday night.

Both are on the timetable proposed by the coaches who seeded them one and two at the outset of the Central District Tournament a month ago.

BUT FOR Columbus' two City League power plants Wednesday and Thursday come first.

East (20-0) opens the three-day regional on the Fairgrounds Coliseum floor tonight as it matches a decisive height advantage against tourney-wise Portsmouth (11-10) at 8 p.m.

Vincent Chickerella's smaller legions, registering in with a fleet foot and an 18-2 record will be matched with New Philadelphia (18-4, who has a pair of super shots in Dave Coutts and Jay Force.

EAST'S five-year coaching veteran Bob Hart, who has guided the Tigers to a 91-15 and a 1963 state title, figures his Bengals will see a press from a short Portsmouth.

George Heller, the 16-year veteran Trojan mentor, always has something in a wooden horse for the Regional wars in which his quintets have participated nine times.

"They have a real good boy in Walt Mannon. He does everything for them," Hart said.

BOB THEN WENT on to mention that this Trojan team does about the same things Portsmouth fives have shown in past seasons.

The same things being a single pivot offense with patterns and good shooters—plus a hustling defense.

As for Mannon, he will have to out-quick East defensive dandy Vance Carr, who will draw the assignment of hounding him.

HART, WHO leads East to the school's 12 Regional visits, applauded Herky Hairston and Randy Smith in Saturday evening's 67-55 win over Newark.

"When Randy started moving, everything was fine," reported a smiling Hart.

East's leading scorer Ed Ratleff, who has been sitting out with a bum ankle, came off the bench Saturday with the Wildcats in the lead 7-6 and put things at ease with three quick buckets.

LINDEN'S fiery tutor Chickerella labels New Philadelphia a strong team with "well-balanced scoring and plenty of physical strength."

He feels that his Panthers will have the speed to match the stronger Tuscarawas Countians but also thinks that some outside shooting will be needed."

Defensively, New Philadelphia stunts a lot with various zone defenses including a full court and a half-court press.

"THEY DO a lot of things on defense," Chick said, "and a team with an 18-4 record has got to be doing a lot of them right."

The veteran (11-year) Linden coach compared New Philly's offense to a Chinese fire drill with a 1-3-1 set-up and people cutting every which way.

But if there is one thing that the Panthers take pride in most it is defense. They put the limit on Worthington, holding the Cards to 31 points, one-half of their season's average.

CHICK'S defense in years gone by has enabled him to field winning ball clubs with a rare consistency.

The Panther tutor's overall log is 165-57 including the only three Regional berths in the school's history.

Offensively, Eddie Young and Jim Cleamons, a pair of all-City performers, have paced Linden thus far. But a personnel switch late in the season (inserting Rod Kent in the pivot) has given McKinley a more balanced attack.

PHILLY Coutts is rated by Chickerella as a real good scorer and diver, who leads the team in the score book. But good scorers have been hampered before when you add a dash of Linden defense.

Bob Miller's Canal Winchester Indians (18-4) will be on the firing line Friday night in the Class A Regional at Athens against Southeastern (19-4) who advanced to the semi-final round in the tourney last season.

Miller's defenses will be geared to stop the slick shooting of Doug Hill and Frank Skaggs, pace setters for the Ross Countians this season.

"A useless nut of no commercial value."

So said a joking public speaker last week at a meeting I attended. I know not of lumber values in our state but I do know that the Buckeye is a tree of great value to those of us who love the outdoors.

PAUGH

STANDING along a creek or at the edge of cultivation, the Buckeye has great form and beauty. In mid-spring its blossoms cover the tree with white. All summer long, the Buckeye is a haven for the little folk of the Ohio farm lands. And in the fall, the "useless nut" has great attraction to a number of critters — without which it would be a lonely scene.

Like many other symbols of our wonderful outdoors the Buckeye tree is fast fading from Ohio's hills. Every new road, every expansion of a city limit takes its toll of the Buckeye. If we don't move to counteract this threat, our grandchildren will have to research a library to find the fallen beauty of the Buckeye.

THE DIVISION of Forestry and Reclamation is taking steps to aid those interested in preserving our state's symbol. They are offering young trees to those who will plant them. Encouragement and instructions are given to Service Clubs, school classes, Scout troops and garden clubs to plant Buckeyes now.

Combinations of groups are the answer to tree plantings and care. A service club or garden club could furnish the trees and a school class could do the planting.

When the class moves on to other schools or graduates, the parent organization would still be around to give semi-annual check-ups to the groves.

I KNOW of no nicer way for a graduating class to be remembered than to give to its alma mater a growing addition to the beauty of the landscape.

The optimum in gifts for a school or college is the complete arboretum—a samping of each and every tree that grows in this climate. This requires not so much money for the plantings but (if the plantings are to be best displayed) no less than 20 acres of land.

This would allow enough room to plant hard and soft woods with trails and vantage points. Study of the trees could be made an integral part of all botony courses. A small lake could be centered to encourage the willows and sycamores.

PERHAPS — through bequests — a classroom lodge could be added at a later date. This might sound like so much smoke but there is one thing you can bet on—both the trees and the open space to plant them are getting mighty scarce.

Think ahead, service clubmen and garden girls — impacted civilization is right around the corner.

Address your inquiries about starting a grove of trees to: Division of Forestry and Reclamation, 815 Ohio Departments Building, Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Aid to Retarded Children No. 9 will benefit from the headpin tourney set for Amos Lanes the first three weekends in March . . . Piketon is conducting a headpin event for the benefit of the Owens-Illinois Youth Program . . . The Timken Family Headpin event is slated Sunday at Amos.

Helen Heironimus of Springfield was elected secretary of the Ohio Woman's Bowling Association at the annual meeting here Sunday. Mrs. Heironimus is city secretary of the Springfield Association and will take over the OWBA reins Aug. 1.

MRS. LOTTIE Hunt of Canton was elected sergeant-at-arms, and Mrs. Mildred Schmidt of Toledo, Mrs. Dorothy Gagle of Athens and Mrs. Anne Abbott of Coshocton were elected directors of the state association.

More 700's set the pace — Ed Thomas with 725 in Amos Imperial Classic, Dick Braun with 257-20-257/714 in Main Classic, Bob West with 700 in Amos Doubles, Paul Honson's 256, 256, 198/710 at Rainbow Major, Jim Seufer's 235-225-242/702 at Sequoia, Ron Stromfield and 709 at Rainbow, Lou Mello with 708 in Amos Trio, and Ed Johnson at 703 at Swan.

Add Sylvia Fillippi 640, Loretta Linhart 649 and Pat Meredith 636 for high gals.

A NO-TAP tournament is usually very popular with bowlers. We all have experienced (probably several times in any one series) having either the seven pin or the ten pin left standing.

In a No-Tap competition, if either the seven or the ten pin is left, it counts as a strike. Naturally this makes for some excellent scores and a lot of fun. However — it must be remembered that such a tournament cannot be sanctioned either by ABC or WIBC.

Finals of the $100,000 Firestone PBA Tournament of Champions from Akron, Ohio, this year again will be telecast in color.

ABC TELEVISION officials notified the Akron-based Professional Bowers Association (PBA) today that the color-cast will be in effect for the second straight year. The finals will be held on Saturday, April 1, at Riviera Lanes from 3:30-5:30 p.m. (EST).

ABC also noted that a large percentage of the nearly 200 stations which are carrying Pro Bowlers Tour this year are equipped for color, thus facilitating the decision to repeat last year's color-cast of the finals.

In the 1966 finals, Wayne Zahn of Atlanta defeated Dick Weber of St. Louis, 203-170 to win the $25,000 first prize . . . the biggest in professional bowling.

THE FIRESTONE PBA Tournament of Champions field is limited to 48 competitors, all PBA champions and winners of major professional bowling titles.

SPORTING

Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

We cannot — for the life of us — understand all the furor revolving 'round the Champaign campus of the University of Illinois.

The Big Ten member (or more accurately, coaches Pete Elliott, Harry Combes and Howie Braun) is guilty of a serious Conference violation — that of condoning an illegal athletic fund which has distributed some $21,000 to Illini athletes over the past five years.

Wittenmeier

FROM THIS corner we cannot see where the Conference faculty jury could have handed down any lesser penalty than dismissal of the trio.

In simplest terms, collegiate athletes, who were still maintaining their so-called "amateur standing" last time we looked, were being reimbursed for their services — an exchange reserved for those allied to the professional ranks.

Illinois President David D. Henry must find himself in a most difficult position at present — somewhere between informer and spokesman for the defense.

FOR IT was Henry who brought the illegal "slush fund" to the surface and now labels the consequences too severe.

While we salute Henry for his integrity, we are amazed at his expressed shock at the Conference's decision.

It was Henry himself who was quoted in the 'Illinois Alumni News' as saying, "No university can tolerate a double standard in keeping its agreements.

"ATHLETES are students and should be treated no differently from other students."

What President Henry might not comprehend is that the very narrow line between the amateur and professional has grown very thin indeed.

For this reason, it seems apparent to us that neither the Big Ten nor any other athletic conference can afford to dismiss the matter with a stinging slap on the wrist.

AND IF Illinois can't accept the penalty imposed by its peers, it should indeed disjoin itself from the Conference. Without rules and regulations, no official body can function.

If you don't like the rules or do not choose to follow them—get out of the organization.

BUT THE Conference is not worthy of its judicial robes if it halts its investigation at Champaign.

It seems very unlikely that infractions and bendings of the Big Ten's "golden rules" are limited only to the University of Illinois.

A popular argument in defense of the Illini is the stringent recruiting rules laid down by the Big Ten. For example, the University of Texas may pass out 70 grant-in-aids yearly if it so wishes, Big Ten schools are allowed but 30 such arrangements per year.

IF THE Conference membership feels an increase in the number of grant-in-aids is

Advances In 'Y' Tourney

In the final game of the Junior Hi-Y Basketball Tournament, Johnson Park scored a win over the Eastmoor Junior Hi-Y Club. The club and basketball league is under the sponsorship of the Suburban Branch YMCA.

By winning the Suburban Branch Tournament, The Johnson Park team (under the leadership of Vernon Pock) will play in the City Junior Hi-Y Basketball Tournament scheduled to start March 13.

The Johnson Park team is made up of the following boys: Ken Green, John Long, Larry Napier, Bob Ward, Ron Rosemond, Craig Salyor, Larry Perry, Mike Yankulov, Richard Huff, Richard Harkless, John DeVore, Thomas McCann and Jerry Goss.

Winchester Seeks Regional Scalps

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Staff Writer

They did it!

At the precise moment it looked like Canal Winchester would wait until another time for its first modern day trip to the Regionals, the Indians of Bob Miller went on the warpath and whacked down a 10-point Pleasant lead with tomahawk precision and looked through warpaint at Southeastern from Ross County.

CANAL WILL battle Southeastern (19-4) Friday night at 7 p.m. at Grover Center — the home of the Ohio University Bobcats while the top-ranked Class "A" team Ames-Bern (24-0) will match baskets with West Muskingum (13-10) in the second affair of a two-game card.

Saturday, winners will be pitted against each other with a State Tournament berth riding handsomely on the outcome.

THE COMPETITION will be no cakewalk for any of the four teams in the Athens Regional as Southeastern's four losses are misleading. Tourney pressure is nothing new for the Panthers who made it to the final four in St. John Arena last season before being cut down by Rossford in the semi-final round.

Miller sees the Friday foe as a good rebounding outfit that offers plenty of defensive variety with a hatful of zone defenses.

SAID BOB: "They fell back into a zone defense and didn't press when we saw them Saturday. They use 3-2, 1-3-1, 2-3 zones and run a patterned offense."

Frank Skaggs and Doug Hill are the leading point men that Canal will have to defense as Miller claimed that the duet "does a lot of shooting."

SOUTHEASTERN MIGHT have a fair reason for not pressing as one of their weak points is a lack of speed, according to Miller. "A couple of them are pretty fast," Bob said, "But overall they aren't a quick ball club.

In gaining the Athens Regional the Ross Countians dumped Portsmouth Clay 63-52.

Channel 4 Will Telecast Basketball Tournaments

WLW-C TV will carry High School Basketball Tourney action for the next two weekends.

If a Columbus-area team participates in the AA Regional finale Saturday at 8 p.m., Jimmy Crum will be on hand at the Coliseum to supply the play-by-play account.

On Friday, Mar. 17, TV-4 will telecast the AA State semi-finals (7:30 and 9 p.m.) from St. John Arena, following up with the 'A' (2 p.m.) and AA Finals (7:30 p.m.) the following day.

warranted, all well and good. But using what some may consider existing deficiencies in athletic aid programs as the defense for an illegal action falls under the heading of rationalization.

We honestly feel sorry for the three Illini coaches who will carry this stigma the rest of their lives. We also can sympathize with President Henry who now finds himself squarely in the middle of a critical situation.

But we also find the Illini head a bit naive with his statement that, "There is no pressure to win at any cost."

IT'S NO secret that the Big Ten has slipped considerably down its pillar of prestige in recent years. Declines in success are always associated with rises in pressure.

And that pressure cannot be blamed on any coach or athlete or president of a university.

The guilty plea should be entered by you and me, dear readers, who have knowingly compromised the ideals of fair play and the purity of that which is amateur for that sleek, four-barreled God—professionalism.

Checkers Host 'Hawks Sunday

The Columbus Checkers, heading down the stretch in their first International Hockey League season play host to Muskeegon Mohawks Sunday (7 p.m.) on the Coliseum ice in their next-to-last Sunday home appearance.

The Checkers will give away regulation hockey sticks to the first 600 children (12 and under) who are accompanied by an adult.

The Checkers wrap up their '66-'67 home season by hosting Dayton's Gems (8 p.m.) a week from Friday and the Des Moines Oak Leaves two days later (3 p.m.)

VICTORY RIDE — East High Coach Bob Hart gets traditional ride off the hardwood Saturday after his Tigers' second District title and Regional berths via hard-fought 67-55 verdict over Newark.

The Spectator's Eastern area has gained the most berths in the '66-'67 All-City Basketball line-up. Kneeling (from left) are: Walnut Ridge's Bill Burget and Eastmoor's Lance Greer and Eric Walz. Standing: East's Harry Hairston, Alonzo Conner, Ed Ratliff and Randy Smith. Walz, Hairston and Smith were first-team selections, the other four cagers second-team picks. (Foto by Firestone)

EXTRA CAUTION — With East's jumping-jack rebound crew making things difficult for Newark on the boards at Saturday's AA District finale Wildcat cagers John Daniels (left) and Larry Barch make sure they get possession of this rebound.
